Officers And Men To Be Replaced

The Department of the Army announced today that it has placed in operation a civilian-for military replacement program, termed "Operation Teammate," designed to replace an additional 12,000 officers and men engaged in support-type activities with civilian employees.

The replacement program will permit the Army to retain in service a number of units in the combat structure which otherwise would have been inactivated due to the reduced personnel ceiling.

The military manpower savings expected have already been incorporated in the troop basis planned for the end of the current fiscal year in June.

Operation Teammate, which will affect the six continental U. S. Armies, the Military District of Washington, and the Administrative and Technical Services of the Army, will free approximately 12,000 officers and men for purely military assignments. From 1951 to the present time, more than 27,000 military personnel have been replaced by civilian employees of the Army. When the present replacement program is completed in June approximately 40,000 positions previously held by military personnel will have been filled by civilian employees over the past five years.

The Army has carefully examined the position in" support-type functions in the continental United States to which military personnel have been assigned. Much of the preliminary work connected with the sizable replacement program under operation teammate has already been accomplished. The program will be completed in two phases, one ending March 31 and the other on June 30.

With the completion of Operation Teammate, the Army feels it will achieve an optimum balanced military-civilian team required to support the combat forces. Some positions, lending themselves to possible civilian employment, will continue to be held by military personnel because of the necessity for training personnel to staff similar positions in critical areas overseas.

University To Hold Dairy Short Course

The University of Kentucky has announced a Feldmen's and Herdsmen's Short Course Feb. 21, 22 and 23. It will be sponsored by the Dairy Section of the University, Kentucky Cream Improvement Association, Manufactured Milk Improvement Association and Kentucky Purebred Dairy Cattle Association.

Featured speakers will include Prof. J. P. LaMaster, head of the Dairy Section of Clemson College in South Carolina; Curtis Hobson, manager of Marla Farms in New Jersey, and Dr. E. M. Searls of the National Dairies, New York.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Milk and Food Sanitarians will be held during the course.

The attendance will include 4-h-a-t 100 representatives of creameries, condensaries, cheese, ice cream and other milk plants; also, men in charge of dairy herds throughout the state.

Cherry Wood Used To Make Furniture

Mrs. J. C. Carr, a member of the Hilltop Homemakers Club in Harlan county, and her husband are making a large hutch and drop-leaf dining room table of wild cherry wood, some of which is more than 20 years old. Practically all of the furniture in the Carr home has been made by this couple, including three paint beds, coffee table, cabinets and other pieces.

Mrs. Carr used her skill in needlework to weave several baskets and trays for gifts, her husband having made the bases in his shop. Mrs. Carr has woven chair seats of Hong Kong grass, and is planning to sign-cover a living room suit, says Mrs. Rosie Perkins, UK home demonstration agent.

Soil in which fertilizer high in potash and low in nitrogen was applied produced the best tobacco in Hancock county.

The Clark County Farm Bureau has voted to employ a fal-time secretary.

SCOUTS OBSERVE 45th BIRTHDAY

45th ANNIVERSARY 1955
BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

OFFICIAL BOY SCOUT WEEK POSTER

Boy Scout Week, Feb. 6 to 12, marking the 45th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, will be observed throughout the nation by more than 2,860,000 boys and adult leaders. Since 1918 more than 22,750,000 boys and men have been members.

"Building for a Better Tomorrow" is the birthday theme of Members of 95,000 Units, through demonstrations and exhibits, will dramatize the purpose of Scouting and the rich heritage it has brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Spirit" at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural selections to be read from the King James Version of the Bible will include the account of Philip's baptizing of the Ethiopian eunuch as recorded in Chapter 8 of The Acts of the Apostles.

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following selection will be among those read (241:27): "The baptism of Spirit, washing the body of all the impurities of flesh, signifies that the pure in heart see God and are approaching spiritual Life and its demonstration."

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians (12:13): "By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free."

Paul Blazer Gets Kentuckian Award

Paul Garrett Blazer, Ashland businessman and civic leader, was named Kentuckian of the Year for 1954 by the Kentucky Press Association at its annual meeting in winter convention at the Brown Hotel, Louisville. He was selected by vote of the membership from a list of twenty well known Kentuckians who had been nominated for the services to their community and state.

He follows a distinguished list of Kentuckians who received the award in previous years, Henry Ward, Mrs. Mary Breckenridge, Dean Thomas Poe Cooper, Paul Bryant, Senator John Sherman Cooper and Senator Alben W. Barkely.

