Night Driving Knowledge Needed To Prevent After-Dark Accidents

By Julien H. Harvey

(This is another in a series of articles on street and highway safety, written by nationally recognized accident prevention specialists and published in this newspaper in the interests of greater traffic safety.)

The hours of darkness are the most dangerous for both motorists and pedestrians. Despite the fact that more than half of the annual number of hours are daylight, and that traffic is lightest between midnight and dawn, the night-time mileage death rate continues to exceed the daytime rate, year after year.

The reasons for this are well known to safety specialists and drivers will learn them, too, and adapt their driving habits accordingly, if they are instructed by darkness, much needless tragedy and needless waste can be prevented.

Visibility is a vital element in safe driving at all times. At night it must be provided by proper street lighting and proper driving lights. In times past the measurement of good street lighting was thought to be the amount of candle power of light source and the number of lights on a given roadway. Recent research specialists have established the fact that our chief concern is the area and the road surface brightness of an object, and the work street lighting is thus being designed in accordance with that knowledge. Obviously, adequate street and highway lighting is based on and of vital importance to their surfaces. However, for vehicle operation, particularly on miles of road, where traffic density does not justify special types of highway lighting, we must depend on headlights. Indeed, we must rely on efficient headlights at all times. When properly used, modern headlamps of the "sealed beam" type provide safe seeing conditions for night driving. In addition, a wise motorist plans his vehicle operation in an entirely different way than when he drives during the day.

One of the first rules of night driving is to remember that, however well lighted the road, and however powerful the headlights, visibility is always lower at night. Seeing distances naturally diminish, and therefore it is important for motorists to resist the temptation to drive at night, even though traffic may be very light. There are other, very definite darkness hazards. Pedestrians who are walking, or bicycle or horse-drawn vehicles, have difficulty in seeing, and depression may throw a speeding automobile from the highway.

The following precautions are recommended by safety specialists:

When approaching a curve or hill, speed should be reduced to the point where the motorist can easily stop within the range of his headlights.

Temporary blindness caused by the glare of approaching headlights is a frequent cause of death and injury at night. When confronted by glaring headlights, the motorist should keep his eyes fixed on the side of the road, away from the glare, and in the same time direct his own lights to a lower beam.

Intoxicated drivers are a special night-time hazard. Studies have shown that between 50 and 91 percent of accidents involving drinking drivers occurred at night. Many night-time street and highway accidents happen in the vicinity of roadhouses and night clubs, and it is necessary here to be on the alert for both motorists and pedestrians.

If possible, a window should be kept open for better circulation of air and for better hearing. A clean windshield and crystal-clear headlight lenses are essential.

No city or town can afford to be without proper street lighting. Every citizen can help reduce accidents by seeing that adequate lighting is provided in his community. And every motorist can make it his individual responsibility to drive intelligently at night.

1948 MARCH OF DIMES CAMPAIGN BEST IN YEARS

The 1948 March of Dimes held last January brought the best results of any previous campaign in Kentucky. The gross receipts were $249,970.62 or an increase of 3.93% over the 1947 campaign, according to Dr. G. T. Carmichael, State Campaign chairman.

The people of Nicholas county, under the leadership of Mrs. M. C. Sheerer, contributed a total of $884.61 or 2.21c for every person in the county.

According to Dr. Carmichael, the receipts of this campaign came at a time when they are most needed by the Kentucky Chapter. During the past year expenses for care of polio patients have completely overwhelmed the Chapter of funds so that the money raised in the 1948 March of Dimes will be used immediately to provide care during the coming months.

LOCAL BREAK IN POWER

The flow of electricity to Carlisle and numerous other Central and Northeastern Kentucky cities and towns was interrupted for more than an hour Tuesday afternoon when a spectacular two-alarm warehouse fire in Lexington caused insulators on nearby high tension lines to crack.

The blaze, pitched by an explosion of inflammables stored inside, destroyed the wholesale warehouse of Wombwell Automotive Parts Company in Lexington. The loss was tentatively estimated at more than $200,000.

The high tension line, serving the Kentucky Utilities Company's Lexington power station on North Limestone from Dix Dam and Tyrone, were knocked out at 4:34 p. m. cutting power in Lexington, Paris, Georgetown, Cynthiana, Winchester, Maysville, Carlisle and Millersburg.

Democratic Delegates Are Given Free Hand At National Convention

Kentucky Democrats Tuesday voted to send an uninstructed, unit-voting delegation to the Democratic National Convention to choose party nominees for President and Vice President.

The strategy behind this action is to keep the delegation free to vote for Kentucky's Senator Alben W. Barkley should his name be placed before the convention for either office.

