VFW Conference At Hazard In Nov.

Cooper T Holt, Chattanooga National Junior Vice Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, will be a guest at the Fall Conference of the Department of Kentucky VFW at Hazard on Saturday and Sunday, November 6 and 7.

Meetings of the Fall Conference, an annual affair, will be held at the Oliver Hazard Perry Post No. 7387.

The Council of Administration, executive group of the Department of Kentucky, composed of all elected state officers and the District Commanders of each of the State's fourteen districts, will meet on Saturday morning, November 6 at 11:00 a.m.

Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock there will be a parade followed by a reception at 4:30 p.m. at the Towne House Motel honoring state officers. Holt will be the speaker at the banquet Saturday night at 7:00 p.m. at the Post home.

The business sessions will close Sunday with a meeting at 11:00 a.m. when the Ladies Auxiliary meets jointly with the men. Dennis Woods of the Oliver Hazard Perry post is chairman of the Hospitality and Banquet. J. D. Hubbard, Kentucky Department Commander, will preside at the business meetings. Hubbard is from Marion, Kentucky. National Junior Vice Commander Holt is a past Department Commander of the Tennessee VFW and is past chairman of the Southern Conference, an association of VFW Department organizations in eleven southern states including Kentucky.

Richard H. Roudebush, National Chief of Staff of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has accepted the invitation of Iroquois Hill Post No. 6182 to be the speaker at the banquet on Saturday night, November 13, dedicating their new post Home at 992 Longfield Avenue in Louisville. Roudebush is also appointed Chief of Staff by National Commander-in-Chief Clifton B. Tice following his election at Philadelphia in August. He is an Indianapolis businessman and a past Commander of the Department of Indiana VFW.

Judy Farley, exhibitor of the grand champion calf at Hendrasburg County Fair, will receive a trip to the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

WHOSE FARM? Last week's mystery farm proved a puzzler for many, but Ann Lee Ockerman, Eugene Clinkenbeard and John McCarty identified the place properly as that of O. H. Knight on Sharpsburg. Dick Hatton lives on the farm which is located near the new bridge across Hinkston on the old Convict pike.

The owner of the farm pictured above will receive a beautiful and clear photograph if he or she will call at The Mercury office.

Farm Labor Wages Four Times Prewar

Labor is currently relatively expensive, with farm wage rates more than four times as high as those paid before the Second World War. During the same period prices of machinery, including tractors, have approximately doubled, and prices of motor supplies, including gasoline and other fuels, have increased about 50 percent.

These and other statistics have been recently compiled by U. S. Department of Agriculture economists who say the amount and cost of labor saved by adopting mechanical methods of performing farm work will continue to be an important consideration in farm planning.

These figures indicate that for most field crops, a good deal less labor is used per acre than was used in 1910-14. The almost complete conversion from horses and mules to tractors, trucks, and other forms of mechanical power and associated machines is the main reason for the big drop.

According to the recently published statistical report, the greatest proportional decrease in man hours per acre occurred on small grains and other crops similarly planted. Based on 100 percent for 1910-14, the percent of labor per crop unit produced in 1950-53 was all corn, 37; oats, 39; wheat, 29; rice, 27; hay, 55; potatoes, 89; sugar beets, 55; and cotton, 60 percent.

Tobacco is at the opposite end of the scale. It is chiefly harvested by hand and the significant increase in yields has resulted in more man-hours per acre. However, the increase in hours has been less in proportion to the increase in yields, the USDA economists report.

Dairyman Finds Grass Useful

County Agent Luther H. Small of Bell county writes how Charlie Jordan of Fourmile used sudan grass for his dairy cattle when other grass was made useless by drought.

He sowed five acres of sudan in late spring. After pasturing it in late July and early August, he removed the cows for a time and then put them back in the field.

Later on he plowed up the sudan grass and sowed balbo rye and crimson clover for late fall and winter pasture and to plow under next spring.

Farmers Required To Join Program Of Social Security

Dr. Frank J. Welch, director of Agricultural Extension Service, University of Kentucky, is urging farm owners and farm operators to get in touch with their Social Security office before the end of this year.

"Beginning Jan. 1, Social Security law furnishes insurance protection to both the farm operator and the farm worker," Dr. Welch said, "but there are certain things about it that each operator and worker needs to know. The proper place to get this needed information is the local Social Security office."

According to Director Welch, farmers and farm employees will need to get Social Security cards if they don't already have them. Original or duplicate Social Security cards can be obtained through any Social Security office.

In Kentucky, there are Social Security offices located in Ashland, Bowling Green, Corbin, Covington, Frankfort, Hazard, Lexington, Owensboro, Louisville and Paducah.

Social Security for farm people is not optional or voluntary," Dr. Welch pointed out. "It is required, the same as it has been for employers in industry and for self-employed persons. In years to come it will provide valuable insurance protection for retired operators and workers, and for their families in case of death."

