Tapestries of Raphael

Among the priceless treasures of the Vatican in Rome, which no money could buy, are the tapestries of Raphael now in the gallery of the Arazzi, which formerly were hung on the walls of the Sistine chapel. The ten pieces made in Brussels by Peter van Aelst from Raphael's cartoons represent scenes from the history of the apostles. In the sack of Rome in 1527, they were part of the booty of the soldiers of Charles V, and they tried unsuccessfully to take the gold from the tapestries to cut up for pay. They were sold and dispersed and then recovered, only to again be captured by the French troops in 1798, who disposed of them to a second-hand dealer of Genoa. After all their adventures they now rest for the world to admire.

"Poor Richard's" Power

The world listened to "Poor Richard" for 25 years while he published his Almanack and for two centuries afterward. And the reason, after all, is that he spoke plainly of plain matters to plain people. Not always wisely, but usually with wit and invariably with clarity. If he were born today he might prefer to become the publication of his Almanack rather than to play an impressive part in politics or diplomacy. He would know from old experience and the second thought of two centuries that a book full of phrases and a mind of homespun sense may have more effect on the affairs of men than was ever accomplished by cleverness.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Colorado's Great Gorge

The Grand canyon of the state of Colorado has a total length of about 200 miles from head of Marble gorge near the northern boundary of Arizona, to Grand Wash cliffs, near the Nevada line. It is the most spectacular, beautiful part, 105 miles long, lies within the Grand Canyon National park in northern Arizona. The width varies from 5 to 15 miles, while the maximum depth is more than a mile. The characteristic portion as often seen in pictures is the point near the town of Grand Canyon, Ariz., where the gorge is almost 10 miles from rim to rim.

Cora's Origin Unknown

The coral variously known as Indian cinnabar or shoe flower is undoubtedly a native of some part of the tropics, and although kerosene oil even found in ancient ruins at Alexandria and Pompeii, it is unknown in any ancient Chinese books have led some to believe that this coral was not used in indigenous to Asia also. Some botanists believe that house was developed from the hardy weed grass known as hibiscus, but the will proof of this has not been introduced for evidence.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Only Photosphere Seen When One Gazes at Sun

The ancients were introducing us to the sun. We never see the surface of the sun. When we look at it we see a layer of gas about 600 miles deep. This is called the photosphere, and has been the real surface of the body. It shines. On top of it is the chromosphere, that cannot be seen with the naked eye except during total eclipse. The third and top layer is the corona, magnificent beyond description. It completely surrounds both the photosphere and the chromosphere, and sometimes is twice as large as the sun itself.

We are chiefly interested in the sun in the source of our light and heat. Both of these come to us from the photosphere, the bottom layer of the three. What is boiling and burning under it we may imagine, but that is all. We know it is hot stuff, the hottest stuff in all creation so far as the world is concerned. It it would cease functioning we would be in darkness, and speedily frost and intense cold would put an end to all human activities. The ancients who worshiped the sun as the source of our blessings were not far astray. All they overlooked was the deity who gave it its phosphorescence.—Journal of Commerce.

Betrothal Ring First Constituted a Pledge

The giving of a betrothal ring is a very ancient custom. The ring was originally probably a pledge that the contract would be kept. It was at first made of iron, the change to gold coming about the Second century, A. D. The ring was purely secular and received consecration in the Eleventh century, from which grew an elaborate betrothal ceremony. A good description of this is given in George Eliot's novel "Daniel Deronda." The betrothal symbolism probably rose at this time, too, to the days of chivalry, when it attributed toward women began to develop. How the custom grew to be giving of a wedding ring can no longer be traced, but wedding rings were used in Shakespeare's day. In those times men as well as women wore both betrothal and wedding rings. The custom of putting the ring on the fourth finger of the left hand came from the belief that there was a nerve from that direct to the heart.

Nightshade's Hard Luck

Nightshade is a very poisonous plant, and the ancients were wont to use it for poisoning their victims. It is also a powerful medicine, and was used by the Greeks and Romans, many because of the belief that it was a cure for madness. It was also used as a cure for epilepsy, and for the cure of madness it was hung around the neck of the patient. It was also used as a blister or counterirritant, and had a place in the medicine chest of the Middle Ages. It was also used in witchcraft, and witches would have been beautiful indeed if it had.

Two Kinds of Honeydew

Honeydew is a sweet, sticky fluid which appears on the leaves of certain plants and trees. It is known that one kind of honeydew is the excretion of aphids or plant lice, while the other kind exudes from the leaves themselves. The aphids are a kind of sucking bleeding feeding from sap pressure in the leaves and stems. The sap must also be sipped by the punctures of these insects, which are very small, wingless and other insects to the plant or tree, but the honeydew which they leave behind, this source is usually of poor quality.

No Dog?

Little Hugh was taking his turn in the family prayer the other night and, in the first home they visited, he was called upon to pray the usual spaniel, which sat by his side at the dinner table, was forgotten by the little man, and he happened to begin, "Lord, bless everybody in this house and the little dog too."

