NEWS In The World Of Religion

By W. W. Reid

"The first disciples proclaimed the event of the greatest significance", says Presiding Bishop Henry K. Sherrill of the Protestant Episcopal Church in his annual Easter message. "He is risen! In the whole history of mankind there is no news to compare with this—for Christ is a fact which has to do with God, eternal life and the destiny of every child of God. To be sure we have heard this all our lives. It is a story which is almost two thousand years old and therefore may be presumed to have no news value today. But there is such a thing as having ears and yet not hearing. Sometimes a familiar truth comes to have immediate and vital significance. Death is as old as life, yet when death touches our own, it is a new experience. Sin is venerable, but when we are gripped by temptation, it is a battle to be fought and won. So it is with the Good News of Easter. If we could only grasp its meaning for ourselves and for ourselves, all things would be made new. Selfishness would give way, the burden of guilt and despair would be lifted. Men would live as children of God. Here then is Good News."

In hundreds of Protestant churches throughout the United States, there will be a minimum of flowers on the altars this year because of the shortage of pre-war years. Some of the larger city churches emitted all Easter flowers during the war, and issued sent money for relief in the war-stricken areas. Today Easter plants are being similarly used, especially to aid the Church World Service, the Protestant Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, Inc., 50 Broad Street, New York 4, N. Y., or for denominational relief projects.

It is critically important for the American people and the American churches to understand communism, what it stands for, and what it plans, and the reasons for its apparent successes, in the opinion of Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, executive of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, whose missionaries are in contact with communistic leaders in both Europe and Asia. "We cannot combat communism by prayer alone. We Americans especially need to understand the ideology and force that is making itself felt today all the world. Unfortunately we do not understand it and if we try to we are accused of being proponents of it. What is being attacked is evil—communism is the pre-supposition that lies at the base of all religion—that there is a God in the universe. Unless the church can meet this issue it cannot last long. The world is not interested in denominationalism, in the things that divide us, in denominational eccentricities. The issue is whether or not God and Christ are able to meet the needs of men. All our churches must have a united message for the world today. We must not substitute the channels for the message."

Forty thousand Polish Lutherans now in Czechoslovakia are planning to affiliate with the Church of the Czech Brethren, Dr. Joseph Krenek, of Prague, president of the Church of the Czech Brethren, recently reported to the World Council of Churches. Dr. Krenek stated that the work of the churches in Czechoslovakia is being carried on without interference from government authorities and that progress is being made in the organization of new congregations. He reported that 60 per cent of Czechoslovakia's 12,000,000 population are Roman Catholics, and about 10 per cent Protestants. But the Lutheran Church has 450,000 members, the Czech Brethren 400,000, the Congregationlists 7,000, the Baptists 4,000, and the Methodists 1,000.

Many hundreds of Methodists and other church people in America have recently signed contracts to pray daily for the welfare of China. The call for prayer comes through Bishop W. Y. Chen, of the Methodist Church, who is also secretary of the National Christian Council of China. He says "China is facing a great crisis. In Chinese, crisis means danger and opportunity. Pray for China that she may be delivered from all dangers. Seize opportunity for Christian advance is unique. The National Christian Council has launched a three-year Christian Forward Movement. The watchword is 'All for Christ and Christ for All.' Will you remember this each day in your prayers? We need God's help through prayer." The form of prayer compact is: "I purpose to pray daily: Lord Jesus, Redeemer, bless the Chinese Christians. Help everyone to enlist for this today. Help everyone who believes in Thee to be a witness, too. For Jesus' sake. Amen."

Sportsmen's Notes

The fishing season is definitely upon us. Last week Bert Fouchet, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, purchased his annual fishing license. As is his custom the director ambled over to Guy Wathen, director of the Division, and pleaded with him for fishing privileges, and by this the office force knew of the fishing season was just around the corner. All members of the office force purchase licenses just as do other fishermen in Kentucky. The director and other personnel of the Division often are given complimentary fishing privileges in other states but pay for their rights without objection in Kentucky. Very few complimentary licenses are given away by the Division. According to the State law, licenses may be given the chief executive of this and other States and officials in Federal Fish and Wildlife Services. No more than 50 may be issued in one year and it is rare that that number is distributed by the Division.

All activities of the Division are supported wholly by revenue from the sale of hunting, fishing, trapping and other license fees and the Division employees realize the importance of this revenue more than anyone else.

Five officials of the Division of Game and Fish attended the 10th annual North American Wildlife Conference at St. Louis, Monday and Tuesday of the beginning of this week. Speakers and wildlife technicians from throughout North America were present and discussed many problems of research, game and fish stocking and coordination of soil conservation agencies. Those from the Division attending the meeting were: Earl Wallace, Director and Ed Adams, John Clark, Minor Clark and Harold Alexander.

Small Flock Pays Off

Poultry producers in Mason county who carried out recommended rules of feeding and caring for their flocks found it paid. On-farm unusually cold weather, Mrs. Gus Kalb gathered 21,94 eggs per hen in a month, and had a profit of $76.56 on 116 hens. Mrs. John Dodge had 19 eggs per hen and a profit of $49.50 on 64 hens, while Mrs. Harry Lowe had 19.5 eggs per hen and a profit of $92.76 on 166 hens.

Women Improve Farm Entrances

In line with the state-wide homemakers program of improvement in farm entrances by having gates in good condition, making plantings and painting the names of farms on mail boxes, many homemakers in Mason county have told Home Agent Sidney R. Hinton of work started.

Miss Elsie Draper, president of the Mayslick Homemakers Club, reported the removal at an old gate and the naming of their farm "Grand View." Mrs. Anna Lowe by chose "Cedars" as the name of her farm; Mrs. Ernest Stone, "Stone Ridge," Mrs. M. B. Tolley, "Mason's Edge," Mrs. W. J. Buckley, "Edge Water Farm," and Mrs. J. M. Hildreth, "Rolling Meadows."

