Phone Excise

tional revenues during the Viet Nam emergency.

The new law reinstates the telephone tax at ten percent until April 1, 1968 when it will be reduced to 1 percent, and then completely eliminate it on January 1, 1969.

"Under the law, the higher tax rate will be applied on local and long distance telephone service bills dated March 25 and thereafter."

"If the government needs additional revenues beyond January, 1969, we hope that a solution other than continuing this discriminatory tax on telephone service can be found," C. A. Harris, local manager, said. "In the meantime, we will continue to collect the tax and pass it on to the government as we have done in the past.'

Federal excise taxes have been collected on long distance telephone service off and on since World War I, and on local service since 1941.
