Importance Of Early Diagnosis Of Cancer

Cancer causes more deaths in the United States than any other disease excepting heart disease. It is estimated that about 145,000 people a year die from cancer. In 1937, for example, deaths of 67,247 men and 77,753 women were reported. This death toll is tragic because a high proportion of these cases could have been cured if the patients received competent care early enough.

There are four things to do: (1) Watch for any possible symptom, and report to your physician at the merest suspicion of a condition which might result in cancer. If you cannot pay for care, ask your physician to advise how you may secure it free. (2) Have a complete physical examination—one that covers all the sites where cancer is likely to develop—at least once a year. (3) Inform your family and friends regarding treatment that is now available for cancer. Urge members of your family and others to report to a physician or a clinic at the earliest possible moment when any condition resembling cancer suggestive of it appears.

It is important to remember that cancer is curable but it must be diagnosed and treated in the early stages. Consult your physician immediately about lump, particularly in the breast, irregular bleeding or discharge, sores that do not heal, especially those occurring in the mouth, tongue or lips, sudden changes in the rate of growth of moles or warts.

POLICE JURY

Last year in the United States a total of 211 running-horse stakes were decided. One hundred and twenty of them were won by thoroughbred horses bred in Kentucky.

There, in two sentences, is a report of the evidence that no state in the United States can approach Kentucky, especially central Kentucky, in the production of outstanding race horses. The best, the fastest, the strongest and the soundest race horses come from central Kentucky. It is so proved on the race tracks every year.

The same can be said of the horses with the flowing manes and tails, and with so much style in their action—the five-gaited saddlers—and the horses with the roached manes and tails, and so much snap in their action—the three-gaited saddle horses—that are shown in the most fashionable equine expositions of the country, whether at Madison Square Garden in New York, Devon, Pa., Kansas City, Mo., the Kentucky or Ohio or Indiana State Fairs, or in central Kentucky's own brilliant spectacle, the Junior League Horse Show.

It likewise may be said of the standardbred horses, the trotters and the pacers, which year after year dominate the harness-horse sports.

No state in the United States has a section quite like Central Kentucky when it comes to producing the best running horses, the best trotting and pacing horses and the best saddle horses. . . . In fact, any type of light horse, which includes also the hunting horse and the polo pony, it stands absolutely supreme in the United States, and has stood so for many a year.

Superiority Explained

Prof. E. S. Good, head of the department of animal husbandry of the University of Kentucky, explains central Kentucky's superiority as a horse-producing section in these words:

"The Bluegrass region of Kentucky is the premier breeding ground for light horses because of its ample rainfall, mild climate, abundance of sunshine and a soil rich in calcium and phosphorous, so necessary for good pasture superior bone, muscle and nerve."

There is one other thing, very important but not so tangible, that Professor Good did not mention. This is the love that the real central Kentuckian, the native son, feels for a horse. Central Kentuckians love a good horse, and they work ceaselessly to produce good horses. When you mix favorable climate, suitable soil and geographical location with love of a horse you have central Kentucky's full formula for producing good horses.

In the Bluegrass, according to a report made not long ago to the Kentucky State Racing Commission by Tom R. Underwood, secretary, there are about 180 farms in the Bluegrass section which advertise thoroughbred stallions. These farms embrace a total of about 80,000 acres and are located in Fayette, Madison, Scott, Woodford, Clark, Bourbon, Jessamine, Boyle and

Balkan War Reaches Most Critical Stage

By Dr. Chas. M. Knapp,
Prof. Of History,
University Of Ky.

The news of the week has come thick and fast from the war fronts of the eastern Mediterranean and the Balkans as a result of the pictures of what has been happening to some clear cut. With the news given by Hitler a week ago this Sunday morning, Russian troops buried themselves upon the Jugo-Slav and Greek fronts as close to their backs as possible. Thereupon the news reports which were coming in from some from the fronts became a combination of Greek victories, gloria of claims, and counter claims, the purpose of which was in part to tear down enemy morale and to bolster their own.

With an almost complete absence of tractors and trucks in the war zone, it has been impossible to arrive at any accurate conclusions as to what has been actually transpiring. However it would appear that the German armies attacked Jugo-Slavia from Rumania and Bulgaria. The Jugo-Slav armies were launched against the passes which lead from southern Rumania into Serbia and northern Greece. The objective of these columns was to force an entrance into the upper Vardar valley from which a movement down that river to Salonika on the Aegean would be relatively easy. These passes lie within

Billy Gibson Struck By Automobile at Henry Lecher

Three-year-old Billy Gibson was injured fatally Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Henry Lecher, of Fountain Valley.

