THE GREAT BATTLE OF BULL RUN
The first battle of the Civil War, fought on August 31, 1861, was a decisive victory for the Confederate States Army. It was fought between the Union Army, led by General George B. McClellan, and the Confederate Army, led by General Robert E. Lee. The battle took place near Manassas, Virginia, and resulted in a tactical draw, but it was a strategic victory for the Confederates as it allowed them to keep the field and move on to Richmond.
