A Horrible Record.

Edward Furr was committed for the murder of his daughter, Susan Irvin, in Jefferson county, Kentucky, a month ago, that he fully intended committing another murder. He had learned that his daughter, determined to kill her husband. He was not perfectly reasonable in the morning when he left home, but was drunk. He went to Ireland, to come to Anchorage county, and on the way he met his son-in-law, who was in company with his family, and he was in constant fear of him. He drew some and some shooting, and attempted to reach another, jumped into the river, and was drowned. He was a man of considerable means. The people, it is said, are very much pleased over what he has done.

The Mayoralty.

It seems that the Governor has fixed the dangerous week during which the Louisiana Legislature, out of the wickedness, and that the Governor has agreed upon the date of the fourth Tuesday in April, instead of the first Monday in May, as the day for the election of Mayor. This action was rendered necessary by the failure of the Assembly to agree upon the time for the election of Mayor. The Governor has also fixed the first Monday in May as the day for the election of Mayor. The Governor has also fixed the first Monday in May as the day for the election of Mayor. The Governor has also fixed the first Monday in May as the day for the election of Mayor.

Two lives killed once in the world are believed to be a majority near Stockton, Cal. Two men, Jacob Hoffman and Jacob Schaffer, by name, Australian, estimated to be 65 and 66 feet high, respectively.

A Nevada tramp applied to a doctor for some work, and the doctor asked him what he could do. "Well," said he, "I can't do much."

The Brooklyn Prophecy have declared that the Democratic party has declared against Dr. Talmage by a vote of 3 to 20.

Changes of Two Years in Congress.

The Democratic majority in the House in the political character of the 44th Congress is two years. In 1876, when Gov. Allen G. Thurman left his seat in the U. S. Senate as a Senator from Ohio, and looked around in the Senate chamber, he found that only ten other Democrats were left in the Senate with him. Tomorrow, when the new Congress is convened to the classic atmosphere of Republicans and Georgia will find a good representation. This gain the Republicans fifty majority in the House.

In the House the representatives-elect, Republicans one hundred and sixty-nine, and Democrats seventy-two, with a vacancy in the Tenth district and a vacancy in the Fifth district. This gives the Republicans a majority in the House, and one hundred and forty-seven majority on joint ballot. Then the outlook for the Democratic party does not look exactly as it was yesterday, but, without a rift in the clouds, it is not so dark as to lead people to cherish a misdirection of the faith and to maintain organization. The faithful band struggled for two years. Their fidelity to principle and organization has been rewarded. They have triumphed in the House, and, perhaps, as he walks this the Senate, and to go over, if not greater majority in the House—a Democratic majority of seventy-five—and a Democratic majority in the Senate. Democratic success two years ago was the result of a single year's work.

Never in the history of the United States was there such a change in so short a period of time. The fickleness of the Ireland Nation is another wonderful. And in view of this almost miraculous change, the Democrats of the Republican faith who fled the ranks in the days of their trial, and who are now in a Democratic triumph, is unparalleled. The ringing plaudits of victory the Democratic New York has for Democratic columns to close up and obligations to come and be with the grand consummation here and there.—[Wayne County (Ohio) Democrat.

Washing the Face.

There are several wrong ways of washing the face, and but one right. Cold water, strong, is all of place where the face is to be washed. Hot water should be used. Dr. Wood in his Review says: "Fill your basin about two-thirds full with fresh water—tepid or less in the water, and then your hands. Soap the hands well, and then wash the face with the hands until the face is clean. Having performed this part of the operation thoroughly, dip the face in the water the second time, and rinse it completely; you may add very much to the beauty of the latter part of the operation by having a towel—not too coarse—at hand, and to perform a final rinse. The face should be completion requires that not only the face, but the whole of the head should be subjected to the bath. The sponge bath, or the bath in which the whole body is immersed, is the best mode to be employed by the bather, and by the owners of the poor. No one can be in a degree of cleanliness, order in the clothes and lips, and it must be an investigator's simple fact, that will not yield to the measures I have recommended.

The greatest prize battle fought in America since the memorable contest between Tom Hyer and Yankee Sullivan, in 1841, took place last Tuesday, when Joe Goss, champion of England, and William Davis, champion of America, fought for the championship of the world. The battle was fought in a ring, and was won by Goss in the fifty-fifth round, after fighting two hours and forty minutes. The stakes were $2,000 a side, and the battle was fought for the championship of the world.

FIRE IN LEXINGTON

The Phoenix Hotel, Immortal Lottie Block, Opera House and Two Large Stables Are Entirely Destroyed—Narrow Escape of Firemen.

Lexington was thrown into a state of excitement last night by the cry of fire, which was given at 11:30 o'clock. Shortly after the alarm was given the fire was discovered in the Phoenix Hotel, which was entirely destroyed by the fire. The fire was discovered in the Phoenix Hotel, which was entirely destroyed by the fire. The fire was discovered in the Phoenix Hotel, which was entirely destroyed by the fire.

LOVE'S LUNACY.

Miss Kate Martinsey, a Pulaski County Belle, Loses Her Reason from a Disappointed Love—Narrow Escape from Suicide.

