X

A Democratic ticket is printed this week in the Democratic ballot. When you vote put a cross (X) in the square opposite a name in the blank space below the word which is at the head of your party column.

Put an X under the name of every man you know your party.

Look for the words on the ticket in the square under the name.

Put no other mark or cross on your ballot than a cross (X) in the square.

Put no cross or figure on your ballot in the blank space below the word "Remarks."

The polls open at 7 o'clock next Tuesday and close at 4 p. m., and every Democrat should be at the polls promptly to their voting places.

Democrats, you have suffered for two years from the effects of the Republican tariff which is about ten feet high, for the purpose of keeping it out of sight, which is made the tickets. The Democratic party has promised to reduce the tariff to a revenue basis, and the party of the tariff and the protected interests, and the party should be glorified forever. Amen.

The Populists are ecstatic.

The Chicago Times, Nov. 1, 1896, and we would say at least one half, are thrilled with sensational reports of the Populist victories these complaints are, according to statistics, without foundation. The Populists will not strike all our readers just to neglect the opportunity to call on their friends. Democrats, Democratic Editors and Democratic Leaders and Managers, to the front.

Call Them Office-Seekers

We would like to see a Democratic party advocate who that new group is not office-seeker, those who have labored that has so much cohesion attached to it that it will have a definition of the word politician, and show a dollar of the expenditure of any of them to give their leaders. If a man is not a office-seeker, he is a "self-seeker," a "corporation," a trial lie"—Williamsburg Times.

The Capital says the Public Printer has contracted for the printing of the Journals of the various committees of the 53d Congress at 35 cents per page, estimated for State and county taxation, and the Legislature has ordered 1,000 copies of each. The two bodies, that is, the one and the other, have not as yet, however, passed and agreed to the resolution to print the Journals of the committees.

Speaking of Most Unjust, Senator Kenna says: "There is nothing in the country for the Democratic party to do but to look to come. The Democrats are discouraged now, but the Republicans are more frenzied this year than we should have expected to find them after four years."

Democratic editors have been elected in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and it is thought will be made in every State in the Union.

Work is being vigorously pushed in the Democratic campaign in Kentucky. Democratic Congressional Committeeman Hall is looking to the new Constitution, every interest in any branch of industry is solicited for loan or donation that in which he is interested, and the Democratic Central, Chief and League Executive is guaranteed to all that is cleared or money will be refunded. Tom Hall is a hustler and will win a victory. Large bodies lie, and H.

The next Judge of the Court of Appeals from this district will be a Democrat, and his name is Hazelrigg. He will gain in the Sandy valley counties more than 1,000 votes over the vote of 1889, and upon this prediction we stake our reputation as a political prophet.—Hopkinsville Democrat.

THE POLLS

HOW TO MAKE BALLOTS.

The following extract from the Courier Journal correctly states the law and the Democratic column is used as an illustration of the principle, which is applicable to all the parties alike.

If the voter wishes to vote the straight Democratic ticket, he can vote for every person whose name appears in the Democratic column by making a cross mark (X) with ordinary lead pencil in the large square containing the words "Democratic Ticket." If any voter desires to vote for all the persons in the party ticket with one exception or more, and wishes to vote in one or more cases for the candidate of another party, he should make a cross-mark (X) in the square containing the words "Democratic Ticket," and then erase the name of the candidate of the party for whom he desires to vote, and this will cast his vote for every name in the Democratic column except in the cases in which he has made a cross-mark (X) in the square to the right of the candidate of another party.

Third—If the voter desires to vote for all the persons in the Democratic column, except in one or more cases, and does not wish to vote in such cases at all for any person, he must make a cross-mark (X) in the space opposite and to the right of every person in the party Democratic column for whom he wishes to vote.

CLOSE AT PRAYER.

By the Martinsville (Ind.) Democrat, Applicable to Democratic Voters Everywhere.

Our earthly Lord, who art now in Scotland, because thy poor ignorant servants cry for bread and seek thee not, have mercy upon us and make our lives as thy exalted flesh, we, thy subjects of this great country, who have been bonded and mortgaged by children and bankrupt leaders, to acknowledge them, O, King Carnegie as the good ruler of this great country. We adore thee, we confess none and to thee we give all our earthly possessions for the supreme pleasure of riding on and of hearing thee say that the United States is becoming rich in her possessions, and especially do we glorify thy name, we know that thou art one of the largest owners of all this country.

Oh, King Carnegie! we would not forget the angel protectors and body servants, the Hon. Ben. Harrison, Governor Bell, the Pinkertons and Bill McKinley, they who have done thy holy will by exacting it into human laws, whereby we, thy subjects, are compelled to the carriage of an all to make the and thy people rich, that thou mayest rule thy all in purple and white linen, while we, thy submissive servants, wear shoddy, and live on one meal a day for thy name's sake. But oh, King Carnegie! our beloved Lord, the Father of Mckinleyism and ruler of this country! We are sorry that in thy wisdom it became thy will that the Pinkertons should shoot our brethren down because they and their poor children were starving, but we thank thee, O Carnegie! our Lord in Scotland! they have not what they did. We ask thee to forgive them.

Will thou, in thy power and glory, send us a big boom? We are willing to wear shoddy clothes at four dollars per suit and pay double prices for all the necessaries of life. Yea, Lord, we are willing to worry along through life with mortgages on our farms and little homes and to vote the republican ticket, if you will only let us kiss the hem of your coat.

We thank thee, O, our beloved Carnegie! that, in thy mercy, thou didst place sugar on the free list. It was indeed and truthful in thee to do so and we thank thee that thou hast left the name of coal and the fruits and the onions on the free list. If thou in thy goodness and mercy wilt put a tariff on everything necessary for the existence of our precious lives, we will be satisfied, wade knee deep and be sure that that's going, they never relate to anything from a farm down to a pair of shoddy socks, glory be to thy name!

Oh, Lord Carnegie! We know that we are the father of the largest infants in the world, that they are weak and sensitive to hard times and that it requires sixty millions of people to feed your large family of pets and that God O, Lord Carnegie, they are such delicate children that the least cold is wanted, wade knee deep and be sure that that's going, they never relate to anything from a farm down to a pair of shoddy socks, glory be to thy name!

4 O'CLOCK.

HARVEST VICE, and kin-lord girl or friend from near Mansfield about 5 o'clock this morning, and crossed over to Aberdeen to get married. They were unable to find any one there to tie the knot for them, and returning to this city tried to secure license from County Clerk Pierce. The young lady was only nineteen years old, and the clerk refused to issue the license without the consent of parents. It is learned that Harrison Bradford is making himself scarce in Aberdeen since he was enlisted. The unlawful marrying business has been brisk in this city for a few days.—Cincinnati Post.
