THE TOBACCO "CUT-OUT"

Bourbon county growers favor a cut-out of the tobacco crop next year. The sentiment, we understand, is strongly in favor of a cut-out in some other fashion. As far as we have been able to observe, there has been here no crystallization of sentiment for the cut-out, or for that matter, against it.

In our opinion it is a matter of policy not to be approached hastily. There can be little doubt that if a successful cut-out can be effected, it will prove of inestimable ultimate benefit to the tobacco grower.

And yet the elimination of a crop of tobacco is too serious a matter to too many people to be decided upon hastily. The accomplishment of a conclusion, moral, social or political means hardship to many, suffering to some, sacrifice in a measure at least, to all. It means unemployed, colonies of "tenant-ry" in every county grower, when a crop is passed.

For these reasons, The Mercury feels that the suggestion of a cut-out should come from the headquarters of the Association. We have faith in the ability of the men who are the executive heads of The Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, and when they shall have decided that the elimination of next year's tobacco crop is advisable, it will be soon enough to give the matter serious consideration.

A WORD OF WELCOME

No matter what one's views may be in regard to the question of Prohibition and its efficacy in accomplishing the results intended, one must admire the spirit of devotion to a cause which has animated the good women of the W. C. T. U. in their long and tireless fight against the evils of drink.

That alcoholic drink, misused—and eventually it is misused in the majority of cases—is a curse, no one may gainsay. More than when the saloon ruled, it touches indirectly as the result of her love for the victim.

Woman, being what God has made her, will fight for her home always, and it is this spirit that ever must arise in her battle against a traffic which she believes endangers her home and her children.

There may be professional Prohibitionists who are not deserving of respect, but we have yet to hear anyone question the sincerity of purpose of those who constitute the W. C. T. U. In fact we have heard more than one bitter partisan of the other side of the question express a respect for the late president of the union—Mrs. Frances Beauchamp.

Sincere, disinterested devotion to a cause one believes to be right evokes the admiration of all, even those who believe what it may.

The Mercury joins with the citizens of Carlisle and Nicholas county in extending a hearty welcome to the good women of the W. C. T. U.

A STATE REGISTRATION LAW

(Elizabethtown News)

The last Legislature passed a State registration law by a strict party vote, the Democrats being for it and the Republicans against it. The effect of the statute formed after the law of Virginia which has been in force for many years, was to drop 11 legal things. It largely cause about an amount of the registrations of the Presidential election from several of the Eastern districts and counties in which continued the Democratic leaders of the Legislature, and it was generally protected from illegal voting and from the voting of thousands of foreigners, who where not naturalized citizens by a State registration law.

Following the election this fall we expect to see the effect for a State registration law to become stronger than it was two years ago among Democrats at least. If the Legislature is Democratic, and the chances probabilities are that it will be, a law will doubtless be framed leaving out the features which made the Court of Appeals declare the former registration law unconstitutional. One of the principal objections urged by the Republicans against the law by many Democrats against State registration was the cost of the registration. The News would support a plan which would leave the cost of registration out of the question, and would support a State registration law that would be free from the objections urged against the former law. If the Democratic party not more than 50 per cent of the registration, it has not been general registration day and the cost of registration would have been at least ninety per cent of the cost of the election.

Of course a State registration law would be opposed by those who do not favor both political parties to nominate candidates for the offices of the State. A large part of the Republican party favors the direct primary plan of nomination, after the experience they received from the Bosses in the Republican party in Lexington. It would be unnecessary, to have State registration laws, if for the last twenty years, the date being fixed for the primary election, the Bosses knew that the State tickets are nominated by the party organizations. Of course it would be made in the act for the Independents and members of other parties to participate in the primaries.

Good government generally suffers more from lack of interest in the primary than from any other cause in the general election. No harm can come from a State registration law. Citizens register on primary election day, and if the Democratic party is strong enough to carry the State, other parties were the choice of the Democrats in the primary election, participate. Such a law would not prevent that the primary election be utilized absolutely by the legal voters, but it would also insure that only such statutes were made the same way.

FROM VACATION TO SCHOOL

When school opens in the fall, the real children that have been playing or working all the Summer will be startled rather carefully. The change from a day of freedom to a day of seven or more hours of confinement and from the easy life of the Summer under a few generations are taken for a long time. The first day of school day might well be broken up into periods of play and periods of periods and the children given the choice of playing or working or of to eat less heartily at stated four periods. Of course it is not to be to that the physical machine, subject to such a change, is so hardy as to shave to adjust itself.

Moreover, the first month of school is dangerous and children from different homes may mean bringing in germs of some contagious disease, fever or other disease. Proper food and clothing for the children will go far to keep away many from being exposed to such. The clothes should be the most healthful place or the other of our higher institutions of learning.

