A Message about Telephone Rates...

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

To Our Customers in Kentucky:

We want you to know why we have asked the Kentucky Public Service Commission to approve an increase in telephone rates. But first, let me say that the additional income requested by the Company will amount to only a small increase for each customer. For instance, it will average less than 2 cents a day for residential telephone subscribers.

Since 1939, when inflation began, the cost of living has increased 92%, but Kentucky telephone rates on the average are up only about 46%. As a result of inflated costs of providing service, telephone earnings today are about 45--even less than in the depression years.

The cost of telephone equipment and materials has increased a great deal since 1939. Poles have gone up 134%, cable 88%, cross-arms 173% and copper wire 145%.

The investment cost of adding a telephone is over four times as great as in 1946--an increase from $122 to $527.

& Despite the fact that we have more than doubled the number of telephones in service in the State since 1946, there is a big telephone job still to be done in Kentucky. Also, 8,900 people in the State are waiting for telephones. Also, 2,900 party-line customers are asking for higher grades of service.

We must earn a fair profit, however, if we are to attract the additional investment money required to continue the improvement and expansion of service the public in Kentucky is demanding. We are simply asking for rates that will enable us to do the job Kentucky wants us to do.

Sincerely yours,

C. Hunter Green
Kentucky Manager

Compared with other prices, telephone rates are low. Since 1939, consumer prices in general have increased 92%, while telephone rates in the overall have increased only about 46% in Kentucky. At the same time, per capita income in Kentucky has increased 282%.

Residential telephone service took 2.4% of average family income in 1939. Today it takes only 1%.
