X Vote for Spencer Taylor for County Judge X

Honest -- Able -- Dependable -- Capable

I stand for a better road system, improvement of schools, for better social and religious activities and for the prosecution of all lawlessness regardless of its nature.

If elected I will stay in my office, part of the time.

If asked a reasonable question, I will try to give a truthful answer.

If I make a trade of any nature for your county it will be in good faith.

I do not believe in wild promises.

I have not stooped to the use of distorted propaganda or made use of insignificant facts in my dealings with you, the voters of Nicholas County.

I have been employed by the United States Government for the past 12 years as a postmaster. I also have been engaged in the mercantile business and in farming for most of my life.

25th Anniversary

Number 5, the first root-rot resistant tobacco variety, was tried with success. Farmers were shown how to drench sheep to control stomach worms. Poultry growers were taught to cull poor producers. These were high main features of the first programs. Many expressed interest in better farm to market roads, electricity, soil fertility, better livestock.

Because a county agent was limited in the number of individuals he could contact, it was determined in the early years that it would be desirable to develop leadership, organization, and a planned approach to better farming. This plan was tried out by farmers believed in this plan and were unwilling to cooperate, join organizations, assume positions of leadership, and assist in promoting improvements.

Four-H Club work began twenty-five years ago in Nicholas County when only a few youth members belonged. Membership has steadily increased until now more than 400 boys and girls are participating. Farming is by doing is a cardinal principal of this organization, which has helped to develop skills, citizenship, and more applicable, the opportunities for voluntary participation in programs built on needs and interests of the rural boys and girls.

In April, 1941 the Utopia club was organized for the out of school youth and grew to 22 members that year. This program is outlined by the group on the basis of their needs and interests. In 1946 the Utopia club did a great part in promoting the "County Youth Fair".

In 1935, 25 farmers were interested enough to form the first County Farm Bureau. Progress was still slow, however, because far too few were willing to help. By 1939 the Farm Bureau had grown to about 100 members. From here the improvement was rather rapid. The use of purebred sires was well under way. Farmers were using large quantities of lime, phosphate, and were beginning to use commercial fertilizer in a small way.

In 1936, 37, and 1938 came the development of rural electrification, which extended lines to many of the farms. Farmers were learning how to work together.

In 1940 the Sheep Protective Association was formed. This became phenothiazine, the greatest single worm treatment ever discovered through research. It is now used by all progressive farmers, especially in sheep flocks.

In 1933 the AAA program was formed, largely through the efforts of the Farm Bureau. In 1935, conservation practices were included. This program was greatly stimulated in a big way the use of lime, phosphate, and better pasture seeding. Terracing, contour cultivation and a few other erosion practices were used in a limited way as early as 25 years ago, perhaps, even longer. However, no substantial progress could have happen until farmers got organized into working units, where well layed plans could be made and carried out in volume.

In 1941 the Nicholas County Soil Conservation district was formed largely through the efforts of the Farm Bureau leaders and the county agent. Soil erosion practices have been increased immeasurably since that time.

In 1947 Nicholas County hired a home demonstration agent, Miss Dorothy C. Rose. Prior to this time, many homemakers of the county had inquired about plans for improvement of their home, convenience and usefulness, but until the home agent came there little advancement was accomplished. Since the home agent program was added and the completion of nine homemakers clubs organized, many new things have happened. Many better nutrition methods of preparing food have been adopted. Kitchens have been improved to make work easier. Homes have been beautified and lawns improved. Better varieties of vegetables have been introduced in home gardens. Furniture arrangement in homes and the art of home sewing have gone through a face lifting. The goal advocated that even a closer relationship be developed between farm and home groups and also between city groups in order that Nicholas county may go forward for a fuller, richer life of accomplishment and purpose.

In order to conserve space, not all details of farm and home progress have been given in this report. This committee hopes that enough definitely planned program has been cited to cause our citizenry to take faith in the future.

If more individuals will share their leadership qualities in future endeavors, the progress during the next twenty-five years will be in proportion to the increased leadership shared.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 acres of corn in Henderson county have been sprayed with 2, 4-D.

Dreams are rare among individuals past 65.

New Fire Insurance Rate Provides Saving

Annual savings to Kentucky policy-holders of more than $1,347,000 are provided in the new schedule of fire insurance rates announced today by State Insurance Director Spalding Southall.

The reduced rates, effective Monday represent the largest single reduction in the cost of insurance throughout the State ever effected by the Division of Insurance," Southall, declared. "The cut brings to more than $1,437,000 the total savings to fire insurance policy holders approved by the Division in the last two months".

Premiums on tobacco barns and warehouses, which accounts for the additional reduction of $90,000, were lowered May 16, the Director explained.

The revised schedule was submitted to the Division for review by the Southern Underwriters Bureau as representative of the insurance underwriters. It was tentatively approved and copies were ordered printed by the director on June 8. Later, a printer's strike in Chicago delayed issuance of the schedules and new forms until last week-end, Southall revealed. Meanwhile he said he gave formal approval to the revision which affected both city and farm property.

The new rates, which are applicable to new and renewal policies, provide an average reduction of 12 per cent on farm property. As examples of the savings, the fire rate on a frame, approved-road dwelling located in a well protected town is reduced from 22 cents to 18 cents on each $100 of insurance, and in unprotected districts from 74 cents to 62 cents. Insurance on a similar dwelling on a farm is reduced from 90 cents to 80 cents. The rate on a frame barn was lowered from $1.00 to 90 cents for each $100 of insurance.

The new schedule on all classes of property was made in conformance with established actuarial practice as required by Kentucky Revised Statute 296.420 and on the basis of the underwriting fire loss experience in Kentucky, Southall declared.

The Garden

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

ONIONS,
CURING AND STORING

As this is being written, onions are being harvested, and pulling soon letters will start coming, telling of onions not "keeping." Sometimes failure to save onions comes from a quirk of the weather, as a wet season. Sometimes, though, it comes from an oversight by the gardener, or perhaps an out-and-out misdeed of his against this succulent vegetable.

Containing so much water as they do, onions are always delicate to handle, but in a wet season they become positively fragile. This means, of course, that all handling during harvest must be extremely gentle. It means, too, that the pulled onions should be promptly got to a cool, shady and airy place, rather than being left lie in piles in the garden, there to sunburn and scald and rot.

Sometimes a barn loft floor is chosen for curing the onions, but a barn loft may be an extremely hot place, and ill-ventilated. Very much better is the barn entry, with the onions in slatted crates stacked so that air plays freely through them. Or, trays may be made of 4-inch stuff for the sides (of whatever dimensions that are convenient) and one-inch chicken wire for the bottom. These may be arranged for stacking, to take very little floor space.

After a grower's drying, what remains of the "necks" can be rubbed off, and the onions put in, to deeper containers for winter storage, in a cellar room where temperature stays above freezing and preferably below 60 degrees."

The foregoing deals with the "potato" onions and those raised from sets, not those produced from slips, the Bermuda and Spanish types. These really never make a "dry" onion, but start sprouting within 60 days after harvest, unless put in cold storage, at a temperature of between 45 and 55 degrees.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday. The Golden Text is: "O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me . . . Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from the presence?" (Ps. 139:1, 7)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness." (Ps. 143:10)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms: and it is thus they are uniformly used and understood in Christian Science." (P. 344)
