Soil Conservation

given by the State Soil Conservation Committee in Frankfort. They will be presented the awards at a Rotary club program. They are the first farmers in the Nicholas County Soil Conservation District to receive the award. We feel this is outstanding for Nicholas county since only two other farmers in the state received the award during 1950. They are doing a complete job of conservation farming. More than 150 veterans and future farmers have already visited these farms.

"The District cooperated with the Courier Journal, The Louisville Times and Radio Station WHAS in the Soil Conservation Essay Contest. The Nicholas County Soil Conservation District is grateful to the other agricultural agencies, schools, newspaper, and civic clubs for valuable assistance in promoting and carrying out our District program.

"The Carlisle Rotary club devoted an entire program to the winners of the Soil Conservation Essay Contest. They were their guests and the winning essay was read by the writer.

"We feel that both the Carlisle Mercury and the Nicholas County Star have been a great help in our District program. The winning essay, annual report, soil conservation stories and news columns have appeared on the front pages of both papers.

"William Sturgeon, county agent, has cooperated in every way with the District. The soil testing laboratory has been a great help to our pasture improvement program. There has been outstanding cooperation between the vocational agriculture departments and the District. Over 50 veterans in the county are following a complete soil and water conservation program. Veteran teachers have asked Soil Conservation Service personnel to meet with their classes and arrange demonstrations.

"We also wish to give businessmen and other people credit for their help in our District program

Terracer Made Available

"Harpers' Garage purchased a single disc terracer. It will be made available to farmers in the county who own tractors. This will make it possible for many farmers in the county to build their own terraces and diversions at less cost. George Rankin Carter has purchased a two disc terracer. He plans to make this available to farmers to do conservation work.

"We look with confidence toward the coming year and feel that our District program will continue at a rapidly increasing rate. We feel that the District is better prepared to assist farmers than ever before. We encourage every farmer in Nicholas county to request technical assistance in taking a land inventory and developing and carrying out a soil conservation program."

Weekly Burley Report

Average prices for the majority of grades sold this week on Burley tobacco markets were lower than the previous week reports the Federal-State Market News Service. General quality was only slightly inferior despite of a large number of farmers marketing the last of their crops. Volume of sales for the week as a whole was fairly heavy. Fourteen markets closed during the week.

The downward trend which began last week continued as most grades were off from $1.00 to $4.00 per hundred. Heavier-bodied tobacco suffered the greatest declines. Some green grades offered in small volume declined as much as $7.00. Most lugs, flyings and nondescript were steady to only $1.00 lower. Practically all grades, however, were selling above averages established early in the season.

Gross sales for the week ending January 19 amounted to 60,005,055 pounds and averaged $48.30 down $2.50 a hundred from last week. This was the lowest figure since the third week of sales. Sales volume was off around 2½ million pounds. Season gross sales through the same date were brought to 496,647,431 pounds for an average of $49.01.

Draft Regulations

President Truman changed the Draft Regulations 18 January 1951 to permit 18 to 26-year-olds to volunteer for 21 months of military service. Up until now, it has been impossible for Draft-eligible youths to enter the military for the 21 months period until they were actually called in the Draft Regular enlistments run for longer periods. Selective Service Headquarters said the action has no effect on persons deferred or exempt for full term in any of the Armed Forces. Selective Service spokesman in Washington said that all youths volunteering for 21 months will go to the Army. He emphasized the way is still clear for anyone to enlist in the usual way in any branch of the military if he can qualify and if he enlists for a full "hitch". President Truman's order caused a period of confusion when White House aids were unable to explain just what it meant. The order first had been interpreted as meaning that all youth volunteering for the Armed Forces could Draft Board. This is not the case. In Richmond, Virginia, Defense Secretary Marshall told newsmen today that all of the Armed Services soon will procure the men through the Selective Service System under Amendment Act in the Draft law. However, this will require Congressional action.

FIRING LEAF PAYS

How fire-curing of tobacco pays is seen in the case of Herman Hoffman of Trimble county. He had 1,600 pounds which were cut early and housed in a barn on the river bottom where curing conditions were at their worst.

Dr. J. J. Dorr, county agent, says Hoffman cured his crop with coke and received a floor average of $61. a hundredweight.

Mrs. Hatcher Candidate For Secretary Of State

Mrs. George Glenn Hatcher

Mrs. George Glenn Hatcher has announced that she intends to seek the Democratic nomination for secretary of state and succeed her husband in that office.

She has been one of her husband's assistants for the past two or three years.

Mrs. Hatcher is a native of Prestonsburg. High school and attended Georgetown College and the Mayo State Vocational school.

That was the word this week from Ed Wilder, secretary of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce which is actively promoting the tournament.

Sale of ticket books good for all seven sessions of the tourney is proceeding rapidly, but approximately 5,500 seats remain. These include about 3,000 sidecourt seats priced at $10 and approximately 2,500 endzone seats priced at $8. Tickets for single tournament sessions will not go on sale until March 1.

Ticket orders should be addressed to: Ticket Department, Graves-Cox Company, 126 West Main Lexington. Checks or money orders should be payable to Paul Nickell and 35 cents should be added to the total of each order to cover cost of mailing.

Room reservations for the tournament dates may be obtained by writing the Lexington Chamber of Commerce, 152 East High Street. All hotels and motor courts are filled but plenty of rooms still are available in tourist homes and private residences. Checks need not be sent with the room request.

Weaker Burley Demand As Market Nears Close

Activity on Burley tobacco markets the eighth week of sales was marked by weaker demand, fairly light volume of offerings and slightly lower quality. Only four markets in Kentucky and Weston, Mo. have not set a date for final sales.

According to the Federal-State Market News Service, average prices for the majority of grades ranged 50 cents to $5.00 under last week. Most declines were $1.00 to $3.00 per hundred. While the losses were again more prevalent in leaf and tips, lugs and flyings were off generally $2.00 and $3.00. Lowest weekly average prices of the season were established for a fairly large number of heavy volume grades.

Volume of offerings was the smallest for any week as the marketing season for the 1950 crop is about completed. Gross sales for the week ending January 26 amounted to 22,337,335 pounds averaging $45.46 per hundred. This average was also $47.30 paid the third week. Season gross sales through January 26 stood at 518,942,730 pounds at an average of $48.67. Marketing has been in progress 34 sales days. Last year for the same number of days gross sales were 577,547,388 pounds for $45.29.

Offerings were made up of a larger proportion of nondescript than last week. Also, there were slightly more baskets graded in unsafe order and unsound. Low and fair qualities and nondescript predominated the sales.

Growers this week turned over an estimated 9 percent of the baskets to the Associations under the Government loan program. Receipts for the season through January 19 totaled 41,405,356 pounds or slightly over 8 percent of gross sales.

Mercury Subscription Rate Is Increased

Effective Thursday, Feb. 1, the subscription rate of The Carlisle Mercury has been increased from $2.00 to $2.50 per year.

In spite of constantly rising production costs of the past several years, the publisher had maintained the same old subscription rate. However, with appreciably increased cost of newsprint and ink, together with higher wages, machinery, practically all materials and supplies, the publisher feels justified in making what amounts to an increase of only one cent per week.

The increase was deemed necessary by the publisher in order to continue giving subscribers one of the best weekly papers in the state, feeling that subscribers would want the same high standards maintained in their newspaper.