The child's mother, Mrs. June Fuller Gibson of Harrodsburg, witnessed the accident, operated Mr. Gibson of Silkatown. Onlookers said the child ran from behind the truck into the path of the machine, but could not be blamed for the accident.

Mr. Lecher, who has been in bad health for some time, is at present confined to his home suffering from a nervous shock. His condition was described as serious.

The child is survived by his parents, Conrad Gibson, and Mrs. Gibson of Harrodsburg; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Gibson of Carlisle, and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mae Fuller of the county.

Agriculture Dept. Is Reorganized

Four Divisions Are Part Of New Reorganization

Commissioner of Agriculture, Ellis Mac May, announced Sunday the reorganization of the State Department of Agriculture into four divisions.

Personnel changes involved in the reorganization was the promotion of Wesley Vick Perry, Jr., from administrative assistant to director of the Division of Weights and Measures, and appointment of J. Dan Baldwin, Hawesville, to assistant director of the division.

Baldwin is the son-in-law of Mrs. Willie Hamilton Fedback, of Carlisle.

Commissioner May explained the change was necessary because of the overlapping activities by Director Perry and Ivan Jett and Perry.

Perry will be in charge of inspection of scales at livestock markets and tobacco warehouses, grading and testing grains at elevators and granaries; collection and dissemination of market statistics on tobacco and livestock sales, inspection of marketing practices on tobacco warehouse floors, and administration of laws relating to dogs, tobacco warehouses and farmers' co-operative marketing associations, the commissioner explained.

Pardons Of Nicholas Men Is Requested

Pardon pleas for Leo Flora, 28, and George Crawford, 38, both of this county, were presented for Governor Johnson's consideration Thursday.

The pardons stated the two were convicted in Fleming county in 1938 of assault with offensive weapons with intent to rob Robert Gray, an elderly storekeeper, and were sentenced to 21 years each. The men, both in the state reformatory, claimed they were mistakenly identified and that having been tried away from home handicapped them in proving that.

Twenty-five Other Men Now Confined In Mine War

Johnson Steps Into Mine Wage Dispute

Freight Rates Make Higher Wages Impossible Fear

Governor Keen Johnson stepped into the wage dispute between Kentucky mine operators and miners Tuesday by responding to a plea from Ebenezie Gaines, Fayetteville, W. Va., chairman of the Southern coal operators' wage conference.

Johnson wrote "Glad to comply with your request. Anxious to be helpful in preventing continuation of wage differential. Existing freight rate disadvantage on coal shipped from Kentucky justifies pay differential."

In explaining his position, Governor Johnson said, "Southern mines pay from 20 to 40 cents a ton freight rate differential, and a flat $7 a day wage in Southern mines would force coal operators into bankruptcy" and that "thousands of miners would be thrown out of work."

In the statement released by the governor, he said, "It is my opinion that less than 100 of the 270 Kentucky mines in Kentucky could hope to survive this proposed adverse, economic setup."

Buckler Held For Murder; Girl Arrested

Harlan Buckler Held By Paris Officials In Connection Of Baby Death

Fannie C. Buckler, 18, who admitted to Sheriff Silas E. Bodford and Deputy Sheriff Raymer Jones of Bourbon county that she was the mother of the infant found dead in a mail box at the home of Tom Denman on the Maysville pike near Paris, Thursday, was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Leland Burton and Deputy Sheriff Floyd Clark in Henryville last Saturday.

Also held in custody in the Bourbon county jail charged with murder is Harlan Buckler, 42, father of Fannie C. Buckler, and who is father of the infant as charged by his daughter. He is a farmer who lives on Cane Ridge Willis property about four miles from Winchester on the Exton pike.

Fannie Buckler was taken to Paris from here, where she had been staying at the home of her aunt, Josephine Buckler. Sheriff Bodford and Deputy Jones stated Saturday night that Fannie Buckler told them the child, a boy, was born March 30 at Winchester.

Early Thursday morning, her statement continued, she was forced by her parents to leave their home. Taking the baby, she came to her aunt's residence here in Paris.

The next morning, she asserted, her father and her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Buckler, came to Carlisle and took the child according to her, saying they had found a family in Montgomery county to care for it.

Later she was told that the infant had been found dead in the mailbox, the statement indicated.

She identified clothing found on the dead infant, and presented a dress identical with the one found on the child's body. At the direction of Bourbon County Coroner Roxie Davis, the child's body was exhumed Saturday afternoon, and two Paris welfare workers who examined the clothing asserted they had given it to the Buckler girl.

Patrolman Fred Link of the Paris police force said that Fannie Buckler, accompanied by her cousin, Iess Buckler, had come to police headquarters six weeks ago to ask for protection from Fannie's father. They stated at that time that the infant was soon
