Over 9 Per Cent Of Farms Are Lost By Foreclosures

Seriousness of the farm situation is revealed by the fact that nine and one-half percent of the farms in the United States changed hands through foreclosure of mortgages, bankruptcy or default during the five year period ending March 1, 1932.

The drastic decline in farm income has contributed much to the distressing condition. Decrease in income has been greater than reduction in the farmer's expenses and mortgage debt has become a serious problem. Disproportionately heavy taxes on real estate have added to the farmer's difficulties.

One of the bills to be introduced before Congress is that introduced by Congressman Glover Cary, of Owensboro, formerly a member of Congressman Ralph Gilbert.

Purpose of the bill drafted by the Kentucky-born legislator, refund and re-finance existing farm mortgages on a basis equivalent to 50 percent interest and one percent principal annually on the principal sum. Maximum but several issues do not exceed under the Federal Reserve Banks' rediscount rate. Mortgages would be 80 percent of the present farm value based on its average valuation over the past five years.

Sunday's Lexington Leader gives the following resume of Kentucky's burley tobacco markets:

TWO BANDITS GIVEN SENTENCE OF DEATH FOR BANK ROBBERY

Stribby Tincher And Frank Glenday Found Guilty Of Murder

OTHERS TO BE TRIED

George W. "Stribby" Tincher, alleged leader and organizer of the bandit gang which robbed the Stamping Ground agency of the Farmers Deposit Bank of Frankfort last November 28, fatally wounding the assistant cashier, Ben Kennedy, was sentenced to death for his part in the crime by a jury in the Scott circuit court at Georgetown. The jury deliberated four hours and twenty minutes before bringing in the verdict late last Wednesday afternoon.

Tincher, 27 years old, is a native of Sharpsburg. He admitted being a member of the bandit gang which was the leader and said Frank Glenday, 27, Cincinnati gunman, fired the shot which took the life of Kennedy, with Tincher at his trial were his father and half-brother, Bill Tincher, both of Bath county. Tincher displayed no emotion when the verdict was read, and said he would appeal his case.

Tincher admitted being a member of the band of four men who held receive Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wilson and their three daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barr, of Millersburg, in an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Farmers Bank in that village.

Immediately after the trial of Tincher, Frank Glenday was placed on trial. After deliberating four hours, a jury reported it was deadlocked and was discharged.

Another jury was empaneled and Sunday was placed on trial for the second time.

In both trials Glenday admitted firing the shot which killed Kennedy, but declared he fired accidentally, the pistol with which he had been convered having gone off without his knowledge.

The second jury trying Glenday was given the case at 9:30 o'clock Friday night, and after deliberating for two hours reported it was unable to agree. The jury returned Friday morning and at noon announced it had reached a verdict. The evidence imposing the death penalty on Glenday.

Isaac Swanagan was the principal prosecution witness in the trials of both Tincher and Glenday. Mrs. Tincher, 22, of Sharpsburg, and Louise Harvy, 19, nurse, a witness when they refused to testify in the trial, giving as their reason that they had told the employment of a road engineer would have been necessary, no doubt. During his term the Carlisle and Cynthiana road has been completed and turned over to the state. The road from Cynthiana to the Fleming county line, and the road from Carlisle to the Fleming county line, and the road from Carlisle to the Fleming county line, and the Millersburg road is now being completed.

With the limited amount of money available, perhaps no man could have done more than Mr. Bewell has done in this section.

Mrs. Tincher was represented by attorneys Hon. Ben Kennedy, of Lexington, and Hon. Ben Kennedy, of Lexington, and Hon. Ben Kennedy, of Lexington, and
