PLAN UNION OF ALL CHRISTIANS

LEADERS IN RELIGIOUS WORK ARE SEEKING CO-OPERATION.

PATTERNED ON SUCCESSFUL

Started by Episcopalians and Does Not Aim to Induce Others to Be Episcopalians—Not Like a Nature of Political Conventions.

New York.—Twenty-four American Episcopalians, 14 of them residents in this city, will be participants at Albany a plan to bring about organic union of the Christians of all the world, Protestant and Roman Catholic.

The Christian Unity Foundation is the name of the society. It is patterned upon the Rhodes scholarship, purpose being to place at the service of Christianity the same methods that are employed by the Rhodes trustees in research foundations.

The new society is unlike the Federal council organized here three years ago, which seeks to secure co-operation without disturbing organization. The Federal council is a clearing house and make simply one big religious body.

While started by Episcopalians, the venture does not aim to induce others to be Episcopalians.

The organization announces its plans to be private conference with Christians and the publication of pamphlets. Nothing of the nature of public agitation is to be undertaken. Publicity will be made to the official bodies of the churches, but nothing attempted will be along individual lines.

The scope of the Christian Foundation's task is seen when it is noted that there are 186 independent religious bodies in Continental United States. Their membership is 32,000,000, or almost exactly a third of the total population expected to be reported by the census taken in the year 1910.

Church property was valued at $1,257,272,000 in 1906, and this is a very big bar to unity when it is considered that in almost all instances thus far, when organic unity between bodies has been imminent, it has been theology that has proved the snag, but property, financial salaries and similar worldly interests.

The new foundation does not, however, enter with unity of Christians in America. It aims to bring about unity of Christians all over the world organic unity.

The council, among other things undertakes to stop "over-churching" in small communities, to aid the movement for a uniform law on marriage and divorce, to secure united Protestant influence for one day's rest in seven for working men, and similar lines.

There are now, America leading, two distinct American movements looking toward Christian union in the world.

ROOSEVELT GETS PRESENT

TENNESSEE DELEGATION PRESENTS MARBLE SLAB.

Col. Roosevelt Will Speak at Appalachian Exposition, Knoxville, Oct. 15.

Knoxville, Tenn.—When Theodore Roosevelt arrives in this city the end of the New York, says a dispatch, he will find a marble slab in the sidewalk waiting for him.

The marble slab was headed by Congressman H. W. Austin, of Knoxville, and carried by a dozen men. The slab was a block of Tennessee marble about two feet square and weighing about 100 pounds. Upon it was chiseled in a bold hand the words "Tennessee welcomes Theodore Roosevelt."

It was originally the intention of the Tennessee delegation to present the marble slab to Col. Roosevelt when he arrived from Africa, but as there was no opportunity for it it was left for a special trip to New York.

In addition to the Congressman there were in the delegation W. J. Hutcheson, president of the Tennessee Appalachian exposition, which is to be held in Knoxville October 15, Governor E. Helm of Kentucky, Carmi Thompson, of Nashville, Lloyd Chapman, Capt. H. S. Chamberlain, Colonel Lucius Desaussure, William Rule, of Knoxville.

The delegation asked Col. Roosevelt to come to Knoxville in the middle of October, when the exposition opens, and speak there. Colonel Roosevelt agreed to stop off at Knoxville on his return from Africa and speak at the exposition on October 15, according to a dispatch he sent to President Taft already he expects to leave Oct. 15.

REVIEW OF TRADE

Further Helped Distribution of Merchandise in Some Lines, and Improved Business in Others.

NEW YORK.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Activity in all its branches waits upon the supply of merchandise, the leading industrial and commercial enterprises are necessary midsummer dullness, and yet the distributive operations continue. There is an improved demand in many lines, and further advances in quotation of merchandise in some cases are inevitable, as is pointed out by the Bureau of Labor statistics in United States, in much better volume, which has been realized by the price advances, and the scarcity of merchandise, making for further advances at the bottom.
