THIS IS WAR!

Residents of small towns or rural communities have a greater tendency to become complacent or feel that the war is a long way off and the roar of the cannon will never be heard or the sound of the war factory is beyond the earshot than do those nearer the battle-front or those residing in the larger and more congested cities. However, this war is unlike former wars in that the radio and airplane have brought Europe and the South Pacific right into the front room of many homes that in normal times were isolated and the families complacent.

It is quite different now. We are all concerned, and why? Mainly because we have sons and even daughters, in this war away out there on the ocean, on land, or in the air risking life, limb and dying that we may have comfort at home. They no more have the comfortable home with hot and cold bath, soft beds and a choice of foods to select from with service A-1 as they enjoyed before they left. We say, God bless those brave and courageous youngsters, some of whom have made the supreme sacrifice, others prisoners, many in hospitals and still others missing in line of duty.

Lest we forget when we are shopping, eat our meals or are enjoying some of the "normal conveniences and comforts of life, when service, selection, or quality are not up to "par" our sons and daughters in the service at the front have no choice but accept whatever they can get in food, shelter etc., without a complaint. We sincerely believe they would be happy to be at home whether or not they had any gasoline, choice selections of food, clothing, or anything except the necessities of life and would be happy and content if only the war was over and all efforts could be turned toward building rather than destroying.

WE HAVE TO DO IT.

Don't be surprised if when you call on the Editor of The Mercury should you find him with sleeves rolled up and donned with an apron in the shop helping get the forms ready to print your regular weekly edition, because we not only enjoy doing it but we have to do it as a part of our patriotic duty due to the man-power shortage. And we are not the only "boss" who is forced out of the office chair to the work-shop. Recently we had occasion to observe a garage proprietor who formerly enjoyed a spacious office with stenographers and assistants who today is in the "back-shop" helping to repair and keep the gradually diminishing number of automobiles rolling. As another place we walked into a leading florist establishment. The office desks, chairs, paper files, and all necessary equipment were visible but the "big boss" was found in the work-shop wearing overalls helping to do the shop work and he was the "shabbiest-looking guy in the place. Both these instances referred to were observed in that charming city of Lexington, Ky.

GETTING UP EARLY.

The writer of this editorial began pounding the typewriter at 5 a. m. and, not every night, but occasionally, retires at 2 a. m. but the two hours mentioned scarcely come that seemingly close or else we could not survive on these hours sleep. The best hours of the day to work a Victory garden is from about 5 to 7 a. m. Many of our former friends are in the field by sun-up and stay there till dark at night. These in the army can't sleep late. This is a busy season of the year. Let's get up early and get at it—whatever the task. Remember the adage "The early bird gets the worm" and that other one—"Early to bed and early to rise makes one healthy, wealthy, and wise."

KENTUCKY'S POLITICS AT ITS DAMNEDEST

By the time this appears in print, Harlan County's two indicated election commissioners may have done the only thing possible in decency, tendered their resignations, or Governor Johnson may have asked for them and Sheriff Ball, also under federal indictment, may have signified his relinquishment of the chairmanship of the election board. This much is imperative. Guilty or only irresponsible or incompetent, these commissioners conducted two tainted elections last year. For the crimes in one, condemned by the Court of Appeals, some of their precinct officers have been convicted in another, a federal grand jury has indicted the officers of 74 precincts, 8 tabulators and the entire membership of the board itself.

Convincing words and deeds of disapproval and disapproval from the Governor and Mr. Donaldson are strongly called for in view of the circumstances and the approaching primary. The frauds charged by the F. B. I. both in support of the election and conduct of the returns were in favor of the Democratic candidate for Senator. Quite a number of the defendants are employees in the Governor's highway department and one in the welfare department. Moral responsibility for whatever took place at the 1942 Senatorial election in Harlan reaches clear up to the throne.

The record of the State Board of Election Commissioners shows, Allan Trout reports, that the chairman and Democratic member selected the Republican for Harlan's election board over the objection of their lone Republican colleague. Now that wasn't cricket, to say the least, even if the appointee was one, though just on the list of the five recommended by the Harlan County Republican Committee and any chicanery practiced in the canvass of returns was right under the eye of the Republican committee's own official observer.

It would be enlightening to learn whose wishes prevailed in the make-up of the Harlan election board. The indicted Democratic commissioner is a production and outside officer in the state welfare department. If these two partisan representatives acted in cahoots, as the federal grand jury charges, to steal the election for a Democrat no implications will be overlooked by Republican campaigners.

The presumption of innocence with which state department heads invest their accused subordinates is one for the court and jury. The rest of us are concerned about public service and fair elections. Neither the administration nor its agents are innocent of the original fault which got them into this scandalous mess. Ostensibly as it is for public employes to engage in pernicious campaign activities, when they man the polls and count the votes, popular government is on the way to becoming a sham.

The Harlan Senatorial election returns were incredible to begin with, but the further the ramifications of the event are explored, the more convincing they are that Kentucky politics reached its ultimate "damnedest" on that occasion.—Courier-Journal.

R. M. FEESE LEASES CARLISLE MERCURY

R. M. Feese, Lexington, has taken a two-year lease on the Carlisle Mercury, weekly newspaper, from Mrs. Warren R. Fisher, Lexington, publisher of the paper.

Feese was formerly engaged in newspaper work in Somerset.

FEESE TO PUBLISH "CARLISLE MERCURY

R. M. Feese of Lexington, former editor and publisher of The Commonwealth, has leased for two years the Carlisle Mercury, a weekly newspaper published at Carlisle, from Mrs. Warren R. Fisher of Lexington. After disposing of The Commonwealth to the present owner-editor in 1925, Mr. Feese engaged in the retail drug business here for several years. In recent years he has been district manager for an insurance company with headquarters in Lexington. Mrs. Fisher has published The Mercury since the death of her husband several years ago. Mr. Feese is the father of Mrs. Clifford Early of Somerset and has many friends here. He said he would continue his insurance business in Lexington and operate the Carlisle paper at the same time.—Somerset Commonwealth.
