SALTWELL

(E. G. Mattox, Correspondent)

E. B. Kendall, who had the misfortune to run a piece when he fell on the street in Carlisle a few days ago is getting along nicely.

Rev. J. K. Hicks and family, C. W. Whaley and Miss Mary Mattox spent Sunday with R. V. Mattox and family at Mt. Carmel.

C. P. Barlow, of Headquarters, spent Sunday with Floyd Barlow and family.

Mrs. Lance K. Gaines and daughter, Myrtle, were called to Paris the past week to be with Mrs. Gaines's daughter, who is ill.

The meeting which has been in progress here for one week past has been a good meeting. Rev. Hicks has preached some excellent sermons. Mr. Whalen is a splendid leader in song.

George Ritchie and family, of Stone's Ford, spent Sunday with John G. Allison and family.

DRUGGIST SELLS MEDICINE AT 25c HERE IN CARLISLE

Anyone May Purchase; Offer Unheard of Before; Hopkins Drug Store Prepared for Crowds.

If you were told that for 25c you could obtain a trial bottle of a medicine that has become famous (the full price of which is $1.25), it would sound unbelievable, wouldn't it? Yet it is true, and there are no tricks or catch-to it. The offer is good two days—tomorrow and Saturday—at the Hopkins Drug Store. Here in Carlisle.

Reason for Offer

"This offer is made because we think it is only fair that suffering people should have a chance to try the medicine first for 25c before paying the full price for it, and because we believe those who are benefited will keep on using it. The medicine referred to is a new, scientific formula, known as Van-Tage, which contains 30 ingredients, and not one a laxative forming drug. It is taken after meals and mixes with the food on one's stomach, thus throwing off quantities of gas that festers stomach distress and stimulating sluggish kidneys to function more efficiently. It often acts in 10 minutes to relieve gas pains, sourness, bloat and belching, it will not gripe or nauseate you like many liver medicines, but it will stimulate the flow of fresh bile in your system and help drive poisons from the kidneys.

Now, whether Van-Tage will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will relieve your suffering in a day or a week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c a fraction of its actual value. This offer is good tomorrow and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do

First of all, Van-Tage acts as a Laxative (gradually—not drastic or severe) bringing out awful gases and impurities, frequently from the first dose, which may have been inside you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

IT WILL act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

Van-Tage helps make the Digestive Organs sweet and clean, relieving Gaseous Indigestion, bloating, sour stomach and short-breath of breath.

IT WILL aid in clearing up skin eruptions that are caused by the impurities in the Blood Organs, will help overcome the sallow, "muddy" complexion, due to old liver bile in the system, and help restore that ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks.

Van-Tage will act on your sluggish stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus helping to build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, years younger than your real age.

To get your first bottle for 25c simply clip coupon below and bring it to the store below.

WHEN TELEPHONES WERE NEW

Some of us have lived in times before the invention of a wagon. Some of us can guess how those objects must have impressed the people who first knew them. The telephone was invented some years before I was born, but it did not come into general use in rural sections of Kentucky until I was a good-sized boy. I helped put up the first line in our neighborhood. We organized a local company called (really) the Simplicity Telephone Company; the local postmaster was the president and most of the company. When we tried to get a right of way for the line, we met some difficulty, because some of the farmers were afraid the contraption would injure their crops. One man who gave in and allowed the wire to be strung across his cultivated fields stoutly maintained that the crops was much poorer under the wire than elsewhere. He forgot to observe that the ground there was very poor and worn out. Since I was just a boy, I did not get to climb the poles and attach the wires, but I could hand up brackets and insulators and run errands; I could smooth the wire and help with the stretchers. That made me a part of it, and, as I am still proud of having helped install the new invention.

