KENTUCKY GLEANINGS

WHAT IS GOING ON IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE COMMONWEALTH

DIPPING OF SHEEP.

It Will Be Restricted to Those Exposed to Scabies

Frankfort.—Only sheep affected with or having been exposed to the scabies will be dipped. This opinion was given by Atty. Gen. Hewitt to the state board of agriculture in whose hands the quarantine will be lifted from the counties of Kentucky.

Dr. Payne reported that the state is in excellent condition with fewer sheep affected with Texas fever.

Judge Stone entered an order in the Franklin circuit court directing Secretary of State Prather to accept the amended articles of incorporation of the Louisville Parking Co., making a change in the name of the company without collecting the organization tax.

Suitable books for the inmates of the charitable and penal institutions of the state will be furnished by the State Library Commission. This decision was reached here at a recent meeting. Mrs. George Florence, of Louisville, was appointed to report on the Edgewood Farm and the Hopkinsville Industrial Reformatory. Mrs. Kelly on the Lakeland Asylum, and the State Librarian on the prison and the Ben-Mitchell Institute here, and the Lexington Asylum and Reform School at Greendale.

Good and suitable libraries within reach of every county jail school in Kentucky, at the two penitentiaries and at the state charitable institutions. This is the aim of the Kentucky library commission as formulated, and committees have been named to put into effect the plans. Ultimately, it is expected to have a good library within reach of every county jail.

The commission held a long meeting here, at which routine business was disposed of.

BIG CROWD AT FAIR.

Opening Day at Falmouth Was Attended by 5,000 People

Falmouth.—Between 4,000 and 5 persons attended the fair here. The day was an ideal one, and the management is delighted at the large crowd.

Judge John Lassing, Democratic nominee for appellate judge, his opponent, Judge Thomas Smith, of the House, Democratic nominee for contest judge, and Judge Lassing's son, Sam, were among the attendants.

Mrs. Ed Kinney, of Fordham, Paris, Bracken county and Grant county, Ky., were visitors.

In the free-for-all pace Cresco, owned by W. H. Cliff of Maysville, took the first three heats in easy fashion.

Long Acton, owned and driven by Charles Acton of Covington, was the third race handily.

Mrs. Henry, aged 24, mother of Miss Freda Henry, was knocked about unconsciously in the crowd in the floral hall and injured so that it is feared Mrs. Henry had her mother sent home in a conveyance, where Dr. McMillan attended her.

MUCH LAND NOT PATENTED.

Frankfort.—Although Kentucky is a comparatively young state, it has outside of the original thirteen states, there is much land in Kentucky that has not been patented. The land office has issued patents for the following persons: E. B. Smith, 58 acres, Perry county; D. P. Pearce, 80 acres, Wayne county; H. F. Robinson, 10 acres, Knox county; Jesse Ward, 10 acres, Magoffin county; Nola Kinne, 75 acres, Wayne county; J. W. Flood, 45 acres, Letcher county; I. L. Hopkins and John Hopkins, 22 acres, Knox county; G. Burdine and W. F. Lindsey, 110 acres, Pulaski county; W. A. Kinne and W. Winchester, 10 acres, Wayne county; James Hogan, 20 acres, Lee county.

PROMINENT FARMER DIES.

R. N. McMillan Passes Away in Monroe County.

Marrowbone.—After an illness of several months of paralysis R. N. McMillan, a farmer of Monroe county, died at his home at Ora at the age of 70 years. He was a first cousin and boyhood schoolmate of former Gov. Beckom McMillan, of Tennessee. A wife and several children and grandchildren survive.

Washington.—Postmasters appointed: Lackey, Knott county, Pentie W. Wells, vice Ed Wells, removed; McKee, Jackson county, Fannie McCallister, vice L. A. Reynolds, removed; Wylder, Morgan county, Tyree M. Sled, vice J. F. Reid, resigned.

Greenup.—The steamer Greenwood, a Cincinnati packet, struck a snag and sank at the bad bend in the river at Cattlesburg and was returning to Cincinnati. All the passengers were transferred to the steamer Grey Hound, for Portsmouth, O.

TO REFORM FREIGHT BILLS.

Commission to Find Out if Shippers Are Paying Too Much.

Frankfort.—The examination of freight bills from all parts of the state, especially the bills charged by the railroad company, will be conducted by the commission, with a view to ascertaining how much money has been paid by the railroads in excess of what the proper rates should be. It is stated that the railroad commission that one shipper has paid a certain railroad company more than one should have paid, during the last few years, and it is held that overcharges have been made by many railroads to a large number of shippers. If it is found, as is alleged, that overcharges have been made, the commission will force the railroads to refund the money.

Kentucky's railroad commission had decided to go to Chicago on its own account and, if need be, the commission has been instructed to go to the courts and has been authorized to employ attorneys to represent the state. The commission has been holding hearings for the past two weeks, but it is believed that a great many cases which have been defrauded without their knowing it, and have been forced to pay at higher rates than the law calls for. It is said that in many instances the overcharge is very small, but it does not notice the rate charged, and the shipper without knowing it, and he takes it for granted that the rate charged is the rate fixed by the law.

