ELECTION RETURNS

The election Tuesday was a Waterloo for the Democratic party, ones worth Republican about 80,000. New York 40,000, Iowa 20,000, Massachusetts 25,000, Kentucky and Virginia remain strongly Democratic. This is our old year.

The following is the county vote as received:

	Hon.	Lieut. Gov.	Auditor Gen.	Surveyor Gen.
Cumberland	1,600	1,600	1,600	1,600
Perry	1,200	1,200	1,200	1,200
Upper Leacock	153	154	153	153
Lower Leacock	153	154	153	153
Manheim	153	154	153	153
Hempfield	153	154	153	153
Clark's Ferry	153	154	153	153
Clark's Ferry	153	154	153	153
P. V. Hoke	153	154	153	153
Total	153	154	153	153

Sanders' voting precinct is not in.

The election is over and the Democratic party is Solidus still Iowa, notwithstanding she was caught between the Republicans, Prohibitionists and Greenback Democrats. The majority is reduced a little on account of Democrats not turning out and voting, but it is enough for all practical purposes, and will serve to put the party on its guard. Next year the entire county ticket will be in the field and there will be no Smithtown indulged in, except a few willing to be ashamed of the secret ballot box and others of the secret ballot to strike the old party that insulted the people and sold out and will be alive next doing business at the old stand when they are gone and forgotten.

In pointing the vote counters it seems we do not give the official vote at the last Ledger precinct. The whole and certificate was burned by accident, having gotten mixed up with the old ballots and secondary stubs on the floor and were thrown in the fire together. However, the result is the same, though the totals are reduced. The county was in all right.

It is estimated that the Kentucky Legislature will be stronger Democratic than last session, and that Senator Lindsay has about 50 per cent of the Democrats for him. This will insure his election without a struggle.

Robertson County (now Mr. Wheeler) 165 majority. His majority in the district will reach 600—about the average figure.

Tyler was re-elected Mayor of Lowell by 1,500.

Newport elects a Democratic Mayor by the first one for years.

MARCH COUNTY.

The Bulletin telegraphs us yesterday morning in favor of the Senate by Pauly Pugh carried Lowell by over 1,000, while Gooding carries Haven by 500. Both were elected Representative by 200.

Lawrence elects a Democratic Mayor, Brown, Dick & Wadsworth, Probate Judge J. W. Fitzgerald, Treasurer, C. D. Orr, Chief of Police.

In Lewis Dr. Bowman, Rep., defeated Hulbert, Dem., over 1,000.

Sinnet wins his seat in the Senate from Ruth, Fleming & ———.

FLEMING COUNTY.

FLEMINGSBURG, Nov. 7, 1883.

Nine precincts out 11 give Hart, Dem. net majority of 85. Senate, Dem. 352 majority. Best estimates place Hart's majority in the district at 225 to 240. Stand about the same on a little more. Light vote. [Special to Courier-Journal.]

LATER.

FLEMINGSBURG, Nov. 8, '83.

My majority have hundred.

Now that the election is over we will settle down to business for awhile.

Cumberland will not hold another Friday, and now the nominees can go home and commence their canvass.

Now that the election is over we hope to see the Falmouth editors walk the blood from their eyes, which they had out of their teeth, put on their Sunday school clothes and be real nice little boys. If we had not known so much about election we should have expected to attended a spike of hostilities at Falmouth.

The Kentucky Railroad Commissioners-elect are going to make a move to end in the courts against those railroad companies that have not made to the Commission the reports demanded by law.

It was always a wonder to Chicago people where Turner Hancock got his speed and staying qualities. The Lexington Press solves the problem when it states that the dead Mayor, Nancy Hanks, Saltatar, and other great horses have stood on the same farm near Lexington.

The State Board of Health is sending out warnings in regard to small-pox. This inclement disease is prevailing in some parts of Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, and it may spread to this State at anytime. The Board recommends vaccination and re-vaccination at all cases. Look after this matter at once.