It came at the Democratic State Convention of Club Madrid, Louisville, after the 70-year-old Barkley roared reproof at the Republican Congress in a 53-minute speech that was taken to be a preview of the keynote speech he will deliver at the national convention.

The state convention followed closely on the heels of the county convention which was held here Saturday. The committee resolution adopted by Robert B. Hanton, executive chairman of the Democratic Party in Nicholas county, proposed that the county also send an uninstructed delegation to Louisville.

Delegates appointed were Mrs. Andrew J. B. Barton, Sterling R. Blake, William Conley, Walter Shepherd, Stanley Blake, William J. Clark, Edgar Huffstetter, G. C. Rafferty and Shelman Hanon. Alternates named were: Charles M. Coy, Beulah Hughes, John F. Sugg, Walter Hoskins, John P. Rose, Paul Cameron, Robert Curtis, Luther Heller, John Clinkenbeard and W. S. Owings.

Nicholas FHA Girls Given State Degree

Four members of the Nicholas County Chapter, Future Homemakers of America, received recognition at the Kentucky Association of Future Homemakers of America meeting held June 4-5 at Murray State College, Murray.

The four members receiving State Homemaker Degrees were: Dolores Conrad, Phyllis Cook, Jacqueline Moore and Frances Ritchie. These four local girls were included among a total of 26 applicants from over the state, 18 of which received the degree.

In addition the Nicholas County Chapter received the Certificate Award of Merit for reaching the home roll chapter standards for the state. The Nicholas County Chapter received a rating of good on the Chapter Scrapbook at the state meeting. This same scrapbook received a rating of excellent at the Lexington District meeting of the organization held in Wilmore.

Those attending the state meeting were Misses Conrad, Cook, Miller, and Miss Olive Stewart, leader.

MRS. HARTSHORN RESIGNS

Mrs. Maxine Hartshorn, superintendent of the Assemblies of God Sunday School for the past three years, has submitted her resignation to become effective July 1, it was announced today.

Mrs. Hartshorn was appointed to her position by the board of directors of the Assemblies of God of the Nicholas District. Mrs. Hartshorn took over the work shortly after the death of her husband.

No successor to the post has been announced by the board of directors.

During the time that Mrs. Hartshorn has been in charge of the home a total of 63 youngsters have been admitted.

SIXTH DISTRICT DEMOS LAUD CHAPMAN RECORD

LOUISVILLE—Sixth District Democrats in the Mayo-Gist Convention here Tuesday unanimously lauded for the principal record" of Representative Virgil Chapman, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the senatorial nomination. Chapman has served 22 years in Congress from the Sixth District.

A resolution adopted by the District Convention stated in part: "We, the Democrats of the Sixth Congressional District—recognize the right of all Democrats to run in Primaries. We criticize no Democrat who has ambition to represent Kentucky in the United States Senate. However, in view of the long, able and faithful stewardship of the Honorable Virgil Chapman, Representative in Congress from this District, and on account of the great service he has rendered the citizens of the District and the Nation, we desire to endorse his fine public record and recommend him to the Democracy of Kentucky for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate."

Factory Planning Open House June 18

In order that all residents of Carlisle and Nicholas county may have the opportunity of seeing the operations necessary to the production of men's and boys' shorts and T-shirts, an open house has been arranged for Friday, June 18, by the Gilfin Manufacturing Company.

Lonnie Griffin, president of the local manufacturing concern, said hours for the open house have been set from 1 to 4 p. m. and during the open house, the company will hold a dance for its employes at 5 p. m.

The company has been awarded a contract for full production for Cooper's Inventory, Wis., manufacturers of nationally advertised shorts, Giffin said. The contract, completed last weekend, will mean full production of the local company for at least a year.

Within the next two months one-half million yards of goods will be received by the local company for Cooper's production. At present rate of production, 1,000 pairs of shorts a week, this material will be sufficient to assure production of the local company for a year, Giffin said.

Beginning production in Carlisle on June 12 of this year with less than 10 persons on the payroll, the firm has now increased its production personnel to 50 persons, having an annual payroll of $75,000. In addition to these 50 employes, there are other persons in executive and supervisory positions with the company.

SEVEN LOCAL STUDENTS GRADUATED FROM U. K.

Seven Nicholas and Bracken county students were among the 915, the largest graduating class in the history of the University of Kentucky, receiving degrees at the annual commencement held Friday on Stoll field.

Local residents graduated were:

Mary Hinkle, John Hopkins, John G. Irvin, Lloyd Kenney, Ben Pumphrey and Richard Snelling, Carlisle; George Judge, Moorefield.

