AMERICAN PUSH. By EDGAR FAWCETT. Copyright, 1891, By the Authors' Alliance.

KENTUCKY STATE NEWS.

BETWEEN THE WARRING LINES.

RIDING A CAMEL.

BATTLING WITH SHARKS.

FASHION REPEATS ITSELF.

NO MEN ALLOWED.

JUDGES AND COURTS.

MARKETS.

ALWAYS THUS.

KILLED BY CRITICISM.

"August Flower"

Swamp Root

Rising Sun Stove Polish

Bile Beans Small

Salvation Oil

Where is He Going

Kentucky Midland Railway

ATTENTION FARMERS.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Shiloh's Cure.

Young Mothers!

CARLISLE MERCURY.

VOLUME XXV | CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1892. | NUMBER 51.

PROFESSIONAL.

THOS. KENNEDY. HARRY KENNEDY.
Kennedy and Son,
Attorneys-at-Law,
Carlisle, - Kentucky
OFFICE over Farmers Bank.

HANSON KENNEDY
Attorney-at-Law,
CARLISLE, KY.
OFFICE front room over City Cash Store on Front street.

J. P. NORVELL,
Attorney at Law,
CARLISLE, KY.

ANDY McINTIRE,
DENTIST,
Office in Farmer's Bank Building.
CARLISLE, - KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE SOUTHERN R. R.
LEXINGTON AND LOUISVILLE SHORT LINE.
Fourteen Miles Shortest Line BETWEEN LEXINGTON
AND LOUISVILLE

BIG FOUR ROUTE
THE GREAT
THROUGH CAR LINE
From CINCINNATI to INDIANAPOLIS,
ST. LOUIS AND CHICAGO.

GANTER'S CHICKEN Cholera Cure!

JAPANESE PILE CURE

THE NEW WEBSTER
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

What is
CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Centaur Company, 77 Murray Street, New York City.

F. M. Peale & Co.,
SUCCESSORS TO
JAS. J. SHACKLEFORD & CO.

Large stock of Glass on hand. Large and extra sizes a Specialty, and at bottom prices. Office and Yard near Passenger Depot. Give us a call.

William I. Dorsey,
SUCCESSOR TO
T. A. DORSEY & SON,
Dealer in Rough AND Dressed Lumber
DOORS, SASH, BLINDS, WINDOW-SASH,
GLASS, LATH, SHINGLES,
BRICK, SAND, LIME AND CEMENT,
And other kinds of Building Material.
Will Sell on Very Small Margins for Cash.
W. I. DORSEY.

A. LAUBLEY,
Harness, Saddles, Whips, Fly Nets,

HEALTH IS WEALTH

FIRTH
The TINNER,
The only Authorized Agent for the NEW Process Vapor Stove
THE BEST IN THE MARKET.
Has also a full line of
ORNAMENTAL FLOWER POTS
Radiant, Recess and Jamb Grates.
Eclipse Cooking Stove,
in 3 Sizes and Styles.
Purifying Pumps,
Double and single geared, the best in the market.
Iron, Steel and Tin Roofing
Guttering, Spouting, &c.

SECTIONAL Break Saddles.
Something New!
Solid on Sight!
Eales Harness Co.

A. PETERS,
BOOTS & SHOES
Carlisle, Ky.
Boots and Shoes Made to Order

THE PRESIDENT

Makes Suggestions to the Fifty-Second Congress.

On the Tariff He Accepts the Verdict of November,

And the Responsibility is Left With the Next Congress.

Hearty Indorsement of the Nicaragua Canal Project.

Workmen Should Have More Than Life's Necessaries.

We Must No Longer Rely on Canadian Canals, But Should Construct Canals of Our Own—Peaceful Adjustment of Differences With Foreign Powers—The Finances of the Government, Etc.

VIOLIN-MAKERS.

TO THE RESCUE.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

Kindness Causes Few Expressions of Appreciation.

The Bible, a Letter of Affection From a Parent to a Child, Has Its Severe Passages—Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D.

