Local Man Marooned For Two Days In Middle Of Pamlico Sound

(The Gold Leaf Farmer, Wendell, North Carolina)

One local sportsman is less enthusiastic about fishing than he was two weeks ago, after being marooned two days and nights in the middle of Pamlico Sound.

James T. Clay, son of Police Judge Joe Clay, Carlisle, Ky., tobacconist affiliated with Monk Henderson Tobacco Company accompanied a group of men from Tarboro on the proposed fishing trip through the weekend of April 30 which developed into a search.

The party comprised of eight men—four each on two cabin cruisers owned by Judge George Howard Fountain and Senator Weeks both of Tarboro—left Washington, N. C. port early Friday morning for Ocracoke where they would make headquarters for the weekend.

Senator Week's boat and three of the would-be fishermen preceded the Fountain Boat to Ocracoke.

Around 1:30 p.m. Friday the Fountain Boat began sputtering and refused to budge further under its own power.

No gasoline was the reason—Someone had siphoned the gasoline from the filled tank during Thursday night at its Washington port moring.

Clay stated the longest period of his life was from Friday 1:30 p.m. until Sunday noon when a shrimp boat found the boat and the four men safe and they reached Washington, N. C. around 5 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

Did they fish while in the middle of Pamlico? "No," says Clay "we were too scared to even eat. However the men did prepare one meal aboard and were amply prepared for many others.

The men allowed the boat to drift with the hopes of reaching Bluff Point after waiting a day for possible rescuers.

Senator Weeks and the three men aboard his boat had contacted all Coastal land points, including Tarboro to see if for some reason the men had returned to their homes.

Searching the water route taken from Washington to Ocracoke revealed nothing of the cruiser and its four occupants.

It was a happy Sunday for all when Coast Guardsmen reported they had just received a telephone call from the men stating they were safe—at last, and on land at Bluff Point; even though they were taking to the sea again shortly for the trip ride to Washington.

Can anyone identify that man who asked James T. to go on a fishing trip with him this week end?
