

PARK AND SUNDAYS
The first of the season is now upon us, and the weather is so favorable that it is a pity to stay at home. The park is open every day, and the grounds are so beautiful that it is a pleasure to walk through them. The children are so happy, and the old folks are so comfortable, that it is a pity to stay at home. FORCED TO MARRY.
A young man named John Smith, who had been engaged to a young woman named Mary Jones, was forced to marry her against his will. The story is as follows: John and Mary had been engaged for several years, and they were both very much in love. However, John's father, who was a very wealthy man, disapproved of the match. He wanted John to marry a girl of his own choosing, and he would not allow John to marry Mary. John was very much distressed, and he went to his mother for help. His mother was also very much distressed, and she did not know what to do. Finally, John decided to marry Mary, and he did so against his father's wishes. The marriage was a very unhappy one, and John and Mary were never able to get along.

THE GREAT CURE.
A young man named John Smith, who had been suffering from a very bad cough, was cured by a medicine called "The Great Cure." The story is as follows: John had been suffering from a very bad cough for several months. He had tried many different medicines, but none of them had helped. Finally, he decided to try "The Great Cure." He took a few bottles, and he was cured. He was very much pleased, and he told his friends about it. They all decided to try it, and they were all cured. "The Great Cure" is a very good medicine, and it is a pity that it is not more widely known.
