Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Mr. C. M. Hunt

"I am a letter carrier with W. A. Pitcher, P. O. Station Four, Atlanta, Ga., and as my carrier's uniform testifies, I am that's the reason why I am so well known. I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a run down condition of system and loss of appetite, and it has done me more good than all the medicine I have ever taken. I did not have to suffer long before I found relief, and my appetite returned. I have also taken Hood's Pills and find them to be the best liver pill I have ever used."

Said They Could Not

Cut day a friend advised me to take a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Went home and got bottle, found pain up, commenced to feel better, and after taking two bottles was entirely cured.

Getting Thin

is often equivalent to getting ill. Blood-food can be arrested and disease baffled the weak spots in the system are eradicated.

Scott's Emulsion

is an absolute antidote of "weak spots." It is a builder of worn-out failing tissue—makes it stops waste and creates healthy flesh.

"Whatever else we may forget," said Maj. McKinley to the Society of the Army of the Tennessee "whatever else we may forget, let us never forget nor forgive the brave men who entered the service of their country without hope of reward and without any incentive of fame or popular praise, but who, when the war was over, returned and gave their best and all to the country they had—their life's blood—to the saving of the Union and best government under the sun."

Every word of it! No answer that we could make to these words could ever be heartily say amen. So far as the people will but power out of the war and the heartlessness are such men serve the country, the country will be true to them. Every man in the line of service this country may cheerfully pay the pension, and the benefits may with propriety be extended to the widow and children of those who have died and of those soldiers who are already war worn.

But Maj. McKinley had large choice notion of the war and of the condition of the north, and of the plans of government which came when the struggle was over. He was not a soldier of fortune and it was found by entirely safe that the battlefield was not a hot-bed of politics. He was one of those who knew what was part of patriotism and what was not. He was a soldier—who did not, for himself, or for any other, use the battlefield was not a hot-bed of politics. He was one of those who knew what was part of patriotism and what was not. He was a soldier—who did not, for himself, or for any other, use the battlefield was not a hot-bed of politics.

There is a notion afoot in this country that the war is over, that the soldiers' claims are not so necessary, and those who as volunteers entered the service of their country without hope of reward and without any incentive of fame or popular praise, but who, when the war was over, returned and gave their best and all to the country they had—their life's blood—to the saving of the Union and best government under the sun.
