MUSIC ETERNAL

Music made birds
Beating from a singing tower—
Larks at sheaven's door.
Swallows tumbling, rising, dipping,
Gulls floating, swooping,
Wrens trembling in an exultancy of song—
A twilight filled with holier-sheter notes—
A sky of stars assailed by birds of music.

Music made water
Fountaining from a singing tower—
Brook notes rippling over our hearts,
Cascading foam of notes,
Wild notes leaping,
Churning and spilling,
Tinkling and roaring,
A moonlit cotillion spraying,
Scarlet shouting with white arms
Tossed toward an evening sky.

Music made eternal;
Music made a melody;
A shuttle spinning harmony,
Weaving in a place of birds,
The heart a home of cascades
And musical waters,
The heart forever remembering!
Forever when the twilight is deepened.

And the stars are still with silence,
In the heart, music shows eternal!

SOME BIBLE FACTS

Dr. Thomas Horne, an English Bible scholar and critic who died in 1862, devoted several years to compiling interesting facts about the Bible, among them being the following.

The Bible is composed of 66 books, containing 1,189 chapters, 31,173 verses, 774,746 words, and 3,566,480 letters. The shortest verse is John 11:35 and contains only the two words, "Jesus wept." The longest verse is Ester 8: 9.

The word "Lord" occurs 1,853 times; "Jehovah" 5,845 times; the word "girl" only twice; "sweetness" is found twice; while the words "everlasting punishment," "eternity" and "respread" occur only once each.

Several verses are duplicated, thus four verses of the 107th Psalm are identical, and the 36th chapter of Isaiah and the 18th chapter of II Kings are exactly alike.

No original manuscript of any portion of the Bible is in existence. The oldest manuscript known, a fragment of the 11th chapter of Psalms, is thought to have been written in the third century; is preserved in the British Museum. The Bible as we know it has come down to us through many translations, the first complete English translation having been made by John Wycliffe, who died in 1384, and his fellow workers, Nicholas and Purvey.