Makes Big Yield Of Dark Tobacco

A yield of 1,832 pounds of dark tobacco on seven-tenths of an acre was made by Carl Johnson of Lewis county, according to Frank Burnett, Extension Agronomist.

Farm Agent Warren Thompson said Johnson's record could be made on many farms if his methods were used. He applied generous amounts of fertilizer and manure, turned under a good stand of crimson clover and set 40 percent more plants than are usually grown.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Layton of near Carlisle entertained the following guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Faulconer of near Cynthiana and Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Tillett of near Mt. Olivet.

Formal Opening Of Funeral Chapel To Be Held Friday And Saturday; Two Firm Members Are Retiring

Residents of Carlisle and Nicholas county are invited to attend an invitation to attend the formal opening of the new funeral chapel at Mathers-Potter-Shearer funeral home which will be held from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. Friday and Saturday.

The chapel, only recently completed, may be entered from the ground level of the funeral home, located in the Masonic hall on Locust street. Entry is made by a single door and then through double doors which complete the foyer.

Although modern in design, the chapel is so arranged that referent dignity is evident upon entry. It is indirectly lighted, gray colored drapes are hung at the windows and the lighting is further softened by aluminum shaded vertical blinds.

The chapel proper is equipped with white benches and the room is located at the left of the chapel and the music room is located at the right. The walls and ceiling are painted with celotex and the accoustics are excellent.

A parking lot has been added at the rear and side of the funeral home eliminating the hazards of traffic and congestion on adjacent streets and alleys.

The chapel has a seating capacity of 250 persons.

Beginning the formal opening of the new chapel will be the retirement of two familiar faces of the present firm. Mrs. Taylor Mathers, who has been closely associated with the firm since the death of her husband on February 22, 1943, and Henry D. Potter, who has had an interest in the firm since 1909, have announced that they have sold their interests and will no longer be associated with the firm after April 1.

Beginning next month the firm will be identified as Mathers-Shearer funeral home.

Marion T. Mathers and M. F. Shearer, junior partners in the firm, have purchased the interests of Mrs. Mathers and Mr. Potter and beginning next month, will be sole owners.

The present transaction marks the passage of another milestone in the history of local funeral affairs.

As early as 1824 Henry and Mock operated a furniture store and also sold coffins in a building which was located on the lot now occupied by the home of Mrs. Walter Wright on Locust street. The building, a two-story brick structure, was destroyed by fire 10 years ago.

W. H. Mathers, father of Miss Ida Howard, bought Mr. Henry's interest and William Dinsmore later purchased the interest of Mr. Mock. B. F. Adair, grandfather of Miss Evalyn Ross, later bought Dinsmore's interest, from which then was identified as Howard, Dinsmore and Adair.

The Taylor Mathers' purchased the interest of Mr. Adair in 1898 and a few years later he secured Mr. Howard's interest. Later he secured the interests of Mr. Dinsmore. Mr. Mathers sold his furniture interests in the firm and built a building in which is presently owned by Allen Hopkins on Q. T. F. Adair, grandfather of Miss Evalyn Ross, later bought Mathers' interest in the firm which then was identified as Adair and Son.

The building sold by Mr. Mathers was purchased by the Lee Cole Company and Mr. Mathers bought the building next door he occupied by his furniture store.

A merger of two undertaking firms was made in 1906 when L. T. Potts and Son and the Taylor Mathers and Son firms, L. T. Potts resigned and Mr. Taylor Mathers became sole owner. Later Mr. Potter and Mr. Mathers became owners of Mathers-Potts company.

In 1914, Taylor Mathers, the Masonic lodge and Mr. Mathers erected the brick building on Locust street in which the firm now has been located.

Following the death of Mr. Mathers in 1943 Mr. Potts and Mrs. Mathers sold a share in the business to Marion T. Mathers and Mr. Shearer.

Clements Clicks With Legislators

Gov. Earle Clements' program to make Kentucky more prosperous got hearty approval from the General Assembly that has just adjourned.

He called for boards to study and promote the community wealth's agricultural and industrial resources, the sources of additional revenues in minerals, the expansion of farm products.

He asked for two cents more on the state gasoline tax to give the state better secondary and rural roads, making the total tax seven cents a gallon.

He asked for laws to enable Kentucky veterans to get federal aid and for larger payments for deaths and injuries in workers' compensation benefits for those losing their jobs and savings to employers who have laid off veterans.

He asked for lower taxes on stocks and bonds and for a reciprocal insurance tax—both designed to attract business to the state.

He asked for a Legislative Research Commission to make a continuing study of state affairs, and for a course of future general assemblies.

He backed a state-wide pari-mutuel betting and got a three per cent tax—the first increase in the collection.

These were some of the big issues on which the Governor and his chief advisers in the legislature decided were necessary. They were enacted into law with little or no trouble or protest, such as that from some Eastern Kentucky and other coal mining counties, which felt the higher gasoline tax.

While the Democratic administration program went smiling through with little or no trouble there were scores of other bills that caused fights for a time and then died with the end of the session. Among them were measures to:

Establish movie censorship; ban the sale of lotions with alcohol content greater than permanent waves from time to time; establish a state forest nursery; repeal a law that bars liquor dealers from cutting prices below a specified minimum;

Put an additional one-cent tax on cigarettes and a 20 per cent tax on all other tobacco products; tax greyhound racing; forbid telephone and telegraph companies to furnish race track odds and gambling information.

Exempt graduates of accredited law schools from the Kentucky bar examination; forbid the sale of firecrackers and explosives, the latter bill so broad that apparently it hadn't passed a person couldn't buy shotgun shells.