He was presented the award and certificate by Vice President William C. Caywood following his introduction by James I. Norris, fellow citizen of Mr. Blazer, and executive editor of the Ashland Independent. In his laudatory remarks Mr. Norris stressed the contribution that Mr. Blazer has made for many years to his community, to the state, and to education, as well as his leadership in the industrial world. In listing his accomplishments, the speaker paid tribute to the awarder for his unstinted devotion, time and means to the field of education.

Mr. Blazer was born in New Boston, Ill., in 1890, the son of a weekly newspaper publisher. He attended William and Vashti College and the University of Chicago. After serving as advertising manager of the Great Northern Refining Company in Chicago, he came to Kentucky in 1919 following service in the World War I. He assisted in organizing the Great Southern Refining Company in Lexington, and moved to Ashland in 1924 to organize the Ashland Refining Company which was later merged with the Swan Oil Company in 1936 as the present Ashland Oil and Refining Company with Mr. Blazer as president.

He became chairman of the Board in 1944. The Ashland Company is now one of the leading industries in the state, with its subsidiaries, it employs over 4,000 people. He had led in the realization and use of the tremendous possibilities of the Ohio River as a vital artery for Kentucky commerce. His company now operates seven large diesel towboats on the river.

He is a director on several large corporations and served as chairman of the board of the Cincinnati branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland in 1949-50. He was member of the Petroleum Industry War Council during World War II, and is a present member of the National Petroleum Council.

He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Centre College, Danville, Alpha Tau Alpha, and he received the Sullivan Medallion Award from the University of Kentucky in 1949.

He was married to Miss Georgia Stuart Monroe in 1917. Two children, Paul Garrett, Jr., and Doris Virginia, live at home. A second son, Stuart Monroe, was killed in action in Korea. Mrs. Blazer is a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky.

In honoring Mr. Blazer, the association is itself honored for the accomplishment of one of Kentucky's outstanding citizens.

February—1955

TOBACCO WORRIES. Many people over Kentucky are alarmed about the tobacco situation. With surplus stocks creeping higher, farmers are faced with smaller allotments and lower prices. It is estimated that the income from the 1955 crop will be at least 50 million dollars less than from the 1954 crop. That will mean a decrease in purchasing power for the majority of people in Kentucky, whether they are farmers or not. What hurts tobacco in this state hurts us all.

There are two general solutions to the problem. One, do something about tobacco itself—endeavor to produce more of the light cigarette type—and two, hasten a "diversification" program on Kentucky farms. Russell Hunt, our Mr. Tobacco, has some pertinent suggestions on the first. He recommends that tobacco be grown in a rotation so that it follows sod at least every other year, that the application of nitrogen be kept to a minimum, and phosphorus and potash be maintained at a very high level. Certain cultural practices also aid in reducing the nicotine content. We all have high hopes, too, that research workers will soon have desirable types of low nicotine tobacco.

INTERCROP FARMING is a term applied to a farm whether he is a producer of tobacco, corn, cotton, cattle or what not. Russ sell's recommendation will boost diversification in Kentucky beyond the point where it will cause most crops grow well after tobacco. Due to particularly high of strawberries and alfalfa. Strawberries are an excellent supplement for a tobacco or cattle farm. Berry growers agree for well drained soil, a good supply of water, a good supply of organic matter, a well balanced fertilizer program and a good supply of manure from cattle, hogs, sheep and other livestock.

Twenty years ago, Eric Cassell, Assoc. Professor of Horticulture, nearly 10,000 acres of strawberries were produced annually. At that time I was considered a near-expert in berry production, but last month while attending the State Horticultural Society I found how much progress had been made in their culture, and how little I knew about modern berry growing. The berry grower now has "virus-free" plants to insure freedom from certain diseases, chlordane to control grubs, cutworms and wireworms, "Crag" herbicide and grass to control weeds and grass, and irrigation to prevent drought damage. With a combination of these new developments, the berry grower of today can expect double and triple yields of a few years past. But to unite the grower who tries to produce berries without at least some of these modern aids. He will be lost to his competitors before he starts.

It will soon be too late to get started in berries this year. Early setting is one essential in getting a good start in berries. Berry plants set in March the easier it is to obtain a stand. Plants are scarce, too, so the berry acreage will not increase too much this year. If you are in a new berry area and are interested in growing them, better see your county agent about them now.

State Corn Derby Winners announced

A yield of 140.4 bushels of corn per acre made Floyd Cook, Lincoln county, winner in the first state division of the 1954 Kentucky Corn Derby.

George Wooton, Leslie county, was named state corn-growing champion in the one-acre division for his yield of 197.6 bushels. It was the first year in the corn derby for both winners.