To an unusually large audience Dr. Talmage discoursed on God as "The Mother of All," the text being taken from Isaiah lxvi., 13: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

The Bible is a warm letter of affection from a parent to a child, and yet there are many who see chiefly there severer passages. As there may be fifty or sixty nights of gentle dew in one summer that will not cause as much remark as one hail-storm of half an hour, so there are those who are more struck by those passages of the Bible that announce the indignation of God than by those that announce His affection.

There may come to a household twenty or fifty letters of affection during the year, and they will not make as much excitement in that home as one sheriff's writ; and so there are people who are more attentive to those passages which announce the judgments of God, than to those which announce His mercy and His favor. God is a lion, John says, in the Book of Revelation. God is a breaker, Micah announces in his prophecy. God is a rock. God is a King. But hear also that God is love. A father and his child are walking out in the fields on a summer's day, and there comes up a thunder-storm, and there is a flash of lightning that startles the child, and the father says: "My dear, that is God's eye." There comes a peal of thunder, and the father says: "My dear, that is God's voice." But the clouds go off the sky, and the storm is gone, and light floods the heavens and floods the landscape, and the father forgets to say: "That is God's smile."

The text this morning bends with great gentleness and love over all who are prostrate in sin and trouble. It lights up with compassion. It melts with tenderness. It breathes upon us the hush of an eternal lullaby, for it announces that God is our mother. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

I remark, in the first place, that God has a mother's simplicity of instruction. A father does not know how to teach a child the A. B. C. Men are not skilled in the primary department; but a mother has so much patience that she will tell a child for the hundredth time the difference between F and G, and between I and J. Sometimes it is by blocks; sometimes by the worsted work; sometimes by the slate; sometimes by the book. She thus teaches the child, and has no awkwardness of condescension in so doing. So God, our Mother, stoops down to our infantile minds. Though we are told a thing a thousand times, and we do not understand it, our heavenly mother goes on. Line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. God has been teaching some of us thirty years, and some of us sixty years, one word of one syllable, and we do not know it yet—faith, faith. When we come to that word we stumble, we halt, we lose our place, we pronounce it wrong. Still, God's patience is not exhausted. God, our Mother, puts us in the school of prosperity, and the letters are in sunshine, and we can not spell them. God puts us in the school of adversity, and the letters are black, and we can not spell them. If God were merely a King, he would punish us; if He were simply a father, He would whip us; but God is a mother, and so we are borne with and helped all the way through.

A mother teaches her child chiefly by pictures. If she wants to set forth to her child the hideousness of a quarrelsome spirit, instead of giving a lecture upon that subject, she turns over a leaf and shows the child two boys in a wrangle, and says: "Does not that look horrible?" If she wants to teach her child the awfulness of war, she turns over the picture-book and shows the war charger, the headless trunks of butchered men, the wild, bloodshot eye of battle rolling under lids of flame, and she says, "That is war!" The child understands it. In a great many books the best part are the pictures. The style may be insipid, the type poor, but a picture always attracts a child's attention. Now God, our Mother, teaches us almost everything by pictures. Is the divine goodness to be set forth? How does God, our Mother, teach us? By an autumnal picture. The barns are full. The wheat stacks are rounded. The cattle are chewing the cud lazily in the sun. The orchards are dropping the ripe pippins into the lap of the farmer. The natural world, that has been busy all summer, seems now to be resting in great abundance. We look at the picture and say, "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness, and Thy paths drop fatness." Our family comes around the breakfast table. It has been a very cold night, but the children are all bright, because they slept under thick coverlids, and they are now in the warm blast of the open register, and their appetites make luxuries out of the plainest fare, and we look at the picture and say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul."

God wishes to set forth the fact that in the judgment the good will be divided from the wicked. How is it done? By a picture, by a parable—a fishing scene.

A group of hardy men, low-bearded, geared for standing to the waist in water; sleeves rolled up. Long oar, sungilt; boat battered as though it had been a playmate of the storm. A full net, thumping about with the fish, which have just discovered their captivity, the worthless moss-bunkers and the useful flounders all in the same net. The fisherman puts his hand down amid the squirming fins, takes out the moss-bunkers and throws them into the water and gathers the good fish into the pail. So, says Christ, it shall be at the end of the world. The bad he will cast away, and the good he will keep. Another picture.