When the line was up, it was a day-to-day business to have calls from Bears, Rowback and Chapin, or elsewhere. Meanwhile an old citizen died. As the funeral cortege was passing along by the singing wires, a daughter-in-law of the deceased remarked: "There goes a message, and I haven't got my box." The Bell boys came to town and, by, and the party line opened up new experiences for all of us. Neighborhood news quickly widened. At one time there were twenty-four boxes on the line; it was about all one could do to keep up with so many conversations. Our thoughts and desires to be nearer to our fellows were enlarged. The man who lived on the other side of the farthest hills that we knew seemed as near as the neighbor right by us. He and we were much more natural, after the novelty of the experience worn off, than we had been when we had not at the country store or the country church, for both of us had on store clothes then, which with the telephone we could talk about just as we were. Before we knew it, we found ourselves vitally interested in the whole side of the country, for we sometimes listened in on conversations that went through two or three centrals, so that people ten or twelve miles away were connected.

There was no use in having a contraption like this without using it. It soon became the means of a lot of business and evening entertainment. Love affairs or near-love affairs grew up. It became customary to make a date by telephone, by sending a boy on a mule with a formal note. Some of us learned to talk to the girls in this way when we were entirely too bashful to speak to them in public and too poverty-stricken to ride our mules over and hitch them to the fence on Saturday afternoon.

Sickness, death, birth, marriage, visiting, all had their place in the news that flashed over the wires. Neighbors could hear when a baby was born, and they knew it was a little girl, or a little boy, or twins, and the message for the benefit of the listeners. It was soon better than the weekly paper for the long days from home had did the subject justice. Besides, we heard the Bell talk to us about things that has never-ever-happened-before-and-will-never-happen-again-for-a-thousand-years-of-isolation, the telephone brought us together, and it taught us to know and respect our ever-widening group.

SAVE MANURE

George Roberts, Kentucky College of Agriculture

With winter feeding at hand, farmers should give serious consideration to the saving of manure. There is too little realization of its value and of the great losses that take place.

Each thousand pounds of live weight of stock on the farm produces on the average approximately 10 tons of manure annually, containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium worth $2 to $2.50 per ton at commercial fertilizer prices. Measured by crop producing value, it may be worth much more than this amount. The loss of manure in Kentucky through improper handling amounts to 15 to 20 million dollars annually.

About three-fourths of the nitrogen and phosphorus and nine-tenths of the potassium in the feed of animals is voided in the solid and liquid manure. More than one-third of the nitrogen and about twelve-tenths of the potassium are in the liquid manure. Great loss takes place when enough bedding is used to absorb the liquid. If bedding can be obtained in no other way, weeds and wild grass might be used before the seed matures and cut-chaff for bedding. Even dry fallen leaves might be used. It is a good practice to cut corn and feed the stover in the stalls, thus leaving a large residue of stalks to absorb urine. The corn stalks themselves are much more valuable for manure when used in this way. It would be cheaper to buy bedding than to be forced later to replace the loss of manure.

Unless stalls must be cleaned frequently, as in the case of dairies, it is good practice to allow manure to accumulate in the stalls where it will be kept moist and packed, thus excluding air and preventing heating.

If manure must be removed from stalls frequently and where it should either be stored under a shed and kept compacted or it should be piled in deep racks from straight sides and kept compacted. Keeping the pile wet helps to prevent heating but water should not run through the pile as it will carry out nitrogen and potassium. The loose piles of manure so commonly seen in barnyards are the source of large losses.

Manure spread in the winter time on land where there is no growth, suffers a loss of nitrogen which is carried through the soil in time of heavy rain.

Manure spread in warm weather on ground for cultivated crops should be plowed or disked in as fast as it is spread, for the heat causes loss of nitrogen by volatilization. This may occur within an hour or two after spreading.

Manure that is dropped on pastures would be much more effective if it were scattered by some kind of drag before the fall rainy season.

Information on the care and use of manure will be sent on request addressed to the College of Agriculture, Lexington. Also plans for a manure shed will be furnished at the nominal cost of drawings.

