ESTABLISHED 1867

CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1926

VOL. LIX. NUMBER 23

OFFICIAL CALL FOR ELECTION IS ISSUED

$75,000 Road Bond Issue to Be Submitted to Voters On July 17th

TO COMPLETE 15.2 MILES

In this issue of The Mercury Sheriff L. B. Barton has issued formal notice of the special election to be held in Nicholas county on Saturday, July 17, at which time the proposition of issuing $75,000 in bonds with which to complete two state highway projects in the county will be voted on. The roads to be completed are the Headquarters road, 6.2 miles, and the Myers Station road, 9 miles.

It is estimated that the cost of constructing these two roads which total 15.2 miles, will be $100,000, three-fourths of which will be furnished by the State Highway Commission.

With the exception of a few miles of the Moorefield road these are the only roads in Nicholas county included in the state highway project which have not already been completed and taken over by the State Highway Commission. The remainder of the road system, next to the Bath county line can be completed without a bond issue, it is said. This road will be reconstructed from the Bath county line to Moorefield this summer, a contract having already been let for this state for this work.

Little interest is being manifested in the bond issue so far. Much so, in fact, that it is feared that the completion of the state highway projects in the county will be delayed for a year or more unless the voters of the county vote the bonds necessary for roads and bridges in Nicholas county. It requires three-fifths of the votes cast for the construction and maintenance of the road bonds, the proceeds to be used in the construction of the roads. With all of the state roads completed and turned over to the state for maintenance, the entire $25,000 would be left to be applied to the side roads.

CARLISLE WITHOUT MILL

Is Without Flour Mill For First Time, Perhaps, in History

For the first time, perhaps, since the establishment of Carlisle, this town is without a flour mill. U. M. Swinford, receiver for the Carlisle Milling Company, Saturday afternoon sold at public auction Saturday, the building and grounds, equipment, etc. belonging to the company and has about sold the stock. Several days ago the building and grounds were sold to the Carlisle Deposit Bank.

Mr. Swinford was appointed receiver of the mill by direct order the business, borrowing the town without a mill. Several months ago Carlisle's other flour mill, owned by C. B. Ingels, was closed down.

Uncertainty of the wheat market, coupled with keen competition from mills in large cities, has almost put the mills in the small towns out of business. It is the first time in the history of the Carlisle mill, which had a century ago was one of the most important in the county.

TEST FOR CARLISLE POSTMASTER CALLED

Civil Service Commission is Requested to Hold Quiz; No Date Set

TWO MEN WANT PLACE

The Civil Service Commission has been requested to call an examination for applicants for the Postmastership at Carlisle, according to announcement made at Washington last week. The date for the examination has not been set, but it is believed it will be called within the next few weeks.

There are only two announced candidates for the place. Postmaster Wyatt M. Insko, whose term expired several weeks ago, is an applicant for reappointment. H. B. Bryson, former postmaster and chairman of the Republican county committee, is also a candidate.

LANDMARK REMOVED

Old O'l Lamp Post in Front of City Store Torn Down

The construction of a new pavement in front of the City Store this week necessitated the removal of the last of the old lamp posts, which has weathered the storms of many seasons, and has been a familiar land-mark.

The pole, of cast iron with highly ornamental design, was constructed in the summer of 1884, following a fire which destroyed almost the entire block. Men who are now fathers and grandfathers played marbles and other childish games by the light of the old lamp which stood on the pole. Many has been the swapper, slowly working his way home in the "wee sma' hours, in the pre-Volstead days, who has been able to "get his bearings" by clinging to the sturdy pole for a few seconds.

Although electric lights made the pole no longer necessary, it has never been removed, and its removal now brings a touch of pathos.

FIRST TOWN LOT SALE HELD IN CARLISLE ON JUNE 15, 1816

Next Tuesday Will be the 110th Anniversary of the Date Set Toward Establishment

Next Tuesday, June 15, marks the 110th anniversary of the first sale of town lots in Carlisle, a date having been held on June 15, 1816.

Nicholas was founded into a county in 1799 from Bourbon and Mason counties. The first county seat was established at Bedinger's Mill, was later moved to Carlisle, where it remained until 1818.

About 1816 the farmers living along Hinkston and Brushy Fork creeks decided that the time is ripe for the county seat and demanded that it be more centrally located. These rumblings of discontent became so loud and so near the years rolled on, and finally it was brought to the attention of the Kentucky legislature in 1815. The legislature passed an act authorizing the removal of the county seat to a more central point and appointed commissioners to select a location.

The commissioners inspected various sites, but been several years, lots were laid out in streets, lots were sold, the new town was thrown open for the first regular sale, which was held June 15, 1816.

The Kinnert orchard was donated by the county as a site for the court house.

An agreement was reached whereby Mr. Kinnert was to receive the proceeds of the sale of half the lots for his land. Sales of the lots started on June 15 and continued for several days until all had been disposed of. James Thompson had been appointed by the town board to survey and lay off the town. Michael Kinnert was appointed voter and also licensed the lots.

The original streets were: Walnut, Second, Main Cross, Elm and Sycamore, running north and south, and North, Mulberry, Main, Fourth and South Water, running east and west. Lots were selected as the name of the new town, probably in honor of Carlisle, Pennsylvania, as a number of the residents of the county came from that place.

The first lot sold included the Kinnert home and was purchased by John Kinnert for $2,000. The old log house was moved to the rear of the lot and was used as a tavern. The old log court house was removed from Hinkston to Carlisle and constructed on a lot on the east side of Second street. The building was soon replaced by a more modern structure, however.

The old log jail was also removed from Bedinger's Mill, was replaced by a modern jail, which became noted in later years as the first school opened in Nicholas county for colored children after the Emancipation proclamation.

The first town board was composed of James Bryan, president and treasurer; James Thompson, Andrew S. Hughes, Lewis B. Arnold and James Asbury. Elijah Mitchell was appointed clerk.

From the first sale of town lots Carlisle rapidly increased in population.