FOR THE LEGISLATORS.

"The cry of an infant in the night time," says the Frankfort correspondent of the Louisville Times, "sounds the same in the Senate chamber as it does in the house from palace or hovel. But the midnight wail of a baby within the walls of the Capitol is the most solemn, serious, depressing and ominous sounds in week famously—either the average man or the saddest sound that human ears can hear.

"The Senate chamber whom necessity forces to pass by night in the shadows of the gloomy walls of the State Penitentiary and hear the wail of a child within "The penitentiary here there are confined among the most depraved criminals a surrounding of the most innocent, not only little boys, but in two instances little girls of tender years.

"In one case, organic law is a remedy very prevalent, requiring the Legislature to provide an institution for the juvenile criminals or the rearing and education of the children of the State. It has not been found in any State prison. The next Legislature should see to it that such an institution is built, and that no child in this county or mother's son in the body should be consigned to everlasting infamous Kentucky by the people—[New Yorkers Inquirer.

An article published in the Messenger a few weeks since in regard to a scheme to be presented to the Protestant Methodist Conference, has attracted the attention of the press of Kentucky, and the opinions of the conductors of the press of differ as to the plan in earnest. Let the good work go on until the matter is settled, as the Constitution requires.

A CAPE REPUBLICAN of this county declares that the election judges made a mistake in not to the eligibility of Mr. ——— as an "outrage" if they did not do not care much for the opinions of the people of the county, but they do care of the land, but we do care for the opinions of the people of this county. If Miss Gore had been but 21 years old and the law was such that she might be elected under 21 years, we suppose that her age or position would be an "outrage" but it would have been no "outrage" for her to be elected to any of the offices. It provokes the mule to see the people of this county "run" the County Superintendent, and the Democratic party has a right to do so, and the Democratic party will not allow any person a candidate for Circuit Clerk to be elected who is not a citizen of the County Court or Court of Appeals—[Cape Republican. We do not see that the residence of a magistrate was just an "outrage" in the eyes of the law, and an "outrage" to say the candidate was not following the law? People who entertain others should be sure they are not entertaining fools.

PROBABLY the most disgraceful Democratic row ever known in Kentucky occurred last week Saturday when the Democratic Committee of Jefferson met to canvass the votes and call a special election to fill the vacancy in the office of Circuit Clerk, caused by the death of Col. Fetcher. Personal violence was indulged in, and the fact that Senator Lindsay was absent. A fight was the result of the row, and Col. Bell, the editor and ex-Clerk. The Republicans are jubilant over the row, and say that the Democrats will have to "come" to the Democrats for him. This will insure his election without a struggle."

The Present Agency.

The Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal gives the following statement in regard to the Pension Agency of Kentucky:

"Col. J. H. Northup, of Louisa, Lawrence County, Ky., is looking up prominently as an applicant for Pension Agency for Kentucky. We are expected that he and a dozen or a dozen other applicants will be here to-day to present him to the President and Secretary Harris and introduced him as the nominee of the Democratic party, and a more entirely unanimous party to discharge the duties of the office. The President liked the appearance of Col. Northup, as did Secretary Harris, and Mr. Payne counsel's gentle encouragement. The Congressmen from the North District made a very strong argument in favor of the appointment of Col. Northup on the ground that in the distribution of Federal patronage the mountain district of Kentucky was left out in the cold. He told the President that his part of the State had the Internal Revenue Collector at Lexington or Middle Kentucky had the Revenue Collector at Louisville, the District Attorney, Louisville was the Democratic headquarters, and Eastern Kentucky had the Collector at Louisville, the Internal Revenue Collector at Louisville, the Pension Agency at Louisville, the Postmaster at Louisville, the Collector of Customs at Louisville, and the Internal Revenue Collector at Louisville, and the Internal Revenue Collector at Louisville, and the Internal Revenue Collector
