Home Demonstration Work In 95 Counties

That rural and farm women of Kentucky are interested in learning the best ways of carrying on the job of homemaking is indicated by the fact that 95 counties in the state have requested and now have home demonstration agents, according to Miss Zlpyrlle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky. During the past year, homemakers clubs increased in number from 479 to 1,218, and club membership from 15,737 to 21,839 women.

In calling attention to National Home Demonstration Week, May 2 to 8, which will be widely observed, Miss Weldon explained that the homemakers club program is built around the needs and interests of the women as expressed by them. Consequently, more than 103,760 farm and rural families reported changes in practices as a result of the cooperative effort of Agricultural Extension workers and more than 1,000 homemakers trained to relay the information to their neighbors. For example:

In 79 counties where help in sewing had been requested, homemakers estimated they saved more than $106,849 by making new garments and remodeling other.

Making their home more attractive through better selection of new furniture, refinishing pieces on hand, or making glass curtains, draperies, slipcovers and lamp shades was reported from 25,745 families.

Better use of time, labor, money and equipment was discussed in 20 counties, where 9,602 families adopted improved housekeeping methods. Homemakers re-arranged 2,503 kitchens for convenience, and added 6,474 storage facilities.

A total of 4,337 families were reached through programs on child care and training, while improved meal planning was reported by 23,792 farm and rural families.

Cash prizes totaling $3,000, appropriated by the State Legislature, will be distributed by Commissioner Walters. Animals winning blue ribbons will be eligible to compete for the Commissioner's Trophy at the Kentucky State Fair in September. Farm youth throughout the state may show dairy cattle at these district shows, and 600 to 1,000 head may be exhibited.

Fescue Helps To Control Erosion

How erosion is being controlled through growing Ky. 31 fescue is seen on the farm of Hershel Mix in Carlisle county, according to Farm Agent J. B. Davie. On land that was badly washed, Mr. Mix filled in gullies with a bulldozer. Then he seeded fescue and ladino clover on the contour, using a complete fertilizer. The fescue made enough growth during the winter to control erosion. To prevent gullying caused by up-and-down-hill travel, Mr. Mix laid out farm roads around the hills.

LANDS FOUE-POUND BASS

Ben H. (Pokey) Pumphrey Jr., Tuesday set a mark for all other fishermen to cut toward with his catch of a four and one-half pound large mouth bass at the Carlisle reservoir. Pumphrey made the catch in the lower lake hooking the bass on a popper which was attached to his reel or plug with a four-foot leader.

Turns Bush Land Into Good Pasture

A year ago, an acre plot on the farm of James F. Bowman in Owsley county was grown up in hickory, persimmon and pine saplings. Mr. Bowman cleared the land and made a good pasture in bald by Farm Agent H. M. Williams.

After grubbing out the underbrush and cutting the trees laid spring, Bowman limed and phosphated the land, then put in a corn crop. After harvesting about 25 bushels of corn to the acre in the fall, he added 600 pounds of complete fertilizer and seeded ladbo rye, orchard grass, redtop and Ky. 31 fescue. In March he started pasturing the rye, and since that time has seeded ladino clover, chicker clover, sweet clover and lespedeza. It is expected that fields like this will result in better pastures in Owsley county, said the agricultural agent.

Stone's And Scouts Win Opening Games

Stone's Service opened the Nicholas County Softball league Friday night by turning back a victory over Moorefield by the score of 7-3. The Scouts also walloped the National Guards 19-0 in the second ballgame.

Stone's Service scored four runs in the first inning and added an insurance run in the sixth. Moorefield settled down and made it a battle the rest of the way. The National Guards were handicapped by some of their best players being tied up with graduating exercises and unable to play the first game.

The Boy Scouts took a commanding lead in the first inning and the game was never in doubt. Both teams were fairly well played for the first of the season, and pitchers and batters will see some evenly matched teams and well played ball games this season.

The hitting and pitching of Vaughn and the pitching of Gray well were the outstanding features of the first game. Friday night Moorefield plays Sharpsburg and the Boy Scouts play Cooney Brothers. The latter should be an excellent game. Most pre-season dope rates the Scouts and Cooney Brothers as the two of the best teams in the league.