Lesson for November 21

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 3:10-23; 4:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—And no one can lay any foundation other than that which is there, namely, Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 3:11, Moffatt.

PRIMARY TOPIC—HELPING OTHERS TO BE HAPPY.

JUNIOR TOPIC—WORKERS TOGETHER WITH GOD.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—CHRISTIAN WORKERS AND THEIR WORK.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Host for Christian Workers.

"Laborers together with God"—such is the glorious and distinctive title of true Christians, according to the verse just preceding our assigned text. Unfortunate is the all too common error of regarding only pastors and missionaries as the workers in God's vineyard. While we recognize that there is a special calling for some men to leave secular vocations and devote their entire time to the Lord's work, it is equally properly and stress the same that every Christian is being a worker for God.

The portions assigned for our study present the principle of the responsibility of Christians as fellow-workers with Christ, under the figures of builders and of seed sowers.

I. Builders of the Church (I Cor. 3:10-15).

1. The Foundation—Jesus Christ.

There is only definite assurance on Paul's word concerning this foundation. It is perfectly clear to him that there can be no Christian church without Jesus Christ. Such a statement would seem almost needless, yet it might well assume that no intelligent person would claim to be a disciple of God's builders, and yet profess Christian views. Yet there are those who claim to be Christians, who profess to be running churches of Christian life and testimony, but who have set aside the only Christian foundation on which to build.

2. The Master Builder—God has builders.

Paul was a pioneer. He declares his ambition and calling to be "to preach the gospel not where Christ is named, lest I should build on another man's foundation" (Romans 15:20). Such a principle does not mean that there are those who must serve learn of this "wise master builder" that they may lay only the foundation—Jesus Christ.

"Let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." It is a serious matter to serve the Lord as a builder, for it is possible to go badly astray at this point as well as in laying the foundation.

3. The materials—good and bad.

Whether we apply Paul's words to the building of our personal spiritual life or to the work we do in the church they are equally serious and urgent. "The day"—when Christ returns, and we shall stand before him to give account of the deeds done in the flesh—will reveal by flaming fire whether we have been faithful, true and diligent in preaching God's Word in prayer, in sacrificial service for Christ, or have sought to introduce sin and loss and into the churches we serve the wood, hay, and stubble of unspiritual schemes, neglect of God's Word, perversions.

Saved? Yes, but entering into God's presence as a man who has escaped from his burning house with nothing but his life.

II. Sowers of the Seed (Gal. 6:6-10).

The figure changes. No longer are we builders—but rather sowers of seed. Would that it were all good seed that were sown—but we are the sowing to the flesh as well as to the Spirit. This is seen in:

1. In our own lives. The inexorable law of sowing and reaping prevails in the moral realm as truly as it does in the physical. Men who would never expect wheat to grow where they have planted thistles seem to expect God's deep reap some-thing other than the seeds of selfish indulgence of careless neglect of the things of God, and still somehow reap the fruit of good character and noble living.

2. In the lives of others. We may be tempted to take attractive bypaths and excursions in the interest and allegiance of men to ourselves and to the church, but they will prove to bring but corruption and destruction. Spiritual seed will always produce spiritual life.

3. Waiting for the harvest. Harvest must be patiently awaited. We need to be so in natural things, the same is true in the spiritual realm.

A Message of Love

One of the last slowly murmured words of the American poet Whittier, as he lay a-dying, was this: "Give my love—love—the—world."

Worth-While Living

Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.—Isaiah 1-17.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chronic or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now. Creomulsion is a scientific combination of the most reliable cough medicines. Unlike a cheap cough syrup it gives you results you will be thankful for. Creomulsion relieves the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and has been used to expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other medicines have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. It will satisfy you in every way. Ask your druggist for a trial bottle. You will be satisfied with the benefits obtained from the first few doses. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. It is a GOOD medicine. Ask your druggist for Creomulsion, and be sure you get the genuine product and the relief you want. Adv.