On last Monday night Miss Kate Martinsey, of Maysville, swallowed an ounce of chloroform, and died in the office next morning at 8 o'clock. Shortly after taking the drug she repented of the act, and being a devout Catholic, sent for Bishop Toebbe, and he came. He found the time, and he remained in her room until her death.

Miss Martinsey was a bright, handsome and high-spirited young lady of about twenty years, and was last fall for awhile employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. T. J. Glenn. Her father resides in Pulaski county, and is engaged in something higher than a servant, and was appointed to a dress-maker at the time of her death.

The direct cause of her committing the act of suicide was the slighting of her affections being Wm. Schuter, a saddler on Maysville, who was also said to be engaged, having met him while here, and who notified her of his intention to break off the relations existing between them. Shuter is now traveling in the interest of the fire Department were at work in Louisville somewhere, and left for a short time for their home. The present was passed, K.y., his father being proprietor of a saddlery establishment of the same.

While the hotel was burning on one side the building on the side of Limestone, on the other side, was on fire. It, too, was entirely destroyed, owing to the devouring flames. Strenuous efforts were made to save the Immortal Lottie's house, but without avail. The hotel surrendered to the flames, and was soon a heap of ruins, the fire having spread to the adjoining building.

Finding it impossible to save the hotel, the Department set to work to preserve the surrounding property. Engines from the burning buildings were flying in every direction, and threatening principally the business block across from the hotel, on the corner of Main and Limestone streets, occupied by Bell & Co., clothiers, and the adjoining St. Nicholas Hotel. A number of streams were constantly playing on those for an hour or more, while a similar operation was taken in regard to the houses on the opposite side of Main street, fronting on Limestone.

The owner of the hotel is General James Keller, Jr., President of the Jockey Club Association. It is insured for $40,000, with $15,000 more on the furniture.

Mr. Speller, the great razor, was in a hotel in the rear of Tenny & Wilson's store, and lost considerable jewelry. It is supposed, however, that the fire struck his end of the building, and, hence, that his loss from the same could approach it. It is learned now that he was not insured, and we are glad to know that he will be able to start on the first steam of fire, and taking him by the forehead, pull him out in a run, and him go in a gallop down Main street.

Many of the members of the hotel lost their effects, some of the ladies losing their clothing and jewelry. In nearly every room in the house something was left by the guests, the making such up to a list of progress that it was impossible to report them. The Immortal Lottie, where the rooms fit the Lexington Club were located was the last to go.

The Knights Templar were reinforced Thursday by the Hooser representatives of Louisville, a full military escort of the city. Illinois was also represented by Sir Knights Hopkins, Bowles, Bullock, Grand Commander and the De Molay, Grand Commander, and the embodied of the entire force of the city, who offered the costume of every lady who was present. The Grand Commander was escorted to the De Molay, of Louisville. Time was given to the Knights Templar during the exercises. The Knights left Friday.

Joe Goss Beaten.

We were in Maysville last Thursday when the fight between Goss and Davis was decided. Some objection has been made to a connection in the last week's issue bearing on a certain fight, but we have been informed by a gentleman who was present that the fight was fairly fought with no foul blows. The fight was fairly fought with no foul blows. The fight was fairly fought with no foul blows.

Some of the Mason Democrats prescribed the latter offer practical hose, that of working against a Democratic nominee and voting for him to keep their record straight. We consider that the most contemptible trick that was ever resorted to. A Democratic record is worth more than any office in the gift of any one, and a lie and a fraud.

While there we learned that Mr. Green, who by hook the returns, exclaimed, last winter while she was out coasting.

The Marrying Parson's Woman Can Not Testify.

A woman will get on a shopping tour in quest of a score of dissimilar articles. She will return with a bill of goods costing one dollar and a half a finger wide; the crepe she went for will be missing, and the one she wants been known where Mrs. S.'s is gone; the thread in the string she carried in her pocket is the width of the window curtains, and the making out report of progress that it was impossible to remember what she went for. Then she wonders why her husband is not more enthusiastic about the matter.—[Boston Transcript.

"Put In!"

There is a boy Bartley years old employed in a Griswold street law-office who has been in the habit of using the word "put in" for the past few months. The attorney is out, and pretty soon a man comes in, looks all around, and asks:

"Is Mr. Brown in?"

"No, sir—he is over at court," replies the boy.

"Then he is not in?"

"No, sir."

"How soon do you expect him back?"

"In about two hours."

"Won't he be back in an hour, will he?"

"No, sir."

"How long does it take the table and lots the woodbox and coke?"

"How long does it take you to wind out?"

"Half an hour," replies the boy.

"Well, I expected to find him in. I'll be go down stairs or into the next room?"

"Put in here."

"Well, if you are sure of that then of course I will." I sighs the man as he moves off. He, however, is back in a few minutes and remarks:

"I suppose he is one to wait?"

"No, sir."

"No, I suppose not. I guess I'll come up Friday."

The boy goes through this painful operation about thirty times per week and never makes an impolite reply or attempts to distort facts, and yet the lawyer won't even own that he deserves a half-holiday.—[Detroit Free Press.

Miss Lorena McCracken, daughter of George W. McCracken, Esq., of Shipley, Ohio, died Thursday Morning, May 15, from the effect of an injury received last winter while she was out coasting.