Negro Educators Want Position.—Negro educators from all over Kentucky and the south have been delegated to Prof. Blevins, superintendent of public instruction, with a view of appealing for the place in the state department of education and industrial training for colored people, at Frankfort. There has never been a negro on the board of education, and the candidates since the resignation of Professor Jones, of the board of regents of the school has had a list hundred from which to select the head of the school and to pick Prof. Blevins has not been in a hurry. The board of regents, of which Prof. Blevins is president, will meet shortly and will select the appointee. So far he has not made any offer of the position, and no man selected it.

TOLD OF CRIME AND DIED.

Wife at Work Telegraph Operator is Shot by Robbers.

Lexington.—As he lay in the little office of a railroad at New Richmond station, Ky., C. C. McKenney, aged 70, telegraph operator, was shot down by robbers who broke open the drawer and filched about $100 in money and valuable papers.

Ten minutes after McKenney had been shot down a passenger train on the Louisville & Nashville railroad came to a stop at the station and the conductor, Tom Hogan, of Lexington, was called into his arms and died in his arms.

McKenney was on the night trick, and was alone in the little station, which is not opposite any town, but is on the Ohio river. The robbers, who made their escape, but taken prisoners, who ferry across the Ohio.

REFUSED TO ACT AS JUDGE.

Frankfort.—Judge Cochran, of Maysville, refused to hear the injunction suit against the Nashville Racing Co. against the action of the state board of assessors and order restraining Judge Seven from hearing the case, and refused to appoint a judge to hear the case. Judge Seven, of Ashland, also refused to act. Judge Cochran, of Maysville, refused to hear the injunction suit against the Nashville Racing Co. against the action of the state board of assessors and order restraining Judge Seven from hearing the case, and refused to appoint a judge to hear the case. Judge Seven, of Ashland, also refused to act.

WANTS FRANCHISE.

Covington.—An ordinance was introduced in council giving the Covington Gas Light company the right to construct tracks and lay down the lower section of the city, ending at Second street, the company's corporation line. It was rumored that the company is asking an extension so that by construction of tracks on Scott street, Covington and Ludlow can be made to cross the C. & O. on Division street. The company does not, however, and contemplates such work, but it may serve to be the missing link in a loop running through Ludlow and Covington and Newport.

Shelbyville.—Judge W. Thomas, Jr., of this place, has not been heard from since he was identified with a photograph published in newspapers as the man found wandering in London recently. Thomas, who is in St. George's infirmary, London, was first supposed to be Richard Reardon, of Boston, who was reported lost in London. Mrs. E. Devaul said she thought he was considerably like her son, Michael Devaul, of Louisville. He says his wife and son are dead.

Lexington.—Judge Pompeo Cornett, of this county, has been appointed to be assistant counsel in the great series of suits growing out of the Rockefeller-Standard Oil company controversy, which are being tried in the art exchange here. It is understood he will act as assistant to the counsel for the commonwealth, who are Attorney General Hendrickson, of Louisville, and Judge Dawson, of Louisville. Cornett is now in the service of the commonwealth, being a member of the board of assessors in Louisville. He will continue with the board for the present, at least, for the unexpired term of Judge Lassing, who is a candidate for the appellate court judgeship. He says that the Democrats of the state should give their time and attention to the fight in the courts, and that he will be ready to do his part in the battle.

DEMOCRATS OPEN HEADQUARTERS

Chairman Allie W. Young in Charge at Louisville.

REGISTRATION IS SATISFACTORY

Col. W. P. Walton Predicts the Nomination of Senator McGreary for Governor by a Big Majority.

Frankfort, Ky.—Democratic state headquarters are in full blast in Louisville, with Circuit Judge Allie W. Young, of Mt. Sterling, the chairman, and Henry R. Prewitt, the secretary of the campaign committee, in charge. Judge Young and Mr. Prewitt are here and are very active in the matter of the Democratic nominees for congress and for judges of the court of appeals. Few men in the state are better acquainted with the political conditions of the various counties than Judge Young. Indeed, it is doubtful if there is a Democrat in the state who is the game of politics than he. He is in sympathy with the progressive wing of the Democratic congressional candidates and will do his part to nominate the appellate court judgeship. He says that the Democrats of the state should give their time and attention to the fight in the courts, and that he will be ready to do his part in the battle.

Judge Young is particularly anxious that the Democratic candidates for congress in the Ninth and Tenth districts, represent the wishes of the party, to be successful. For the past six years the Democrats have been beaten by Republicans, and Judge Young wants to see them redeemed and send Democratic congressmen to Washington. The Ninth district is now the Democratic nominee in the Ninth district, Judge Ben Johnson, of Paris, is a strong and hard fights and deserving Democrat.

Judge Young is of the opinion that this is a Democratic year, and he says that he has already found that there is a good deal of enthusiasm among those who do the work and who make up the rank and file. Judge Young is giving all his time and attention to the work, and he is doing it in a way that shows he is in touch with the Democrats in every county in the state, and has a good deal of faith in the ability of the Democrats who are calling party at state headquarters here. Mr. Prewitt is also giving Chairman Young his time and attention, and he is a tireless energetic over Democratic prospects.

Senator James S. McGreary arrived in Louisville from his home in Richmond, Madison county, last night and is in Western Kentucky. He is making a tour of the state in the interest of the nomination for governor of Congressman Ben Johnson, of Paris, and Judge Ben Johnson, of Paris, and Judge Ben Johnson, of Paris, and Judge