PUBLIC SALE

As administrator of the estate of John M. Taylor, deceased, I will on at 10:00 a. m., on the premises of the late John M. Taylor about 12 miles East of Cynthiana, Kentucky, on the Bobtown and Barefoot turnpike, sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder, the following described property:

1 mare, 13 years old
1 mare, 14 years old
10 head sheep
1 cow, 8 years old
1 calf
12 barrels corn
Lot of household and kitchen furniture, poultry and various other articles.

Among said furniture is one old fashioned spool bed, and one old fashioned cherry bureau.

PUBLIC SALE

Of John G. Blair Property
On East Chestnut Street
Carlisle, Ky.

SATURDAY, NOV. 20

As Administrator of the estate of the late Lydia A. Blair I will offer for sale, on the premises, on the above date, the beautiful and choice home as described below.

The house is 1-12 stories high and has seven large rooms, a hall and bath. The house is covered with a fire-proof Asbestos roof, and is in a perfect state of repair.

In addition to the house, there is a large coal house and other outbuildings, all located on the large lot which is 68 by 130 feet and extends from Chestnut street to the alley back of the house.

This home is located in sight of Carlisle's schools and churches and is on a well paved street, just the right distance from the hustle and bustle of the business district.

At the present time with markets and finances unstable, the leading capitalists and business men all over the country are investing their money in real estate. The citizens of Nicholas county and the state at large would be wise to follow their example. Invest your property over as an investment or as a home. It can not be excelled, no matter where you search.

Anyone desiring to be shown the property see F. P. Goodwin, who now occupies same.

Immediate possession.

Terms made known on date of sale.

WATCH YOUR LAND

George Roberts, Kentucky College of Agriculture

If all farmers in Kentucky could be persuaded to watch carefully this fall where the land on their own farms and that of adjacent others as the opportunity may afford, they would be in an attitude of mind next spring to start the most effective program of soil improvement and conservation on the state that ever known.

Some things that should be observed are: First of all, the difference in the amount, speed and color of water running off fresh land well covered with grass and land of similar slope that had corn, tobacco and other tilled crops on it, although some of it may have a cover crop on it.

Second, The difference in amount of tilled crop land with and without cover crops.

Third, The difference in the amount of erosion where the cover crop was drilled with the drop and drilled across the slope on the contour as nearly as possible.

Fourth, The difference in erosion on bare land cultivated with the slope instead of on the contour.

Fifth, The vast acreage without cover crop.

Sixth, The acreage on which cover crops were sown and made such poor growth that they did not effectively prevent erosion, because the soil was so depleted it would not nourish the crop.

Seventh, Lack of cover in orchards. Then look at lands where cover crops have been used and have been restored through the growth of legumes and the leaves and roots.

After such observations as these, the farmer and his family should be prepared to impress the county agent or the soil conservation specialist with the importance of Lexington conducting an extensive program of soil and engineering methods of erosion control. Such a program in Lexington could be accomplished in a short time if the farmers should ask for it.

George Roberts of Harrodsburg, Ky., covered the above in an address he had delivered in several places.

The American railroads remain the outstanding transportation industry of the country—dependable—progressive—safe. Despite higher operating costs, increasing taxes and strict regulation, they are giving 50% faster freight service, have reduced loss and damage 80%, and are today hauling all kinds of freight—from sand to silk—at an average cost to the shipper of less than one cent per ton per mile. And although some higher rates have just been granted and others are being sought, if all are allowed the price of railroad transportation would still be cheaper than in recent years.

Freight rates on the L & N are down, too. In 1936 shippers over the L & N saved $28,000,000 in freight charges, compared with what they would have paid at the average rate of 1921.

The L & N is proud of its 87-year record in serving the people of the South and hopes to merit their continued patronage.

Whether you have a shipment to make or a trip to take, any L & N representative will be glad to assist you.