Because this is so important to practically all farm families, the Director explained, county agents in the state are working closely with the Social Security officers. County agents have made arrangements to have Social Security representatives attend meetings of farm organizations when requested. Each county agent has also obtained supplies of informational pamphlets about Social Security for farm people.

It is the recommendation of Director Welch that every farm operator and worker take advantage of this opportunity to learn what Social Security will mean to him and his family.

Agents Show Better Way To Handle Leaf

The University of Kentucky agricultural extension program in Barren county stressed the importance of priming tobacco and using faster methods of cutting.

Thomas E. Humphrey, assistant agent, says 4-H club members made up to $300 an acre by priming in 1953. They made more than $3 an hour pulling off lower leaves as they ripened.

While some farmers now use one man to cut the tobacco and another man to spear the stalks, the county agents, showed how time and money could be saved by one man doing both cutting and spearing.

Can You Identify This Mystery Farm Photograph?

WHOSE FARM? Here is the 6th in a series of mystery aerial farm photos of Nicholas County and surrounding territory. The owner of the farm shown above will receive a beautiful and clear copy of the original photo free of charge or she will call at The Mercury office.

The mystery farm pictured last week was identified as the property of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Clark who purchased the farm eight years ago from W. N. Phillips. The property is known as the Holliday farm and is located on U. S. Highway 68 near the Walnut Grove road.

Mrs. Clark stated the farm home had been completely remodeled and that their son, Boone Clark and family lived there. Tobacco is the main crop.

First to call in a correct identification was Mrs. E. H. D. Allison followed by Mrs. Tommy Grimes, Mrs. Homer Hillock and Mrs. R. D. Clark.

Eleventh Annual Soil Conservation Essay Contest Prizes Total $3,225

Kentucky grade and high school students are eligible for $3,225 in U. S. Savings Bonds in the eleventh annual Soil Conservation Essay Contest.

The competition was announced by Barry Bingham, president of The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times, WHAS and WHAS-TV, Wendell P. Butler, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and A. Threlkeld, president of the Kentucky Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

"How Water Conservation Benefits My Community" is the subject of this year's essay.

A $100 Savings Bond will go to the student submitting the composition judged to be state winner. Second prize is a $50 bond and third, $25 bond. Winners of the three top prizes and their families will receive also all-expense-paid trips to Louisville as guests of honor for the annual Farm Awards Luncheon next spring.

In addition to the state awards, district prize of a $25 bond will be given to the boy or girl who places first in each of the 122 soil conservation districts where at least 5 essays are submitted.

County prizes to be awarded to sixth place are as follows:

First, $25 U. S. Savings Bond; second $8; third $6; fourth, $4; fifth $3, and sixth, $2. The two top winners in the county will compete for state awards.

As an added incentive a special certificate will be awarded to the winter of the winning essay in each Kentucky school and to the runner-up in each soil conservation district.

Entries should be sent to the county or city school superintendents by December 11, the contest deadline.

Old Cane Ridge Meeting House Cornerstone Ceremonies Held

The cornerstone for the new superstructure being built over the old Cane Ridge Meeting House was laid in ceremonies at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. Earl D. Cartwright, editor of the Christian Evangelist, St. Louis, Mo., delivered the principal address.

Others on the program were the Rev. Rhodes Thompson, pastor of the Paris Christian church; Roy Royalty, Irvine; Mrs. D. D. Dugan, Ashland; Freddie Pierce, Danville; Forrest L. King, Lexington; John W. Jones, North Middletown, and Prof. C. E. Pyatt, Lexington.

Dr. Robert M. Hopkins, director of the Cane Ridge preservation project, presided, and Gentry Shelton, led the music.

The cornerstone, weighing almost half a ton, and hewn from the native Cane Ridge limestone, of which the superstructure will be built, was prepared through the cooperation of the Paris Monument Works, with the copper box placed in it coming from the Gay-Bell Crop, of Paris.

Documents placed in the cornerstone include a copy of the program for the day, a copy of Dr. Cartwright's address, a copy of the program for the sesquicentennial celebration held last June, a special edition of the Christian Evangelist, a copy of the World Call, a copy of Fred's Rank, the program of the state convention of Disciples of Christ, a copy of "Voices From Cane Ridge," compiled by the Rev. Rhodes Thompson, the autobiography of Barton W. Stone, copies of recent issues of The Lexington Herald, The Lexington Leader, the Paris Daily Enterprise, the Kentucky-Citizen and other papers published in neighboring counties.

There also is a copy of the newly published Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible, contributed by Dr. Roy G. Jones of New York, who was secretary of the committee that made the revision and who is now general secretary of the National Council of churches of Christ in the U.S.A.

Hunting Season Opens Nov. 17

Kentucky's hunting season is in the offing On next Wednesday, November 17, at 12 o'clock noon, the waterfowl season opens and on the following Saturday, November 20, rabbits and squal may be hunted.