Court Increases Tax Levy To Pay Hospital Bonds

An increase of 15 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property over the regular levy of 50 cents in Nicholas county was levied to pay the principal and interest on hospital bonds voted last November at a meeting of fiscal court held here Saturday.

The special levy, which increases the rate to 65 cents on $100 worth of taxable property, will be used to pay the principal and interest on the hospital bonds and to provide for the maintenance of the hospital.

The regular levy provides 30 cents for the general expense fund and 20 cents for the road and bridge fund. A levy of 20 cents on each $100 worth of bank shares also was set by the court.

James Parker, cashier of the Deposit Bank of Carlisle, was appointed custodian of the Nicholas County Hospital fund. This fund will be used as directed by the fiscal court.

Fiscal court moved to accept the alternate bid of the Thomas E. Miller Company of $10,833 for laying asbestos cement pipe to provide a waterline from the city limits to the hospital site. The company offered to lay for $12,594 providing for the use of cast iron pipe for the waterline. The court accepted the alternate bid after they were advised that cast iron pipe might not be available for six months to one year.

Local Credit Man Attends State Meet

"Production credit associations not only have the responsibility of supplying their members with sound short-term agricultural credit for constructive purposes, but it is also their responsibility to avoid making loans for unwarranted expansion, speculative activities, and other essential purposes that will add to inflationary pressures."

This responsibility in the public interest was pointed out to some 100 representatives of Kentucky's production credit association on June 2 by C. R. Arnold, Production Credit Commissioner, Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C. The FCA men were in Lexington at a meeting sponsored by the University of Kentucky and FCA's.

"We have been going through a period of very profitable agricultural operations that never experienced before," Arnold said.

"It has been easy for some farm operators to become careless and extravagant in their methods of doing business. Rising prices have obscured many of these weaknesses. It has been only a moderate decline in prices of farm products and farm commodities to bring embarrassment to over-extended operators and their creditors.

"The future progress of associations and the long-term benefit they will be to agriculture depend upon how soundly they make and service short-term loans to their members."

Representing the Eastern Kentucky Production Credit Association of Flemingsburg at the meeting were: P.W.G. Suit, Flemingsburg; H. D. Irvin, Carlisle, W. E. Gill, Grayson and W. A. Fyffe, Louisa.

Upsets Favored In Softball Tilts

Moorefield and Stone's Service pulled mild upsets Friday night when they defeated the Scouts and Coatneys respectively in two of the best softball games seen locally in many a day.

Moorefield downed the Scouts 6-5 in a game that was a thriller all the way. There was one out in the last inning when the winning run was scored. The game was featured by the spectacular fielding of the entire Moorefield team.

The second game was a hurling duel between Vaughn and Toomey, in which Vaughn supported brilliantly in the field, emerged the victor 2-1. Coatney led one hitting attack going into the last of the fifth inning. Stones scored one in the fifth and one in the sixth to win the ball game.

In Tuesday's games Caswell set Sharpsburg down with two hits while the Scouts were piling up a lopsided score of 11-0. Moorefield defeated the Guards 7-3 in another exciting ball game.

The Guards have yet to win a game, but they put up a real battle each time out.

Friday, June 11 should be the best night so far. Stones will tangle with the Scouts and Coatneys will take on Moorefield in two free-for-all battles for the leadership of the league. Coatneys, Stones and Moorefield are tied for the leadership with three victories and one defeat each, while the Scouts are only a notch behind with two and two. Tuesday night, June 15, the Guards will play Sharpsburg and Coatneys will play the Maxwell team from Lexington. This is said to be one of the best teams in Lexington. They should be worth coming out to see.

Ralls Will Filed In Bourbon Court

The will of Clarence E. Ralls, Bourbon county farmer, a victim of suicide May 28 at his home near Little Rock, was probated Friday in Bourbon county court.

The residue of the estate was to be managed and operated by the executors until his grandchildren, James Faulkner and Edwin Clark Ralls, become of age. At that time the estate was to have been divided one-fourth to his son, the late James E. Ralls, and one-fourth to his late wife, Mrs. Alpha Clark Ralls, and one-fourth to each of the grandchildren.

The will provided that at the death of any of those designated, the estate should go to the named grandchildren or their survivors.

During the minority of the grandchildren the estate was to have been managed and operated by his son and his wife as executors.

The son and wife were named executors and guardians of the grandchildren with the stipulation that no surety be required. If either should fail to act or refuse to act as executor, Ralls named the Bourbon Agricultural Bank and Trust company. In accordance with the will, the bank qualified as executor of the estate with bond fixed at $15,000.

The bank also qualified as administrator of the estate of Ralls' wife, under $11,000 bond, with no surety required, and as administrator of James E. Ralls under $5,000 bond.

The will of Ralls was dated May 7, 1948.
