Tomatoes can be used for great salsa, for garden-fresh taste in the winter

Do you have a bumper crop of tomatoes and don't know what to do with them? Do you want to carry the delicious taste of garden fresh vegetables into the cold winter months? Melba Burch, Nicholas County Extension Agent for Home Economics advises using tomatoes, green and banana peppers and onions from the garden to can salsa your family will enjoy all year long. She says that salsa has replaced catsup as the number one condiment. Homemade salsa is low calorie and contains no fat. It can be used many ways - baked over pork, chicken or fish, as a marinade for grilled entries or as a dip for vegetables or chips. It is easy and fast to can.

Canned Homemade Salsa

10 cups (about 6 pounds) peeled, cored, chopped red-ripe tomatoes

5 cups (about 2 pounds) seeded, chopped green peppers

5 cups (about 1 1/2 pounds) chopped onion

1 1/4 cups (about 1/2 pound) seeded, chopped banana peppers

1 14 cups (about 1/2 pound) seeded, chopped hot peppers

1 1/4 cuts cider vinegar

3 cloves garlic, minced

2 tablespoons cilantro, minced

3 teaspoons salt

Combine all ingredients in a large sauce pot. Bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Pour hot mixture into hot jars, leaving 1/4 inch head space. Adjust caps. Process 15 minutes in a boiling water bath. Yield: six pints.

Nutritional analysis: 25 calories, 1 gram protein, 6 grams carbohydrates, and 0 gram fat per 1/4 cup.

To increase the hotness or bite of this mild version, replace banana peppers with more hot peppers. You also can add one teaspoon of hot pepper sauce. REMEMBER TO ALWAYS WEAR RUBBER GLOVES WHEN WORKING WITH HOT PEPPERS BECAUSE THEY CONTAIN A CHEMICAL THAT WHEN EXPOSED TO AIR CAUSES A BURNING SENSATION ON THE SKIN SURFACE. If you forget to wear gloves, these procedures might be helpful. Soak your hands in warm soapy water for 30 minutes. Then soak them for 29 minutes in a solution of one cup vinegar and one quart of cold water. If you still have a burning sensation on your hands, coat them with vegetable alleviates the burning, run cold water over your hands, coat them with vegetable oil or spray with a benzocaine or xylocaine preparation. If neither procedure alleviates the burning, run cold water over your hands to keep air from getting to them. Time really is the only cure for the burning sensation felt from this common mistake.
