LETTER FROM FRANKFORT.

FRANKFORT, Ky., December 31, 1877.

The Senate and House convened this morning at 12 o'clock with thirty-six Senators and ninety-nine Representatives in attendance, and only fourteen Radicals in that number. The Senate is composed of a fair sprinkling of Democrats, but the House is a perfect jewelry store with the sparkles, but running every little one it comes in sight of. The Democrats have a majority in legislative matters. The report of interest will be made on the choosers of the various gentlemen who are anxious to go to Washington. Judge Lindsay, General Cyrus Guide Williams and Governor McCreary were among the lookers-in pretty freely with the Democrats, but nothing very little one seems to be doing in the way of excitement
