FARMER SELLS CHEAP, DEAR AFTER MANUFACTURE

Composition of prices on November 15, 1922, with those on the same date in 1922 reveals that while the farmer was getting an average of $1.03 in cents a bushel less for his wheat this year than last, breakfast was 1-2 per cent higher than twelve months previously. The price which the farmer received for wheat that year was somewhat less than the cost of production.

These facts illustrate the way in which agricultural products gone down in the economic scale, leaving farmers another instance of same fact. In 1922 the farmer had to sell 103 cents a bushel for his product, but he could buy breakfast food for 101.75 to 125 a bushel.

The farmer makes money for other people on what he sells as well as on what he buys. The producers take his grain and turn it into food and most of his other products into manufactured goods. He buys and sell them back to him at a fine profit to themselves. The farmer is robbed, made and wool are of no value to the farmer when they are in selling form. But when he goes to market to purchase food and clothing he finds the tariff has been added and increased by every vendor who handled these products from the time they left his possession in the raw state until he bought them back in finished form.

The following administrators were appointed in county court last week: C. E. Sapp, administrator of the estate of John Watkins, deceased, with W. G. P. Lenfest surety in the penal sum of $700; W. KEEP ON PLANTING

Nearly every farmer at one time or another says to his wife or his children, "Don't you wish an orchard and some small fruits had been planted on this farm years ago?"

Some one also some years from now may be saying the same thing. You are saying today unless you get busy and do some planting. In this connection here is a little editorial taken from the Southern Agriculturist:

"Small things! It is the first law of farming. Plant not for a season or a year only, but for the years still far distant. The strawberry, bed you plant this fall will be yielding its fruit in a year and a half; the grape vines will be bearing in two years or three; the orchards may need five years or ten to come into full bearing; the shade trees you set may be seen in their full development only after you and your children have become but memories; but unto you who are of the farm is given the task of planting the earth that in many become more beautiful and more fruitful, and to the task to be done with steadiness of purpose and with gladness of spirit. There is no nobler work than that done for unknown sons and distant years.

TEAM WORK

Two food mules—say, get this clear—

Were tied together with a piece of rope.

Said one to the other, "You come my way.

While I take a nibble from this new-mown hay."

"I won't," said the other. "You come with me,

For I too have some hay, you see."

So they got nowhere, just paved the dirt,

And Oh, by golly! that rope did hurt.

Then they faced about, these stubborn mules,

"Let's pull together. I'll go your way—"

"And I'll come with the and we'll both eat hay."

Well, they ate their hay, and they did pull

As the sun went down they were full.

AH! THIS IS THE END OF A PERFECT DAY."

The secretary of the New York cotton exchange says that millions of dollars have been lost by the farmers of the South through cotton transactions with unscrupulous persons posing as cotton brokers.

The automobile industry in 1922 required tubes and casings enough, lay approximately half a billion lbs. of crude rubber.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the trustees of the Myers Christian church, wish to express our sincere thanks to the brethren who so generously and unselfishly contributed of their means to enable us to pay the major part of our indebtedness on the church property. We are not unmindful of the kind and considerate manner in which the Deposit Bank of Carlisle handled our funds. Such unselfish generosity strengthens our faith in the Christian religion and the brotherhood of man.

GROWERS OF BURLEY TOBACCO, SHALL WE STAND TOGETHER ?

The growers of Burley tobacco are mainly confined to a favored section of seven states—Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri and Virginia. No other place in the known world produces Burley tobacco and there is no reason why, if the growers stand together in marketing their crop, that they should not receive a profitable price for it year after year.

The experience of the past has taught that the growers MUST STAND TOGETHER if they are to be able to collect fair prices. Otherwise their competition with each other will mean that the buyers will fix the price to be paid and that the growers will HAVE to take that price, whether it be profitable or not.

The experience of the new Burley Co-operative teaches us that we CAN get our price for tobacco by STANDING TOGETHER. The experience of the outside growers for the past month should be evidence to them that they have nothing whatever to say as to the prices they shall receive. Tobacco is now selling on the auction markets at less than the cost of production because the GROWERS have nothing to say as to the prices they shall receive.

There is only one way in which the growers can have anything to say as to prices they shall receive, and that is to unite in marketing their crops. For this reason and in the interest of the tobacco producing industry as a whole—association and non-association—the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association has opened its books for new members until January 2, 1923. All growers of tobacco who want a fair price for their product are urged to join the Association NOW.

Let us all hang together in this matter. If we do not, in the words of the revolutionary patriots, we shall most assuredly "hang separately" and return to the old conditions which existed before the organization of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association. These conditions are still fresh in the minds of all tobacco growers.

Sign a contract TODAY. Join with your neighbors for stable prices for tobacco and better conditions generally on the farms of the Burley district. All headquarters offices are now at 820 Sugth Broadway. Telephone 5195 for all departments.
