THE MERCURY

Established 1867

Entered at the Carlisle Postoffice as second class matter

Warren Fisher, Editor
Grimes Caywood, News Editor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year (in advance)	$2.00
Six Months (in advance)	1.00
Three Months (in advance)	.45

Member Kentucky Press Association
Member Nat'l Editorial Association

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1926

THE BEAUTIFUL AND DAMNED

Cecil Williams, of Somerset, president of the Kentucky Press Association, is one of our hundred newspaper men who will be the guests of the Governor of New Hampshire during the week of July 12 to 16. The visiting newspapermen are being entertained with a view to "acquainting them with the beauties and historic sites" of the Granite State.

One wonders if the "beauties and historic sites" will include power dams, which some of our editors would have to hilariously inspect with Lionel Stander, if man to man.

COUNTS US IN

Writing of the three-for-one road bond proposition made by vote-seekers by the State Highway Commission, the Shelby News says:

The Kentucky Highway Commission made the three-for-one proposition to fifteen counties. Harrison county is the fourteenth county to accept it, leaving only Shelby county yet to vote on the proposition.

Don't you count us, brother? Or perhaps you have so much confidence in her good judgment and common sense of the people of Northern Kentucky in the matter, that you regard our bond issue election for July 17, as good as won.

The proposed bond issue, which will be submitted to the voters of this county on July 17, might appropriately be entitled, "A bond issue to put the idle roads of Nelson county in good condition." For its effect will be to scatter $25,000 each year for this purpose.

AN IMPORTANT LAW.

A most important law goes into effect this month. It is important to every taxpayer, because it will enable him to see where every dollar of his tax money is spent. It will prevent for the good of the taxpayers, nobody knowing, or pretending to know, that funds to his knowledge or conscience are misapplied or improperly used. For the new law provides that "every public official of any county, city, town, political subdivision or school district, who has in his custody or under his control any public funds, shall publish in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which such public funds are expended, a statement of such funds received and expended during the preceding calendar year, showing the amount received from ad valorem taxes, from other taxes, from licenses, from fees, from fines, from other sources, and from bond issues, and when expended, showing the purpose for which such funds were expended, and to whom such funds were paid, and the purpose for which such funds were paid to each person or firm, and the balance on hand at the end of the year, showing the purpose for which such funds are to be used."

The law goes further and provides that "any public official who shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of the first section of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars ($50) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) at the discretion of the court, which fine shall be paid into the treasury of the county or city in which the officer convicted of said misdemeanor shall hold his office."

OLD "OVER-SUPPLY" AT WORK

The Shelby News thinks the outlook for tobacco growers is "not so bad." Shelby growers, we are told, is "setting out a crop of tobacco as large as last year." "Evidently," says the News, "that little misunderstanding is being given the unsettled outlook for this crop in determining the acreage to be planted."

As a result of the wide-spread tendency of all growers of burley tobacco to do just what the growers of Shelby county are doing, produce more and more of the weed, The Mercury must agree with the News that the road forward is most difficult task.

It is difficult to determine whether the growers will sign up their crop for another five-year period. Opinions differ and The Mercury is not predicting the failure of the pool, when it agrees with the editor of the News that "it is well for the Association to be in position to protect its members in the event that a pooling arrangement is not made."

Says the News:

"While an opportunity will be given the old members, as well as the independents who signed and reaped rich profits as a result of the higher prices made by the pool, to sign up for another five-year period, the Association and its officers will be in a position to protect the members in the event that a pooling arrangement is not made. In other words the Crop-Control Committee must be prepared for the worst. As a matter of safety it should make arrangements to dispose of the large holdings it now has in storage before the present crop is ready for market. If they do this they will be in a position to meet the independents on an equal basis when the market for 1926 crop opens.

Suggestions therefore point to the disposal of the cooperative's holdings this summer. What effect it will have on the price of the new crop this fall no one can predict with any degree of certainty. But the natural conclusion is that it will result in much lower prices.

The same reason that would cause the cooperative to start out this summer to strengthen will also probably induce it to sell the 1926 crop if the situation becomes such as to lead tobacco after they have practically gone out of business to conclude that for so any profits for its membership is concerned.

With such conditions facing the growers of Burley tobacco the outlook for the present crop is anything but bright."

BOBBED HAIR.

One friend, Fitzhugh, of Wilmore, with his uncovered head, and with trousers pre-in the Wilmore dance, who slapped the next circle of a lovely young woman of Wilmore, who covered while in a dance, dancing, and who, bobbed hatted women, not bobbed and being accosted by a gentleman, that's a gospel. We note that the bobbed hair is in the minority of the young women of Wilmore, and we hope it will remain so.

Two years ago, Fitzhugh and his wife were married in Pittsburgh and started for Wilmore. After paying his expenses, he had $5 left. He rented a "peraflat bunch," for $2 a week, and he and his wife slept on cots. Food was cheap, he says, and he managed to get along on the $1 left. Now he has a 2-bedroom-and-parlor apartment, and he says he and his wife are expecting to have a baby.

Two years ago, he says, he was a Republican, but now he is a Democrat. Two years ago he was a Methodist, but now he is a member of the Christian church. Two years ago he was a teetotaler, but now he is a moderate drinker. Two years ago he was a non-smoker, but now he smokes a pipe. Two years ago he was a non-dancer, but now he dances. Two years ago he was a non-bobbed hair man, but now he is a bobbed hair man.

Two years ago, Fitzhugh, of Wilmore, was an ordinary man, but now he is a married man, and he says he is happier than he was two years ago. Two years ago he was a bachelor, but now he is a married man, and he says he is happier than he was two years ago.

Two years ago, Fitzhugh, of Wilmore, was a Republican, a Methodist, a teetotaler, a non-smoker, a non-dancer, a non-bobbed hair man, and he was happy. Two years ago he was a Democrat, a member of the Christian church, a moderate drinker, a smoker, a dancer, a bobbed hair man, and he was happier than he was two years ago.

Two years ago, Fitzhugh, of Wilmore, was a married man, and he was happier than he was two years ago. Two years ago he was a married man, and he was happier than he was two years ago.

Two years ago, Fitzhugh, of Wilmore,