God, our mother, wanted to set forth the duty of neighborly love, and it is done by a picture. A heap of wounds on the road to Jericho. A traveler has been fighting a robber. The robber stabbed him and knocked him down. Two ministers come along. They look at the poor fellow, but do not help him. A traveler comes along—a Samaritan. He says "whoa" to the beast he is riding, and dismounts. He examines the wounds; he takes out some wine, and with it washes the wounds, and then he takes some oil and puts that in to make the wound stop smarting, and then tears off a piece of his own garment for a bandage. Then he helps the wounded man upon the beast and walks by the side, holding him on until they come to a tavern. He says to the landlord: "Here is money to pay the man's board for two days. Take care of him. If it costs anything more, charge it to me and I will pay it." Picture—The Good Samaritan, or Who is Your Neighbor?"

Does God, our Mother, want to set forth what a foolish thing it is to go away from the right, and how good divine mercy is to take back the wanderer? How is it done. By a picture. A good father. Large farm with fat sheep and oxen. Fine house, with exquisite wardrobe. Discontented boy. Goes way. Sharpers fleece him. Feeds hogs. Gets homesick. Starts back. Sees an old man running. It is father! The hand, torn of the husks, gets a ring. The foot, inflamed and bleeding, gets a sandal. The bare shoulder, showing through the tatters, gets a robe. The stomach, gnawing itself with hunger, gets a full platter smoking with meat.

The father can not eat for looking at the returned adventurer. Tears running down the face until they come to a smile—the night dew melting into the morning. No work on the farm that day, for when a bad boy repents and comes back, promising to do better, God knows that is enough for one day. "And they began to be merry." Picture—Prodigal Son returned from the wilderness. So God, our Mother, teaches us everything by pictures. The sinner is a lost sheep. Jesus is the Bridegroom. The useless man a barren fig tree. The Gospel is a great supper. Satan, a sower of tares. Truth, a mustard seed. That which we could not have understood in the abstract statement, God, our Mother, presents to us in the Bible album of pictures, God engraved. Is not the Divine Maternity ever thus teaching us?

I remark again, that God has a mother's favoritism. A father some times shows a sort of favoritism. Here is a boy—strong, well, of high forehead and quick intellect. The father says, "I will take that boy into my firm yet;" or "I will give him the very best possible education." There are instances where, for the culture of the one boy, all the others have been robbed. A sad favoritism; but that is not the mother's favorite. I will tell you her favorite. There is a child who at two years of age had a fall. He has never got over it. The scarlet fever muffled his hearing. He is not what he once was. That child has caused the mother more anxious nights than all the other children. If he coughs in the night she springs out of a sound sleep and goes to him. The last thing she does when going out of the house is to give a charge in regard to him. The first thing on coming in is to ask in regard to him. Why, the children of the family all know that he is the favorite, and say: "Mother, you let him do just as he pleases, and you give him a great many things which you do not give us. He is your favorite." The mother smiles; she knows it is so. So he ought to be; for if there is any one in the world that needs sympathy more than another, it is an invalid child, weary on the first mile of life's journey; carrying an aching head, a weak side, an irritated lung. So the mother ought to make him a favorite. God, our Mother, has favorites. "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." That is, one whom He especially loves He chasteneth.

God loves us all; but is there one weak, and sick, and sore, and wounded, and suffering, and faint? That is the one who lies nearest and more perpetually on the great, loving heart of God. Why, it never coughs but our Mother, God, hears it. It never stirs a weary limb in the bed but our Mother, God, knows of it. There is no such watcher as God. The best nurse may be overborne by fatigue, and fall asleep in the chair; but God, our Mother, after being up a year of nights with a suffering child, never slumbers or sleeps.

"Oh!" says one, "I can not understand all that about affliction." A refiner of silver once explained it to a Christian lady: "I put the silver in the fire, and I keep refining it and trying it till I can see my face in it, and I then take it out."