Schools Will Lose $6,600 In Per Capita Reduction

County and city school officials last week received notice from the State Department of Education that the school district per capita has been fixed at $6, which is $3 less than this year. The decrease will mean a loss of approximately $6,600 to the city and rural schools of the county.

The per capita for the present school year was $9, the highest per capita ever given. Not only will the decrease lose in the reduction in per capita, but by reduction in real estate values.

REPUBLICANS HERE ENDORSE HOOVER

Delegates Instructed To Vote For President At Congressional Meeting Held Saturday

Rumors which had been current for several days that a factional fight would develop in the Republican ranks in Harlan and Bell counties, Kentucky, have come to the surface and "make the investigation of the first hand."

In a telegram Friday to Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of the Riverside church in New York, and one of the signers of the petition, Republicans of Harlan and Bell county, and Clem K. Calvert, chairman of the Harlan Republican committee, said ministers of the gospel are welcome.

"We know that as ministers of the gospel you are not concerned with the telegram, "and so long as visitors are neither Communists nor non-Republicans we are glad to have them with us." Calvert said.

"We are proud of the attitude of our congressmen and the stand they have taken in protesting against the proposed reduction in the veterans' benefits, and we welcome to Pineville and Harlan.

"This invitation is extended, however, only to the representatives of the group who signed the petition to the Senate and to particularly emphasize that we will exclude all radical writers and professional agitators who might come as hangers-on."

Among signers of the Senate petition were Dr. Fosdick, Rt. Rev. Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, Episcopal Suffragan Bishop of New York, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and others.

It was said that at least ten of the petitioners would accept the invitation, and possibly others if they can arrange their engagements.

KENTUCKY MAN KIDNAPED

A story of being kidnaped and held captive for 30 hours without food was related at Augusta Sunday by Richard Cason, 45, owner of a garage at Cold Springs, Campbell county. Cason staggered into a home near Alexandria Sunday afternoon with his wrists blistered from wire which bound them. He said his captors, three in number, slugged him with the butt of a pistol at his garage Friday night. He was taken into an automobile and driven some distance and was kept in a barn.

FUTURE FARMERS ENTERTAIN DADS

Delightful Father And Son Banquet Held In School Cafeteria Friday Night

MORE THAN 80 ATTEND

The first annual banquet of the Future Farmers of America, agricultural class of the Carlisle high school, was held in the city school cafeteria Friday night with approximately eighty members of the class, fathers and friends present.

Before the banquet started, the boys showed their fathers through the building, and exhibited to them a few of the things which had been accomplished during the year.

John Atkinson, president of the local organization, presided as toastmaster. The principal address was made by Dr. A. H. Woods, of the University of Kentucky, who gave a most interesting talk on "The Future of Farming."

The invocation was given by Rev. Harry Alexander. After the supper Superintendent R. E. Jones, who served a hearty welcome to the visitors, and talks were made by the members of the class as follows: "What the F. F. A. has done for me," Ernest Cox; "Farm Improvements," Allen Clay; "Farm Practice Program for 1932," Maurice Woolfolk; "Future Vocational Agriculture Can Do For a Farm Boy," Campbell Fowler. Interesting talks were made by Mr. Hosain, instructor in vocational agriculture, Bourbon County high school; John Berry, president of the F. F. A. organization of Bourbon county high school, and J. D. Mattson, Harold L. Scott, Dr. G. T. Cowan and Alen Hopkins. The final exercise was given by Prof. O. B. Conrad, instructor in vocational agriculture at Carlisle high school and under whose supervision the successful banquet was arranged. The banquet was offered by Dr. G. T. Cowan.

The tables were beautifully decorated with candles and flowers. A delicious supper was served, with the chicken pie the chief feature. The girls of the sewing class of the school serving. A delightful program of instrumental and vocal music was rendered by Misses Elizabeth Brown, Ruby Snapp, Ruth Snapp and Catherine Conley and Will Snapp.

The banquet was one of the most successful and most enjoyable affairs ever held at the school. Parents and other guests were much impressed with the valuable work which is being accomplished by the organization under the able direction of Prof. O. B. Leonard.

In addition to members of the class and speakers, fathers and friends of the boys were attended were: W. D. Bull, J. B. Batts, B. T. Henry, Dr. Woodson, Oscar Hovermale, W. M. Boyd, Ernest Hostetler, D. W. Bach, W. S. Allnutt, Ernest Hostetler, Dr. T. W. Bach, Dr. Woodson, Clarence Jones, Dr. T. W. Bach, John Clark, John Wasson, Arthur Pumphrey, Thomas Moore, W. M. Davis, Glenn Sles, O. B. Berry, John Kernal, J. W. Sullivan, A. C. Hilander and S. H. Galbraith.

Ministers Asked To Make Mine Sift

Members of the group of twenty-one clergymen who recently petitioned Congress to make a thorough inquiry in Harlan and Bell counties, Kentucky, have been asked to go to the region and "make the investigation of the first hand."

In a telegram Friday to Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of the Riverside church in New York, and one of the signers of the petition, Republicans of Harlan and Bell county, and Clem K. Calvert, chairman of the Harlan Republican committee, said ministers of the gospel are welcome.

