Teen-Agers Eligible To Drive School Buses

Eighteen-year-olds may continue to drive school buses, in the opinion of the Attorney General's office, Frankfort, in an answer to a query made by Raymond J. Wesley, superintendent of the Nicholas county schools.

In 1944 because of the shortage of drivers, the General Assembly reduced the age limit from 21 to 18 and provided that should be in effect "for the duration of the war and six months thereafter."

In replying to Wesley's query, the Attorney General's office said that so far as it could learn there has been no formal declaration by President Truman declaring the war over.

Answering another question posed by Wesley, the reply stated that city school boards can be compelled to furnish county school boards credits of county children attending the city high school.

Wesley said that he had received Tuesday a transcript of credits for all students who had heretofore attended Carlisle High school but are now attending the new Nicholas County High school at Headquarters.

Burley Tobacco Sales Will Begin December 1

Burley sales throughout the eight-state belt this forthcoming season will begin Monday, December 1, despite recommendation for a November 17 opening, the Burley Sales committee decided at a meeting held last weekend in Louisville.

The decision was made after a heated discussion in which it was disclosed that a shortage of both buyers and graders was threatened under an earlier opening, proposed by the Burley Auction Warehouse Association at its annual meeting last June.

No action was taken on the hours or rate of sales with consideration of both deferred until November 17 when another meeting of the sales committee will be held in Lexington.

Nicholas Countian Victim Of Shooting

A shooting that occurred in a tobacco patch in the extreme southwest corner of Fleming county Tuesday afternoon sent one man to a Paris hospital and another to the Fleming county jail in Flemingsburg.

Raymond Jackson, 36, Nicholas county, was first brought to the Johnson Memorial hospital and later taken to the Massie Memorial hospital. A bullet from a .22 rifle had entered his right shoulder and lodged in his throat.

Charged with the shooting is Avery Vice, about 20, of Fleming county.

Fleming county Sheriff C. W. Bishop said that Jackson was cutting tobacco with Alfred Bussell, a Nicholas countian, who crops on the farm of Lee Ledford along the Licking river in Fleming county, when Vice opened fire about 1:30 p. m. Bishop said he was told that Vice had fired at his stepfather, "Casey" Jones before Jackson was wounded.

Vice fled from the scene but was taken into custody a few hours later by John Clinkenbeard, Nicholas county deputy sheriff, while Sheriff John Anderson was bringing the victim of the shooting to Carlisle for medical attention. Vice, who had rowed across the river following the shooting, was returned to Fleming county and placed in custody of Sheriff Bishop, who with his deputy-son, Maurice Bishop, and another deputy, Clement Caldwell, took the accused youth to jail.

Hospital attaches at Paris said that the condition of Jackson was not critical.

Apellate Court Studies Validity Of Constitution Vote

Kentucky's Court of Appeals has promised to rule by next Monday whether the people can vote in November on whether or not to rewrite the State Constitution.

Arguments before the state's highest tribunal center on whether the legislative call for a referendum was invalidated by its provision that a new constitution must be ratified by the voters and by the omission of directions for advertising the referendum in the newspapers.

A. Joe Asher, Frankfort attorney, in opening the arguments against validity, declared the people are entitled to know in advance whether a referendum would be legal. He asserted he and other opponents of the new Constitution were not trying to keep the issue from being voted on.

Assistant Attorney General Ben B. Fowler, who led off for validity, told the Court Secretary of State Charles K. O'Conell should be informed by next Monday at the latest whether or not to instruct the 120 county clerks to put the question on the November 4 ballots.

"We may not have a written opinion by next Monday," said new Chief Justice Porter Sims of Bowling Green, "but we'll announce our decision by then."

All seven Appellate Judges heard the arguments and began discussing the issue as soon as attorneys and spectators had retired.

The court's first official act upon opening its fall term was to uphold appointment by the Fayette County Election Board of precinct officers to serve in Lexington's municipal primary next Saturday.