Shooting hours for the 55-day waterfowl season are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset except on the opening day, when shooting will begin at 12 o'clock noon and continue until sunset. The 60-day rabbit and squal season will close on January 31. In all shooting only guns which will hold not more than three shells in the magazine and barrel combined may be used.

A hunting license is required for all persons in Kentucky except for residents over 65 and in addition to waterfowl hunters, over 16 years of age, must also have a duck stamp which may be purchased at post offices.

In addition to rabbits and squal, squirrels may also be killed from November 20 through December 31; this being the second half of the split season.

Burley Markets To Open Nov. 30

The Burley Sales Committee voted Monday at Lexington to open the 1954-55 tobacco auction season in the eight-state belt on Nov. 30.

The sales will be conducted four hours daily through Dec. 23 and will be resumed on Jan 4, after the Christmas holidays.

This would give 64 selling hours in which an estimated 358 million pounds of burley could be sold before Christmas. This amounts to about 59.9 per cent of the total crop now estimated by the government at 573 million pounds.

The sales committee resolution, adopted by the nine members attending Monday's meeting, provides that warehouses operating on a basket basis shall sell a maximum of 1,440 baskets a day from each set of buyers. Houses which sell by the pound shall sell a maximum of 345,600 pounds a day for each set of buyers but not more than 1,600 baskets.

The sales committee also provided that warehouses could specify in advance their methods of selling and could change during the holidays but could not change during the pre-Christmas sales or in the post-holiday sales once the method was established.

A 64-hour pre-Christmas sale would be the heaviest in the history since the 1948-49 season. The market last year opened on Nov. 30 and closed on Dec. 18, during which 330 million pounds of burley, or 55.3 per cent of the crop, were sold.

Farm Electricity Course Is Completed By Junior, Senior Ag. Students at NCHS

The junior and senior classes of vocational agriculture at Nicholas County high school have just finished a two weeks course in farm electricity.

The class under the instruction of John Adams, agriculture teacher and Sam Wallace, farm adviser for Harrison Rural Electric Co-op were taught these things:

1) Parts of a wiring system including sources and ways of transmitting, 2) electrical terms and common names for parts of a farm wiring system, 3) electrical behavior including wire sizes, wattage loads for wires running to barns and Astatic parts of the furnished, 4) planning farm wiring systems, 5) adapting farm wiring to type of farming. Here it was pointed out how farm wiring differed with dairying, poultry, and general farming.

This course was not limited to class room instruction but included work in the school farm shop on actual wiring. Five "Do It Yourself" jobs were outlined and each of the fourteen students completed the jobs on practice boards, observing rules of safety.

The idea of this work was developed last year when John Adams, agriculture teacher at Nicholas County high school saw the need for electrical training for his vocational agriculture classes. He took the problem to Mr. Wallace and together they organized a 2-week course consisting of five class periods and five shop periods. The course proved so valuable to the students that Mr. Wallace taught the course without making any charges to six other schools and six veteran classes.

This year Mr. Adams and Mr. Wallace developed the advanced course in farm electricity which the class at N.C.H.S. has just completed. Emphasis this year was placed on wiring farm buildings.

The class was shown the effect of increasing loads over long spans of wires and how to correct conditions arising from low voltage. Instruction was given on how to use electricity economically and effectively with safety.

$237,500 Paid For Clay Farm

Mrs. L. M. Hilliard of Lexington has paid an indicated $237,500 for the 4,750-5,000-acre Clay farm in Nicholas and Fleming counties, eight miles north of Carlisle.

Mrs. Hilliard said she purchased the property for her sons, Richard and Robert Riggs and her daughter, Mrs. June Riggs Young, wife of Thomas H. Young, all of Lexington.

The farm was sold by the Clay heirs, Mrs. Fields Shackleford Blanton of Richmond and Mrs. Keen Shackleford Moberly, now living in Germany, who are joint tenters, and Mrs. Sue Clay Goodman of Paris, their aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard and the Riggs brothers will take possession March 1, 1955. The purchase, W. G. Irvin, $28.00; and Joseph Holland, $15.00. Cost of Appraisals was $4.00.

Premiums Lowered

Because the cooperative program was effective in controlling dog population, the Farm Bureau, and the Nicholas County Fiscal Court was so effective in controlling dog dogs, the premiums for the new fiscal year were reduced. For the new fiscal year, President Smith said, the rates on premiums will be reduced from 25¢ per head to 15¢ per head on grade sheep and the cost for purebred will be 30¢ per head which is being reduced from 50¢ per head.

The premium includes protection against sheep losses from dogs only and also will include protection for the spring lamb crop. Any sheep grower in Nicholas County may become a member of the Sheep Association by contacting any director or by calling at the county agent's office, Smith said.