MERRITT PLUMMER DIES FROM POISON

Former Carlisle Boy Takes Bichloride Of Mercury Tablets By Mistake

THIRD DEATH IN YEAR

Merritt T. Plummer, 31 years old died Friday night at the Pattie A. Clay Infirmary in Richmond as the result of bichloride of mercury poison. On the Saturday night before young Plummer took two bichloride of mercury tablets by mistake, thinking he was taking aspirin for a headache.

Mr. Plummer was subject to severe headaches and kept a bottle containing aspirin in his room at a rooming house in Richmond. Several days before he had secured some bichloride of mercury tablets to use in treating an ingrown toenail on his toe. Going to his room in the dark, he picked up the wrong bottle and swallowed two tablets. Immediately after taking the fatal poison, Mr. Plummer realized his mistake and summoned a physician. He was taken to the hospital and everything possible was done to save the life of the young man.

Mr. Plummer was born and reared near Carlisle, moving with his parents to Winchester several years ago. Two years ago he went to Richmond as representative for the Kroger store and had held this position since. He was a member of the Methodist church and had many friends in Richmond.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Pearl Plummer of Lexington; four brothers, Westley Plummer, Winchester, W. Va.; Lindsey, Frank and William Plummer, Lexington, and three sisters, Miss Sallie Plummer, Lexington, Mrs. J. A. Brandenburg and Mrs. J. H. Thompson, both of Winchester. He was a member of the Carlisle Boy Scout troop, of which Nick Westfall was scout master. Mr. Plummer had numerous relatives in the county. Funeral services were held at the grave in the Carlisle cemetery Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. H. Cunningham, pastor of the Carlisle Christian church.

Mr. Plummer's death was the third in the family in a little more than a year. His father, William Plummer, died in Winchester in January, 1931. A brother, John Plummer, was killed in an explosion on the U. S. Colorado, which he was a sailor, in November, 1931.

Last Friday was the last day for filing cases in the Nicholas county circuit court, which will open here Monday. The docket for this year will be about average.

The civil docket will contain 40 ordinary appearances, 15 new equity cases and 29 old cases.

There are 26 cases on the criminal docket, one of which has been on the docket for a number of terms. There is only one murder case on the docket. Will Arthur Queen, negro, being the defendant. The trial on this charge, Queen was indicted at the February term of court, Will Arthur Neal, negro, had testified that Queen shot and killed Neal, while the latter was school teacher, about two years ago. Neal is now in the penitentiary serving a two-year sentence for killing Dale's murder.

The grand jury will meet Monday, but petit jurors will not report until Tuesday morning.

Eyes Of Slain Man Betray His Killer

C. T. Hargrove, deputy sheriff of Columbus county, at Bennington, N. C., Monday announced he had solved a murder by photographs found eyes of the victim, and finding the image of the killer in the photographs, photographs in support of his claim.

The officer said he displayed the photos from a detective story he read several years ago.

Richard Harwell, a negro employe of Hargrove's, was found shot to death April 12. Hargrove asked enlarged pictures of his eyes showed plainly the image of Tyson Graham.

Graham and Lewis Brooks, another negro, were charged with the killing on a dispute over the affections of a woman.

Aged Bath County Farmer Shot Following Argument

An argument over the location of a line fence resulted fatally Sunday night for Jim Blankenship, 75-year-old farmer, who was shot to death near his home on Elk Creek, Bath county, according to reports Garland was shot by Henry Blankenship, 35, a neighbor, after the two had been engaged in a quarrel. They apparently had reached amicable agreement when Garland started home, only to be called back by Blankenship. A second argument ensued and the younger man drew a pistol and fired three times at Garland, one shot taking effect near the heart and causing death in a few minutes.

SALARIES OF CITY TEACHERS REDUCED

School Board Makes Cut Of Ten Per Cent In All Salaries. One Teacher Less

Salaries of the superintendent, all teachers and janitors of the Carlisle city schools will be reduced ten per cent for the coming school term, it was decided at a meeting of the city school board held last Thursday night. Curtailment of other expenses was also announced by the board. The reduction in salaries and other expenses was necessitated by the decrease in per capita for the school for the coming term. Through the reduction in the assessed value and the 3 reduction in the per capita from the state, the revenue for the city schools for the coming term will be between $3,000 and $4,000 less than for the present term, I. B. Ross, president of the board said.

The board considers it fortunate that it was not necessary to make a cut in the salaries of teachers.

There will be one less teacher in the grades this year, it was decided by the board. Mrs. E. E. Plunkett, teacher of the second grade for the past three years, will not be an applicant for a position. The fifth grade teacher will be transferred to the fourth grade, and the fifth grade will be filled by a teacher from another department with two fourth grade classes. The board tonight to select teachers for the coming term of school.

WALKER, EPPERSON GO TO MT. OLIVET

State Highway Employes Transferred Last Week. W. W. Alcoke To Leave

J. B. Walker, resident engineer and A. T. Epperson, instrument man, who have been stationed here for the past two years supervising road work for the Kentucky Highway Commission, have been transferred to Mt. Olivet and assumed their duties there Monday. The office and field equipment was moved to Mt. Olivet last week.