Just so it is that God keeps His dear children in the furnace till the divine image may be seen in them, then they are taken out of the fire. "Well," says some one, "if that is the way God treats His favorites I do not want to be a favorite." There is a barren field on an autumn day just wanting to be let alone. There is a bang at the bars, and a rattle of whiffle-trees and clevices. The field says: "What is the farmer going to do with me now?" The farmer puts the plow in the ground, shouts to the horses, the coulter goes tearing through the sod, and the furrows reach from fence to fence. Next day there is a bang at the bars and a rattle of the whiffle-trees again. The field says: "I wonder what the farmer is going to do now?" The farmer hitches the horses to the harrow and it goes bounding and tearing across the field.

Next day there is a rattle at the bars again, and the field says, "What is the farmer going to do now?" He walks heavily across the field, scattering seed as he walks. After a while a cloud comes. The field says, "What, more trouble?" It begins to rain. After a while the wind changes to the northeast, and it begins to snow. Says the field: "Is it not enough that I have been torn and trampled upon and drowned? Must I now be snowed under?" After a while spring comes out of the gates of the south, and warmth and gladness come with it. A green scarf bandages the gash of the wheat field, and the July morning drops a crown of gold on the head of the grain. "Oh!" says the field, "now I know the use of the plow, of the harrow, of the heavy foot, of the shower, and of the snow-storm. It is well enough to be trodden, and trampled, and drowned, and snowed under, if in the end I can yield such a glorious harvest." "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

When I see God especially busy in troubling and trying a Christian, I know that out of that Christian's character there is to come some especial good. A quarryman goes down into the excavation and with strong-handed machinery bores into the rock. The rock says: "What do you do that for?" He puts powder in; he lights a fuse. There is a thundering crash. The rock says: "Why, the whole mountain is going to pieces." The crowbar is plunged; the rock is dragged out. After a while it is taken into the artist's studio. It says: "Well, now I have got to a good, warm, comfortable place at last." But the sculptor takes the chisel and mallet, and he digs for the eyes, and he cuts for the mouth, and he bores for the ear, and he rubs it with sand paper, until the rock says: "When will this torture be ended?"

A sheet is thrown over it. It stands in darkness. After a while it is taken out. The covering is removed. It stands in the sunlight, in the presence of 10,000 applauding people, as they greet the statue of the poet, of the prince, or the conqueror. "Ah!" says the stone, "now I understand it. I am a great deal better off standing as a statue of a conqueror than I would have been down in the quarry." So God finds a man down in a quarry of ignorance and sin. How to get him up? He must be bored, and blasted, and chiseled, and scoured, and stand sometimes in the darkness.

But after awhile the mantle of affliction will fall off, and his soul will be greeted by the one hundred and forty-four thousand, and the thousands of thousands, as more than conqueror. Oh, my friends, God, our Mother, is just as kind in our afflictions as in our prosperities. God never touches us but for our good. If a field sown in tears [illegible] better off than a barren field, and if a stone that has become a statue is better off than the marble in the quarry, then that soul that God chastens may be His favorite. Oh, the rocking of the soul is not the rocking of an earthquake, but the rocking of God's cradle. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." I have been told that the pearl in an oyster is merely the result of a wound or a sickness inflicted upon it, and I do not know but that the brightest gems of Heaven will be found to have been the wounds of earth kindled into the jeweled brightness of eternal glory.

I remark that God has a mother's capacity for attending to little hurts. The father is shocked at the broken bone of the child, or at the sickness that sets the cradle on fire with fever, but it takes the mother to sympathise with all the little ailments and little bruises of the child. If the child has a splinter in its hand it wants the mother to take it out, and not the father. The father says, "Oh, that is nothing," but the mother knows it is something, and that a little hurt sometimes is very great. So with God, our Mother; all all our annoyances are important enough to look at and sympathise with.

Nothing with God is something. There are no cyphers in God's arithmetic. And if we were only good enough of sight, we could see as much through a microscope as through a telescope. Those things which may be impalpable and infinitisimal to us, may be pronounced and infinite to God. A mathematical point is defined as having no parts, no magnitude. It is so small you can not imagine it, and yet a mathematical point may be the starting point of a great eternity. God's surveyors carry a long chain. A scale must be very delicate that can weigh a grain, but God's scale is so delicate that He can weigh with it that which is so small that a grain is a million times heavier.

