Yes, over $460,000,000 was spent in Kentucky last year through the travel industry. That's a lot of dollars . . . and it takes a lot of doing to keep these dollars flowing . . .

Your state government feels that it is in a partnership with the owners of hotels, tourist courts, restaurants and other businesses that cater to the traveler and with the Kentucky State Chamber of Commerce and local organizations to promote the travel industry and to serve those who want to visit over Kentucky.

The Kentucky Division of Publicity wages an all-out campaign to attract tourists into Kentucky, and its national advertising campaign has resulted in an average of 120,000 inquiries from out-of-state tourists annually.

Through the Division of Parks, your state government has built a system of state parks that are attracting national attention and aiding in bringing many thousands of visitors into Kentucky each month.

The travel industry is big business, and its benefits reach into many communities and rewards flow from it into many pockets. Let's take care of the visitors . . . treat them right so that they will go away pleased, will return themselves and send others to us. Give them a full measure of true Kentucky hospitality.

UK Wins Research Grant Of $100,000

The University of Kentucky's Aeronautical Research Laboratory has received a $100,000 grant for experimental work in the design and construction of compartmented airplane fuel tanks for the United States Air Force. It is the largest single research grant ever awarded the University.

Actually, the new project extends an Air Force research contract already held by the UK laboratory. About a year ago, the Air Force awarded the University a contract of approximately $5,000 for preliminary work with compartmented tanks.

Announcement of the new award was made by Dr. Karl O. Lange, associate director of the UK engineering experiment station, and Dr. Merl Baker, director of the Kentucky Research Foundation.