There is one mistake on all schedules that have been handed out Friday night. The game was accidentally left off the schedule. Games listed on June 1 are supposed to be May 28, and games listed June 4 are to be played June 1, etc. All games on the schedule are moved up one date accordingly.

COATNEYS AND STONES WIN TUESDAY CONTESTS

Cooney Brothers celebrated their first game with a 12-1 victory over Moorefield. The Stones Service chalked up their second win by walloping the Guards 21-3. The first game was a real ball game for five and one half innings. Cooney Brothers held a one-run margin when they went to bat in the last half of the sixth inning. Suddenly, without warning, they exploded for 10 runs before the second man was retired in the last inning. The other game was a run away from the beginning.

St. John's Church To Begin Triduum Services On Friday

St. John's Catholic Church will hold a Triduum of devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary, beginning Friday. Since the meaning of the Latin word "Triduum" is three days of prayer, the devotions will continue through Saturday and Sunday.

With devotion to the Mother of God has been the custom of the Church from the early days of Christianity and Catholics have always prayed tributes to this lovely Mother in some form of prayer or other. Since the day of Mary's own prophecy: "From henceforth all generations shall call me Blessed" (Luke 1:48), veneration for the Mother of God has taken on various and beautiful forms of prayer and devotion. Among the Novena Services under the titles of Miraculous Mother, "Sorrowful Mother" and "Perpetual Help" have become the most popular in modern days. Of these three, perhaps the last mentioned, undoubtedly the most widespread is the "Devotion to Our Mother of Perpetual Help" Mass" It began in the year 1866 and continued uninterrupted for almost three centuries. The devotion was first spread by army and the subsequent devotion of Pius IX authorized the devotion temporarily while the Redemptorists

In the year 1866 the Redemptorist Fathers took over the church of the Holy Redeemer and introduced the services in almost every church in the world. The center of this devotion is the statue of the Mother of God but a famed miraculous picture of the Sorrowful Mother is the place where the people during the Novena worship Mary. During these days the people will be instructed in the traditional way of saying the prayers that were composed by the celebrated Doctor of the Catholic Church, St. Alphonsus Liguori, Italy. After the introductory Triduum the Novena will be held at St. John's Catholic Church in Carlisle every week for the following six months.

Services for the three days of devotion are as follows:

Friday—Mass followed by a short instruction, every morning at 7:30 p. m.

Devotions including the "Prayer," traditional hymns and a sermon on the picture every evening at 7:30 p. m.

Mother-Baby service—Sunday morning at 9 o'clock

Solemn Close—Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m.

The Rev. Father George H. Strass, C.Ss.R., pastor of St. Mary's will preach the Triduum Triduum.

Non-Catholics, who may be interested to know how and why Catholics pay tribute to the Mother of God are invited to attend the services. Representatives of non-catholics attend these Marian Devotions every year throughout the land.—Contributed.

New Drug Controls Poultry Coccidiosis

A new drug that is getting good results in the control of poultry coccidiosis is sulfaguanidine William T. Straw, county agent, said today.

Eight types of coccidiosis have been found and this new sulfa drug is the most effective dual known to control this disease.

However, the disease should be recognized in its early stage and treatment should be started early for the best results. Sulfa drug should not be given as a preventative and overdosing should be avoided.

Coccidiosis can be identified most commonly in flocks of Tom turkeys 6 to 12 weeks old. The affected birds show paleness about the head, droop and ruffle the hackle and sleep in the corners. Droppings are watery yellow and die rapidly.

Sulfaguanidine is available at the druggistes in two forms, one as a powder mixed with the mash and the other as a tablet for mixing with the drinking water. Either form is effective.

At the first sign of coccidiosis, sulfaguanidine should be given either in the mash or in the drinking water for a one to one and half week period. Feed the birds normally for four days and give a second one day treatment followed by a four day period during which the schedule should be followed until they have received three full treatments of sulfaguanidine complete. The directions of the tablet with the regular treatment manufacturer should be followed when using the tablet formulation.

During the period that tobacco plants are getting started is the time that flea beetle damage is usually most heavy

DDT in the oil form should not be used on plants or anything applying DDT on lettuce in plant beds that may be used for food and avoid inhaling dust, Straw said.
