THE COUNTY AGENT'S DEPARTMENT

Notes on the Kentucky Agricultural Situation

This is the time of year when agriculture is looking forward and laying plans for the coming season. What lines should be stressed? What lines need to be cared up on? Many factors are unknown and no way has been discovered of forecasting future market events with precision. There are, however, stress that show which way the wind is blowing.

Tobacco is an important cash crop. What is the outlook? The 1955 crop of burley tobacco was considerably reduced by weather conditions. With a favorable season, the production likely would have continued above market requirements such as was true for the three previous crops. A surplus of burley still exists and the business-like thing for the burley grower to do is to slow up on production until things are back in normal balance. An annual production around 250 million pounds would seem about in line with market needs. Because of the present surplus, somewhat smaller crops are in order until the proper balance is established.

Much has been heard this year about a corn surplus. Corn surpluses of the past have been overcome by increased livestock operations. This outlook is already under way. In planning for this year's corn crop it should be kept in mind that corn is not primarily a cash crop. Most of it is fed on the farm. The prices of livestock determine the return for corn for most growers. Favorable hog prices are stimulating hog production. Increased feeding requirements may therefore be exported for the 1956 corn crop. The market outlook for the coming crop appears better than for the 1955 crop at the time last year. Farmers who grow corn for the market are interested in this. Farmers who grow it for feed will plan their acreage on the basis of their needs. The variations in corn crops are due to weather conditions more that to acreage.

Hog producers are responding to the favorable hog prices and the relationship between corn and hog prices. Farmers should go slow in planning increased livestock operations from now on. The pig survey of the Federal Department suggests only a small increase in the number of pigs to be farrowed this spring, but as the Department suggests, the favorable prices may have caused a greater increase than that indicated by the December 1 survey. Hog prices probably will continue favorable at least until fall. What they will be in the fall and in 1957 depends upon the expansion which takes place. Last spring appeared to be a more favorable time for expansion in hogs than this spring. Increasing demands for corn also probably will produce a less favorable relationship for feeding pigs next fall than it did in 1956. This has been true during recent months. In the case of beef cattle, conditions appear favorable. Indications are that the beef cycle is in the upward swing and, if that is the case, the cattle market should show strength for the next several years.

Lamb prices this season likely will continue good. If there should be any serious disturbance in lamb born, the demand might be affected considerably. As long as the present employment conditions continue it seems satisfactory the outlook for lambs likely will be satisfactory. The general feeling seems to be that business will remain good at least for the next few months.

The dairy outlook is satisfactory. Prices for dairy products and feed have stimulated production somewhat in recent months. The enough holdings of butter on January 1, were considerably below last year's figure and this seemed to show the five-year average. The development of drying by a few producers is usually regarded as desirable from more standpoints.

While an abnormal expansion would be undesirable, some increase in production in dairying in Kentucky would be a source of income would appear justified. Improvements in the Kentucky market tend to create some shifting away from dairying and other enterprises in some parts of the country. This helps the dairy products market. Dairying is not a line for farmers to jump in and out of. Farmers who take up dairying should go in on the basis of the long-time outlook rather than on the short-time one. Some expansion may be made when markets are favorable and some curtailment when outlets are unsatisfactory but the successful dairy farmer stays with the game. The long-time outlook in dairying appears good.

The storage stocks of eggs on January 1 were above those of last year and above the five-year average. That affects the immediate situation. Weather conditions from now until mid-spring likely will have considerable effect on the market. The demand for poultry has continued good and likely will as long as weather conditions are favorable as at present. Like in the case of dairy products, the future and economical producer will continue to find poultry worth while.

Poultry Pointers For January 1956

Hatching time will soon be here; have you made plans for it? By all means the breeding pens should be mated as soon as possible. The pens should be mated three weeks before hatching eggs are saved, and if your hens haven't crossed off it means they eggs must be set. Mate only your best hens, those of good vigorous male. Eight to twelve hens of general-purpose breeds and ten to fifteen hens of smaller breeds may be mated to one male bird.

Due to various causes the cost of reproducing the flock runs high. One of the main causes however, is poor hatchability. This may be due to lack of vigor in the breeding stock, improper feeding of the breeders or carelessness in the operation of the incubator. These causes may be removed by using nothing but vigorous breeders and giving them the proper feeds and using care in operating the incubator. Birds in the breeding pen should be fed a balanced ration consisting of grain, meat and oyster shell. They should have green feed in addition. Experiments have proven that hatchability may be increased by feeding green feed. Sprouted oats fed at the rate of 5 pounds of dry oats to each 100 hens is a very satisfactory green feed. They should be fed when the sprouts are 1-4 to 1-2 inch high. Silage, cabbage, clover or alfalfa leaves may be used as a source of green feed. Nothing can beat green rye. If you have a patch near the chicken quarters, allow the hens to range in it. You will get more hatchable eggs if you provide a good range for the breeders. Let the breeders run out in the outdoor, as both sunshine and exercise are essential in the production of good hatchable eggs.

Better take time now to look over your incubator to see that all parts are in working order. If any parts are out of order now is the time to fix them. If you are in doubt about the accuracy of the thermometer, test it with a clinical thermometer and know that it registers correctly.

Cincinnati and northern Kentucky cities suffered a gas famine several hours Sunday when a Indiana natural gas line broke a 20-inch section in Ripley county.

Arthur Bell, 21, was found dead in the kitchen of his home in Paducah with a bullet through his head, thought to have been accidentally inflicted when he dropped his pistol to the floor.

