NEWS IN THE WORLD OF RELIGION
By W. W. REID

The mass migration between India and Pakistan has ended but there follows in its wake a suffering and loss that will be felt for years to come, according to Church World Service which has been administering relief to the sufferers on both sides of the line on behalf of American Protestant churches. "The children who lived through the upheaval will always bear in their minds if not on their bodies", says a CWS report on the situation. "Their plight could hardly be even worse had it not been for the assistance and support given through Christian missionaries."

Quoting Justice Roberts of the U. S. Supreme Court, who said, after World War II, that education catastrophe are now as league with one another", Dr. Douglas Horton, minister of the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches, said recently in Wakefield Mass., "It is only the educated men who have had to bear. The uneducated peasant cannot make an atomic bomb nor organize a modern army. Something more is needed for our safety than education, and that something is direction, the direction which is felt by a person who is the will of God revealed in Christ. . . . Meeting the physical needs of men is unsatisfactory if we cannot impart something to their souls. Even the satisfying of intellectual needs is a fragmentary activity."

Thirty new missionaries for service overseas were recently commissioned by the Board of Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Snyder, of Jamaica, N. Y., going to India as evangelistic work; the Rev. and Mrs. George S. Wilson, of Cornelia, Ga., to the Philippine Islands, evangelistic work; Miss Blanche I. Beck, of Hazelton, Pa., to Liberia, Africa, social work; the Rev. George I. Kennedy, of Mound City, Ill., and Mrs. Kennedy, of Indianwille, N. Y., to India, educational and nursing service; Mr. and Mrs. Elvy E. Adair of Wellington, and Winfield, Kansas, to Bolivia, as educators; Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hamel, of Long Beach, California, to Sumatra, educational; the Rev. Milton E. Robinson, of El Paso, Texas, to Argentina, educational; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Shumaker, of Middleport, Ohio, to China, evangelistic; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Sands, of Cleburne, Texas, to Bolivia, educational; Miss Dorothy Edwards, of Lynbrook, L. I., New York, to the Philippines, nurse supervisor; Miss Dorothy Laird, of Fairport, N. Y., to the Congo, social work; Miss Maria Swords, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to the Congo, nurse; Miss Elizabeth Burden of Little Rock was the weekend guest of the Lyman girls.