MORGAN'S MEN REUNION CLOSES WITH CAMPFIRE

W. H. Robb, of Helena, Promoted to President of Third Day's Session at Estill Springs

LOCAL MAN LIFE SECRETARY

With a campfire last Wednesday night, at which members of the "Atrocius Club" had their opportunities, the twenty-fifth reunion of the famous cavalry brigade commanded by General John Hunt Morgan came to an end, and an informal reunion was held Thursday.

It was unanimously voted to hold the next meeting off the association at Estill Springs.

The Association passed a resolution endorsing the action of the Southern Co-operative Association.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—W. H. Robb, Helena, Station.

First Vice-President—Riley Hunt Sturm, Georgetown.

Second Vice President — J. E. Abraham, Louisville.

Third Vice President — Andrew Egnaulon, Louisville.

Fourth Vice President — George B. Taylor, Nicholas-ville; C. H. Meng, Nicholasville; Walter Mathews, Mt. H. Hagyard, Georgetown; Dr. Bell, Lexington, and the latter succeeding the late Alex M. Scott, of Frankfort.

Secretary—Horace M. Taylor and Treasurer—Harvey B. Fellows.

The body of Millard Fillmore lies in state in Buffalo, New York.

On motion of N. B. Deatherage the veterans voted to be the guests of Wilmont W. H. Robb for one day at some time in the future.

The Association passed a resolution that the Secretary of Third Day's reunion be authorized to write the veterans of the regiment, and have them notified of the time and place of the reunion.

Of course a State registration law would be opposed by those who do not favor both political parties to nominate candidates for the offices of the State. A large part of the Republican party favors the direct primary plan of nomination, after the experience they received from the Bosses in the Republican party in Lexington. It would be unnecessary, to have State registration laws, if for the last twenty years, the date being fixed for the primary election, the Bosses knew that the State tickets are nominated by the party organizations. Of course it would be made in the act for the Independents and members of other parties to participate in the primaries.

Good government generally suffers more from lack of interest in the primary than from any other cause in the general election. No harm can come from a State registration law. Citizens register on primary election day, and if the Democratic party is strong enough to carry the State, other parties were the choice of the Democrats in the primary election, participate. Such a law would not prevent that the primary election be utilized absolutely by the legal voters, but it would also insure that only such statutes were made the same way.

CLOTHING FOR THE INFANT AND CHILD

The infant's clothes are much more simple and dainty today than ever before. The little garments are made of many laces, embroideries and other dainty trimmings, and are made for one one's wardrobe. The quality of the material used is a great deal owing to one's means; but at no time should extravagance be indulged in in one's clothes. The keynote of the curriculum of clothes for the infant is daintiness and simplicity. Be careful not to make babies look like little women. Let the room in which to grow. Its first clothes should be dainty and pretty. Pretty arms and a lot of clothes necessary to the little visitor are supplied with letters to the expectant mother, and will be sent to any mother if one will write directly to the Bureau of Child Hygiene.

The clothes of the toddler or preschool child should always be dainty and simple. The keynote of the curriculum of clothes for the toddler is simplicity. Actually such forecasts are not based on sound principles and therefore are without value when observed. Accurate prediction of weather conditions a year in advance can not be made for plans in general because of the many laws on which to base them. An exception to this statement is found in the case of forecasting the strength of the monsoons in the Indies, of which the summer rains of that country are dependent. These forecast while not claiming" to be infallible, give in general terms information as to whether the rainfall will be above, below, or approximately normal for the summer months. They are therefore, valuable.

The farmer who attempts to carry on his business with only whatever forecasts to guide him must necessarily take some risks, and by following them. Similarly, forecasts of weather and temperature for a long time in advance published in the newspapers should be disregarded in planning operations in agriculture. When daily weather maps of the country are made the first step at arriving at the principles of seasonal weather forecasting will be possible.

CANTRILL BETTER

The managing editor of the Lexington Leader stated to the Mercury, in a telephone conversation at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, that latest reports concerning the health of Mr. J. Campbell Cantrill were good. The Mercury is regard to this unfortunate occurrence.

While regretting the fact that in justice to our readers, it has been necessary to give publicity to the misfortune of this Nicholas county girl, The Mercury has endeavored to handle the case in a sympathetic manner. Mr. Muloe's letter follows:

"The case of Miss Anderson is deplorable, to say the least. Had she fallen into the hands of the Salvation Army or some of young women have, she would have been protected from any notoriety. Her instance is but one of thousands that have been sidetrack by the Army, among them many from small towns.

"I have written many stories and have made public talks, warning young women against leaving their homes to go to large cities. It is a serious mistake that many young girls make.

"As I have said before, she is pitiful, and I hope her case will be considered as the Salvation Army finds it, and that Miss Anderson may live a helping hand. Do not turn her over to the mercies of the Salvation Army in "A Man, May Be Down, But He Can Get Up." It is be the same as any woman.

"The Army desires it give its best service to God and humanity in every instance. Miss Anderson is a reserve a community, let us know.

"All of our cases are sidetrack, but learn the way to the right path."