Orville Merchant, 18, of Garrard county, was badly scalded about the face and head Sunday when he lifted the radiator cap of an overheated car he was driving, the steam striking him in the face.

An American Legion emergency squad, composed of eight world war veterans, has been formed by the Versailles Legion post, and will be available at the call of county or city officials in emergencies.

Thomas C. Underwood, 52, editor of the Hopkinsville New Era, and one of the best known newspaper men in Kentucky, died at his home in Hopkinsville last week, following an illness of two weeks with pneumonia.

Sherman Roberts was lodged in jail at Stanford Sunday charged with shooting his wife at their home near Preachersville, Lincoln county. The shooting was the result of an estrangement. The woman may recover.

Fourteen hogs have caused a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of George Clark, of Jules Spain, Lexington youths, charged with murder in connection with the killing of William Nelson Fair in Lexington Dec. 26.

Charles Keith, railroad watchman at Ashland, reached his life in two from death beneath the wheels of a freight train. Grace Gilmore, 20, who later declared she was planning to commit suicide, was rescued from her out of the path of the train.

With the party out but thirty minutes, Eli Jackson, negro, was sentenced to the electric chair by a county in circuit court at Richmond Saturday for the murder of Eli Flowers, negro. Jackson killed Flowers a month before after he had tortured him for more than an hour with a pistol against his side he had previously killed two other persons.

GET FIGURES READY

Though the filing of income tax returns this year is delayed, pending enactment of the law passed act now before the senate, Robert H. Lucas, Collector of Internal Revenue for Kentucky, issued a statement advising taxpayers to compute their incomes and be ready to file returns upon receipt of blanks.

OLDEST EXECUTIONER DEAD

The world's oldest executioner, William Christopher Patterson, who killed one woman and 53 men, including Leon Czolgosz, murderer of President McKinley, in their deaths in Auburn, N. Y., prison, died last week. Patterson, who was 84 years old, was the first executioner to make use of the electric chair. He also executed Mary Farmer, the first woman to die in Sing Sing.

BRUTAL NEGRO KILLS THREE MEMBERS OF FAMILY

Harris and his trial was set for next Tuesday, Feb. 6.

The revolting horror of the crime and the brutality of the murders were declared by Mrs. Bryant to Sheriff H. Fuller when she detailed the circumstances surrounding the massacre of her two children and her husband and the assault upon herself.

Mrs. Bryant told the sheriff that the first shot, fired returning to their little home after a visit to friends, was followed by the shot that killed her husband, and which all but severed the head from the body.

"We had just returned and my husband had driven out of the car," she told the sheriff, "when an explosion which my husband thought was a blowout of the car attracted his attention. He walked towards the coalhouse and the negro stepped from behind the corner of the house and shot him down.

"He then ordered me out of the car and as my little girl was pleading with him not to kill Daddy, he turned and blew her head off with the shotgun.

"Nearly a half hour later, he ordered me out of the car and made me have to kill us all or the sheriff would get him. I pleaded with him to have my little boy as he would be too upset to do it himself.

"With this he shot at me but missed and I ran to the house and I fell to the floor. I didn't think much of what occurred after that, but I could see him beating my little boy over the head with some thing.

"Then he came to me and took off my shoes and clothes, raising my limbs to see if I was dead. I held my breath and he took my money, he returned to where I was lying and pulling me across the face and kicked me. I laid there for more than a half hour, fearful that he still was in the house and realizing that perhaps I was dying. I summoned all my strength and walked across the fields to the home of Mack Williams where I told what had happened.

"I just wanted to tell what had happened and then I would die peacefully." Sheriff Fuller quoted her as saying.

NERVES ARE UNSTRUNG!

Carlisle Folks Should Find The Cause And Relief Is Sure

Are you all worn out? Feel tired, nervous, half-sick? Do you have a constant headache, dizzy twinges or pain, too, with daily spells and so-called "nervous" disorders? Then there's cause for worry and more cause to give your weakness the prompt help. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic for kidney weak-ness.

Carlisle folks recommend Doan's for just such troubles.

Mrs. W. Ginn, 402 E. Main St., Carlisle, says: "I ached nearly all the time and my back made me suffer great dull pains. I felt weak, sharp, stinging pains darted across my kidneys. Sometimes the urine was so sore and burn I had all I could do to get about my work. I felt nervous, depressed and all worn-out. My kidneys were disordered also. After using three or four boxes of Doan's Pills, I was relieved."

If A Railroad Prospers
It Is Because It Has Helped Its Territory To Prosper

This bulletin is quoted practically verbatim from a recent issue of Nation's Business. It is a fine piece of work. It is both factual facts and I do. It is a message in way which should interest you.

"Railroad Blood Stretching far and wide, they help to tie the nation in closer bonds.

Florida gets its blood from Georgia, where lately Oregon sawmillers keep warm with Mississippi woodsmen, and Pennsylvania miners thrill to the yarns the wheat belt seeks shelter under Oregon and Alabama lumber. Blood stretches from Michigan to Mississippi, from prairies for coffee with Louisiana sugar—Regardless of rail, the members of the nation fill their pipes with Kentucky and Tennessee grown tobacco—transported by rail.

This is more than a job of fetching and carrying. It is a job of tying together the nation's resources and people. It is a work that intimately links the well-being of the people with the well-being of the railroads—for if a railroad prospers it is because that railroad has helped its territory to prosper.

Charges have this week, as in the past, been made that railroad earnings are too or subject against the ... Yet Interstate Commerce Commission ... Transportation is essential to national prosperity.
