

THE MERCURY

THURSDAY, OCT. 1, 1920

Published by J. H. KILPATRICK

Subscription Rates

Single Copies

Advertising Rates

Public Reading Room

Democratic Ticket

Republican Ticket

Editorial

Correspondence

Local News

State News

National News

International News

Market

Weather

Obituary

Births

Deaths

Marriages

Funerals

Legal

Religious

Sports

Amusements

Education

Health

Travel

Science

Art

Literature

Music

Drama

History

Geography

Biography

Genealogy

Etymology

Idioms

Proverbs

Sayings

Phrases

Terms

Definitions

Translations

Interpretations

Explanations

Clarifications

Illustrations

Examples

References

Notes

Comments

Observations

Reflections

Thoughts

Views

Opinions

Beliefs

Attitudes

Characteristics

Qualities

Attributes

Properties

Features

Aspects

CITY CASH STORE

James A. Chappell

FOUNDED IN 1825

"BEST PERPETUA"

Now it came to pass

When the late of October

And the country and street

Were growing in the folds

Of the sun, and Jack Frost

Had spread his mantle all

Over the city and street

And the people were all

Waiting for the day when

The sun would come again

And the snow would melt

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

And the people would be

Free from the cold again

THE MERCURY

THURSDAY, OCT. 1, 1920

Published by J. H. KILPATRICK

Subscription Rates

Single Copies

Advertising Rates

Public Reading Room

Democratic Ticket

Republican Ticket

Editorial

Correspondence

Local News

State News

National News

International News

Market

Weather

Obituary

Births

Deaths

Marriages

Funerals

Legal

Religious

Sports

Amusements

Education

Health

Travel

Science

Art

Literature

Music

Drama

History

Geography

Biography

Etymology

Idioms

Proverbs

Sayings

Phrases

Terms

Definitions

Translations

Interpretations

Explanations

Clarifications

Illustrations

Examples

References

Notes

Comments

Observations

Reflections

Thoughts

Views

Opinions

Beliefs

Attitudes

Characteristics

Qualities

Attributes

Properties

Features

Aspects

THE MERCURY

THURSDAY, OCT. 1, 1920

Published by J. H. KILPATRICK

Subscription Rates

Single Copies

Advertising Rates

Public Reading Room

Democratic Ticket

Republican Ticket

Editorial

Correspondence

Local News

State News

National News

International News

Market

Weather

Obituary

Births

Deaths

Marriages

Funerals

Legal

Religious

Sports

Amusements

Education

Health

Travel

Science

Art

Literature

Music

Drama

History

Geography

Biography

Etymology

Idioms

Proverbs

Sayings

Phrases

Terms

Definitions

Translations

Interpretations

Explanations

Clarifications

Illustrations

Examples

References

Notes

Comments

Observations

Reflections

Thoughts

Views

Opinions

Beliefs

Attitudes

Characteristics

Qualities

Attributes

Properties

Features

Aspects

THE MERCURY

THURSDAY, OCT. 1, 1920

Published by J. H. KILPATRICK

Subscription Rates

Single Copies

Advertising Rates

Public Reading Room

Democratic Ticket

Republican Ticket

Editorial

Correspondence

Local News

State News

National News

International News

Market

Weather

Obituary

Births

Deaths

Marriages

Funerals

Legal

Religious

Sports

Amusements

Education

Health

Travel

Science

Art

Literature

Music

Drama

History

Geography

Biography

Etymology

Idioms

Proverbs

Sayings

Phrases

Terms

Definitions

Translations

Interpretations

Explanations

Clarifications

Illustrations

Examples

References

Notes

Comments

Observations

Reflections

Thoughts

Views

Opinions

Beliefs

Attitudes

Characteristics

Qualities

Attributes

Properties

Features

Aspects

A. Urbansky's Bargain Store!

Our Fall Stock is now arriving, and we are daily receiving our new Dress Goods, Trimmings, Flannels, Jeans, Yarns, Blankets, &c.

Mr. Urbansky, who develops his entire attention to buying the goods for 5 Stores, has secured some rare bargains, chief of which being his purchase of the entire stock of a

BOOT and SHOE Manufacturer. These goods are fully warranted, and we are able to sell them at about half their former price.