Surgeon of Fort Hall in England, during the season in which the game of foot ball is played in England the record of accidents or iron serious is practically continuous. During the fort nightly matches the number of serious accidents received on the field no fewer than eleven players, while more than seventy others received injuries, mostly in the shape of fractures, which would probably incapacitate them for a time from competing for work.—Medical and Surgical Journal.

—A little girl who had received her catechism confessed a dreadful disappointment. "Because," she said, "though I obey the fifth commandment, and honor my father and my mother, my days are not a bit longer in the land, for I am put to bed at seven o'clock."

—Customer—What do you feel so sure about your son, he isn't still in the army? Old Gentleman—Oh, no; it isn't that, but look at the splendid head of hair he has got. He is sure to get a position somewhere for a giant or a footballer.—Boston Transcript.

—Kidney—Robinson tried cooking with a portable cooker and a little stove with a lamp to heat it, but it was a failure. Gallbraith—If you see an invitation now, what will you think it means?—Judge. I suppose it means a free lunch.