When John Kitto, a poor boy on a back street of Plymouth, cut his foot with a piece of glass, God bound it up so successfully that he became the great Christian geographer and a commentator known among all nations. So every wound of the soul, however insignificant, God is willing to bind up. As at the first cry of the child the mother rushes to kiss the wound, so God, our Mother, takes the smallest wound of the heart, and presses it to the lips of divine sympathy. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

I remark further that God has a mother's patience for the erring. If one does wrong, first his associates in life cast him off; if he goes on in the wrong way his business partner casts him off; if he goes on his best friends cast him off—his father casts him off. But after all others have cast him off, where does he go?

Who holds no grudge, and forgives the last time as well as the first? Who sits by the murderer's counsel all through the long trial? Who tarries the longest at the windows of a culprit's cell? Who, when all others think ill of a man, keeps on thinking well of him? It is his mother. God bless her gray hairs, if she be still alive, and bless her grave, if she be gone. And bless the rocking chair in which she used to sit, and bless the cradle that she used to rock, and bless the Bible she used to read! So God, our Mother, has patience for all the erring. After every body else has cast a man off, God, our Mother, comes to the rescue. God leaps to take charge of a bad case. After all the other doctors have got through, the Heavenly Physician comes in. Human sympathy at such a time does not amount to much.

Even the sympathy of the church, I am sorry to say, often does not amount to much. I have seen the most harsh and bitter treatment on the part of those who professed faith in Christ toward those who were wavering and erring. They tried on the wanderer sarcasm, and Billingsgate and caricature, and they tried tittle-tattle. There was one thing they did not try, and that was forgiveness. A soldier in England was brought by a sergeant to the colonel. "What?" says the colonel, "bringing the man here again! We have tried everything with him." "Oh, no," says the sergeant, "there is one thing you have not tried. I would like you to try that." "What is that?" said the colonel. Said the man, "Forgiveness." The case had not gone so far but that it might take that turn, and so the colonel said: "Well, young man; you have done so and so. What is your excuse?" "I have no excuse, but I am very sorry," said the man. "We have made up our minds to forgive you," said the colonel. The tears started. He had never been accosted in that way before. His life was reformed, and that was the starting point for a positively Christian life. Oh, Church of God, quit your sarcasm when a man falls! Quit your irony, quit your tittle-tattle, and try forgiveness. God, your Mother, tries it all the time. A man's sin may be like a continent, but God's forgiveness is like the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, bounding it on both sides.

The Bible often talks about God's hand. I wonder how it looks. You remember distinctly how your mother's hand looked, though thirty years ago it withered away. It was different from your father's hand. When you were to be chastised, you had rather have mother punish you than father. It did not hurt so much. And father's hand was different from mother's, partly because it had out-door toil and partly because God intended it to be different. The knuckles were more firmly set and the palm was calloused. But mother's hand was more delicate. There were blue veins running through the back of it. Though the fingers, some of them, were pricked with a needle, the palm of it was soft. Oh! It was very soft. Was there ever any poultice like that to take the pain out of a wound? So God's hand is a mother's hand. What it touches it heals. If it smite you it does not hurt as if it were another hand. Oh! You poor wandering soul in sin, it is not a bailiff's hand that seizes you to-day. It is not a hard hand. It is not an unsympathetic hand. It is not a cold hand. It is not an enemy's hand. No. It is a gentle hand, a loving hand, a sympathetic hand, a soft hand, a mother's hand. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

The Bible.

The Bible is a whole library in one volume. It contains sixty-six separate books written by forty authors during twenty-five centuries. It treats of a multitude of topics in popular phraseology, but with a substantial accuracy. Lord Bacon and John Locke went to it for philosophy. Milton drank poetic inspiration from this fountain. Its history eclipses Herodotus or Thucydides. In scientific correctness it is the amazement of scientists. Yet these subjects are only collateral and incidental. Its main purpose is to make God known to man and to make man Godlike.

How came these sixty-six treatises by these forty writers, penned at intervals during twenty-five centuries, to make one book, with a single purpose. The Christian explanation is that it was divinely supervised. Is there any other imaginable explanation which would so well fit into the facts and account for the mystery?—St. Louis Republic.

—Folded hands are not necessarily religious ones, says Ruskin. [illegible]