THURSDAY, JAN. 9, 1893.

THE Senatorial race is occupying about all the time of the Legislature at present.

SENATOR JOHN F. KENNA, of West Virginia, died at his Washington home three days after he had been stricken down by a lingering illness.

IT is thought at Washington that it should Congress take action favorable to the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday the President would veto the measure.

JUDGE GERMAIN is enthusiastic over the nomination of Mr. Carlisle for Secretary of the Treasury, and predicts that he will be the next President if he accepts the position.

A MOTION to suspend the rules and adopt a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by the popular vote prevailed in the National House of Representatives.

THE two sides of the Kenna House of Representatives are bloody for peace, and attempted to agree upon a compromise, but failed to do so and there is little prospect of a settlement of the conflict.

THE cold has caused much suffering in Homestead, Pa., and nearly 30 people are reported almost starving. There is much dissatisfaction in the Carnegie mill over wages under the new scale, and some of the men say they will quit or strike when the weather becomes warmer.

AFTER the short and hard-fought fight of this Legislature, the World's Fair bill appropriating $500,000, passed the House by a vote of 52 to 39. When it passed, the members rose in their seats, bobbles pulled and threw up their hats, papers, etc., and have not stopped yet.

THE Clerk of the House somewhat stirred things up Friday by saying that eighteen bills now on the statutes had been so improperly passed, and were as much void as the Worlds Fair Bill. Representative Tinsley called him out by a resolution asking that the clerk report what bills had been unconstitutionally passed.

AT a caucus of the Republican Senators at Washington Monday, it was agreed that a vote should be taken on the Anti-option bill Friday. The North-western Senators made a vigorous fight for the admission of New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and Utah as States, and much of the opposition to this move has been withdrawn.

GEN. BENJAMIN F. BUTLER died at Washington Wednesday of Tuesday, of heart failure. He had for a long while been in constant attendance on the Supreme Court, awaiting a decision in a case of his own. The decision was recently handed down against him, and it is thought that this hastened his death.

THE latest in the political world is that Senator John G Carlisle has been wanted for three terms in the Senate, but to take effect February 4th. The legislature will convene January 10th, and will begin its balloting for Senator Blackburn on the 16th of February. All the counties have not been accounted for by that time and all will be ready for the ballot-box, and a blanket will cover the bunch on the first head.

IF GEN. BROWN should become Senator from Kentucky, in place of Senator Lindsay, Governor Alford should then appoint Judge Alford, and the people of Kentucky would find their mistake in electing the latter as governor. It is now that every Democrat should be on the alert and see that the right men are elected to the Legislature, for it is then that the Senator will be elected, and it is not enough polities to elect a Governor, he must be elected by a majority of the legislature.

THE WEATHER—A warning from the signal service of the U. S. says that the cold wave is in the dark, and the signal service people are unable to locate it. The signal service's supply gave out the day it struck the U. S., and they are now at work in the section gangs.

THE Frankfort correspondent of the Cincinnati Post says: Hon. Cassius M. Clay is not in the Governor's office, but whenn it may concern," in which he says he hopes and does not want the Governorship, but if he is attempted to be forced upon the people it will be necessary for him to "pledge himself that he will not administer the office in the interest of money. Bought or improperly, and that he will not appoint any man to office who has not been tried and found worthy, and if I hereby pledge myself and manhood to use a sword in my defense I will certainly influence a vote in the General Assembly."

J. M. Layton, closed his school last Friday.

Mrs. Jesse Graves is visiting friends in Lexington.

Mrs. Turner has been suffering with pneumonia for the past week.

The cutting affair now in force in Lindsey, is the cause of much talk and much higher than any of the recent debates, but it is likely to be settled as soon as the absent cooler heads get upon the ground.

Lindsey is the greatest politician in the crowd and McIntyre's interest is doubt in the bet.

COME to think of it, where are those organizations of the Democratic party that are elected to the Democratic National Convention to meet in Chicago when they obtained possession of the government? It began to look as if even those great organizations had passed downhill on their infant industries. The new assured ascendancy of the Cradle of the Treasury portfolio is powerfully recognized at the first step on the way to a tariff bill to be passed by the next administration. It is rumored that Mr. Carlisle will prepare the main features of the bill, and his acceptance will be but a conviction in the belief that the party intends to fulfill its pledges framed here and put effectory duties of moderate higher people to wipe out the iniquitous of the McKinley bill.—[Covington Commonwealth.

The present Commissioner of Pensions seems to have been appointed and is behaved in view of his ability to conduct the office to a political than a business.

He avoided new pensions by the wholesale; below the station, apparently in the assumption that a new pension was a vote for Mr. Harrison's friends. Pension Commissioner Raum, the election for less pay and to others abruptly and vigorously, and with the intention of benefiting them as much as possible the pensioners. Mr. Raum's successor has already begun his task, and proceeding in that direction. If the appointee's sake, the inflation of the pensioning figure, we are already to prevent the exchanging of the cent Administration.

Before the election he went out to say to duty for completing the work that his estimate was insufficient for the present fiscal year's pension expenditures. After the election, not withstanding his desire to make the whole showing for the Administration, he was compelled to ask for a deficiency appropriation of $10,000,000. He could not be stingy that year with pensioners' money.

The leading Republican organ of the West, the Chicago Tribune, in commenting on this, says that "there is no question that a month hence he will not ask for a ten million more. The fact is that the estimate is made up on the closest estimates is calculated to make no appearance as to the future. It is said in his last report that he believed the number of pensioners would probably be reached a year from next June, and that the amount of pensions would be $150,000,000. It is as much out of the way as it could be, and yet it is not far enough to be ridiculous. It is not unlikely that there is little prospect of a settlement of the conflict.

A Pinch of Salt

Is very valuable when you want it and can't get it, and you then realize fully the importance of economizing in its use; and so also in other things. Don't you realize things taste bad when you don't put any in. There are lots of curious things about salt, more than anyone would imagine. Now we don't propose to tell you any fairy tales about it that you never knew before, but we do propose to tell you some beautifully illustrated articles "From the Depths of a Crystalline Sea," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for February.—Another interesting article is entitled "Salt and its Ills," and we think that will appeal to one of the numerous departments in following: "Fish Stories," "Salt Fish," "The Tales of Two Patents," "Salt Rheum," "Salt Cellars," "Salt Mines," and we could name half a dozen more if we consider it a boarder's necessity.

JOHN SCOTT HARRISON, of Chicago, who was married to Miss Mary Lodge a few weeks ago, to-wit an estimable widow who was left a fortune by her late husband, was acquitted at Covington, and discharged from custody.