Both Gooch and Wooton used soil tests as a guide in the application of fertilizers. Both prepared excellent seedbeds and both side dressed their crops with ammonium nitrate.

Gooch turned under a cover crop of knee-high vetch and wheat in which had been sown a ton of limestone to the acre. At planting time, he applied 400 pounds of 20-20-20 and 300 pounds of 16-0-14 in the acre. When his corn was knee-high, he side dressed the crop with 175 pounds of 33 percent ammonium nitrate per acre. He applied 100 pounds of 33 percent nitrate on April 20 and planted Funks G 711 on May 3.

Wooton plowed under a cover crop of vetch on which he had broadcast 1,500 pounds of 20 per cent superphosphate. He applied 300 pounds of 16-20-0 and he planted the corn on June 10. When the corn was about knee-high he side-dressed it with 100 pounds of 33 percent ammonium nitrate. Wooton sprayed his crop with 2, 4, D when the corn had produced 5 nodes. He used 1 N 5 2 N in spray.

Other winners were: Ten-acre division: Joe and Sam Johnson, Fulton county, 131 bushels; Ray and Early Rice, Mason, 126; A. Boggs & Sons, Madison, 124; Dwayne Burton, Wayne, 128; Willis Chapman, Ohio, 117; Boyce Lodge Farm, Madison, 117; Virgil Alvey, Greenup, 115; Jimmy Williams, Lincoln, 114; and George Wooton, Leslie, 113 bushels.

One-acre division: Connie Lowery, Johnson, 180 bushels; John Blanton, Johnson, 176; Charles Porter, Elliott, 161; William Bogie, Madison, 158; Otis Delmer Reeves, Whitley, 147; Perry Comer, Clay, 142; Paul Lemaster, Johnson, 138; John C. Horn, Pike, 138; and Joe Horn, Pike, 138 bushels.

All winners will receive prizes from the Kentucky Green Pastures Program, sponsors of the corn derby, at a banquet during the Farm and Home Week at the University of Kentucky.

4-H Assistance For Machinery Problems

Eighty-seven farmers in 54 counties will act as leaders in helping 4-H club boys with their problems in maintaining and operating tractors and other farm machinery. These men were given special training at the recent 10th annual tractor clinics at the University of Kentucky at Lexington and the Agricultural Experiment Substation at Princeton.

Instructors at the courses included representatives of the major tractor and machinery manufacturers and dealers. The Standard Oil Company was sponsor of the schools.

Adult farmers trained at tractor clinics last year returned to their home counties to assist around 1,200 club members with their machinery problems. J. W. Whitehouse, state 4-H club leader, said he expected at least 2,000 young farmers to have assistance this season. The operation and care of machines other than tractors were special features of the courses this year.

More than 90 percent of Allen county homes are wired for electricity.

And it was nothing more."

So glad to the most of us was the fall of the "silent rain" the feathery crystals which drift—sweet.

So—Friday as the twilight thickened with gray clouds and the snow came whirling and dancing in large fleecys flakes—we wondered who saw the shadows, the misty distance blurred with whirling flakes of beauty—really saw it in all its beauty—or was it to him

"A primrose by a rivers brim

MOST PEOPLE still don't believe it. But it is true.

And when you look into the facts, you'll find these two solid truths:

Buick is one of the "Big Three" in sales volume—and hotter this year than ever before. And Buick is one of the "Big Three" when it comes to prices which make such popularity possible. The price we show here proves it.

So why not get what a Buick has to offer, if you are in the market for a new car?

You find that the dollars you pay for Buick buy you a far more automobile—and the sheer satisfaction that comes with bossing a brawny traveler of this caliber.

You find it in the record-high V8 power that gives life to this spirited performer. You find it in the soft and level and cruiser-steady ride that comes of all-coil springing and torque-tube stability. You find it in the extra roominess, the extra frame strength, the extra tread width, the extra silencing—all part and parcel of every Buick.

We could tell you about the little things, too. Things usually charged for as "extras" in other cars, but yours as standard equipment at no extra cost in every Buick. Things like direction signals, cigar lighter, cleaner, full-flow oil filter, automatic lighting in glove and trunk compartments—and so on.

But—you get the idea. This is a buy, this '55 Buick—a great buy—and a thriller from the instant you press the gas pedal. Come in this week and check things for yourself, won't you?

*2-door, 4-passenger Buick SPECIAL Sedan, Model 46, illustrated. Optional equipment, accessories, state and local taxes, if any, additional. Prices may vary slightly in adjoining communities. Even the factory-installed extras you may want are bargains, such as:
Heater & Defroster . . . $81.70; Radio & Antenna . . . $92.30.
