A GOUGING HEART.

Where are the countless thefts
Pierced by the light of stolen and sly gazes,
Purchasers, spectators found and sharers alone,
Friendships betrayed, and gifts of love returned,
Plighted troth recalled and the spirit wronged?
Ev'n lying thieves would condemn them everywhere.
Why mind the fiercest deed
In the cool, steadfast, of hours or min.
Than these subtler sins?
The sun himself sees not
The heart that hides them.
Does the conscience-proof
Need witness other than itself?
Can even Jove spy through
Breasts deceitful?
Not even the spying weight
Shall make the cautious gold-piece sink
Heavier than honest, and right
Is more worthy than the heart of deceit?
Oh, doubting heart!
He who sees all things
Sees you, and lets you live
That even the spying weight
Shall make the cautious gold-piece sink
Heavier than honest, and right
Is more worthy than the heart of deceit?
Oh, doubting heart!
He who sees all things
Sees you, and lets you live
That even the spying weight
Shall make the cautious gold-piece sink
Heavier than honest, and right
Is more worthy than the heart of deceit?
Oh, doubting heart!
He who sees all things
Sees you, and lets you live

For love to trust, and light
For sorrow to forget the heart of deceit?
Oh, doubting heart!
He who sees all things
Sees you, and lets you live

ADRIFT ON ICE.

The scene of the adventure that I shall relate is in North Hudson's Bay, and the time was in the February, 1871. I had been among the natives of this region of the great fur country for a little more than the fall before getting ready for a sled-ing trip to Fort Yukon, which was to be a long one, during which my natives and I could hunt to started in the early spring. We had left the shores of the bay in April, about the time of our story.

FACTS CONCERNING CANCER.

A Disease of Blood-poisoning Caused by Impurities of the System.

In the fourth annual report of the register general of England, published in 1868, the following facts are given: In the year 1838 the deaths from cancer were 1,000; and in 1868 (a period of thirty years) 5,000 or five times as many. In 1838 the proportion of deaths under 5 years of age was 11 in every 1,000; in 1868, 1,000. In 1838 the proportion gradually rose to each period of life, and in 1868 it reached 130; in 1838, 1,000. In this period the proportion gradually declined to each period of life, and in 1868 it reached 1,000. In this period the proportion gradually declined to each period of life, and in 1868 it reached 130; in 1838,
