VOLUME 88 ESTABLISHED 1867 CARLISLE, KY., THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1955 PRICE FIVE CENTS NUMBER 3

Nicholas County Quintette Loses To Paris Greyhounds, 66-57

Fighting with determination throughout the game, the Blue Jackets of Nicholas County high school were defeated by the Paris Greyhounds 66-57 here Tuesday night.

Lead by Letcher, Nicholas County guard, who scored 20 points, the Blue Jackets refused to allow the Greyhounds a comfortable lead at anytime during the game in which the score was tied ten times. The Paris team concentrated defensively on Ned Jennings, Blue Jackets big center, and held him to five points during the first half. In the meantime McMahan, Paris center, controlled the backboard and dropped in 11 of 16 attempts at the foul line for a creditable 73% Bill Paris guard, connected for 20 points to lead the Greyhounds in the scoring category.

Game Tied

Paris had at each stop: 16-11, 30-24, 50-48. In the first game the score was tied twice, 2-2, 9-9. The Blue Jackets made it even twice in the second period, 22-22, and 24-24. After the half the Jackets came back to push the Greyhounds hard as they made the contest a new one five times, 30-30, 32-32, 36-36, 42-42, and 44-44. In the fourth period Paris pulled ahead after the score had been tied 56-56 and captured the Jackets, 66-9.

First Half

In the first period Bill Anderson picked up four points for Nicholas County while Taylor got two. Jennings two, Bob Anderson one and Letcher two. For Paris Purcell hit five, Jordan two, McMahan six and Bill three. The Greyhounds out scored the Jackets in the second canto by one point, 14-13 as Anderson got two, Taylor two, Jennings three and Letcher drop-ped in six, while Purcell hit four, Marty two, McMahan two, Bill four, and Jordon two for the Greyhounds.

Out Scores Paris

The Nicholas team measured Paris by four points in the third quarter 24-20. Jennings hit his stride by dropping through eight counters and Taylor and Letcher were close with six each. Bob and Bill Anderson marked up a field goal. Jordon and McMahan carried the burden for the Greyhounds with eight points each, during this period. McMahan added to the foul line eight times without missing and Bill and Purcell notched two, a crip and two fouls respectively to complete the Paris score for the period.

Last Canto

During the last quarter Bell ran up 11 fast points for Paris while Purcell got three, McMahan one and Wiglesworth one. Letcher added six more to total his 20 for the night as Jennings picked up two at the foul line and Fryman one by the same method for Nicholas County scorers.

At the foul line Paris hit 66% on three tries while Nicholas County dropped through 62%.

Science Explores New Ways Of Solving Water Problem

President Eisenhower's warning that we are rapidly burning up the Nation's most critical natural resource—water, and the habitual shortages of fresh water in many parts of the United States.

Water is needed for all but only things, is also the lifeblood of industry. The production of a ton of finished steel, for example, requires 65,000 gallons.

As the population grows, it gulps down water in ever-increasing quantities. The demand for both public use, industry and irrigation totals an estimated 200 billion gallons a day or 73,000 billion gallons a year.

Falling water tables and squabbles over water rights have plagued the West and Southwest for years. More recently, lingering droughts have siphoned off wells, ponds and streams in the South. Submarine rationing is becoming common in Eastern cities.

Problem Of Distribution

Nature, however, is not running rain. The Nation's total rainfall contributes to average 30 inches a year—a superabundance of 1,570,000 billion gallons. The problem is distribution.

The Herculean task of replenishing water in arid regions or cities where demand is outreaching supply is being approached in several ways: conservation measures such as antipollution and re-use of water, helping farmers to increase supplies in areas of scarcity, and conversion of fresh water from sea water and brackish water, also new and visionary.

Interior Secretary Douglas McKay says economical conversion of sea water and reclamation of contaminated water offer two of the most promising fields for research.

Several large distillation units are actually operating at oil refineries in remote, sun-baked spots. The largest of them, on the Persian Gulf, supplies 720,000 gallons a day for the Kuwait Oil Company.

Unlimited sweet water from the salty sea is an age-old dream. But present distillation systems are still too costly for general use. The Rand Corporation found in a recent survey. Depending on the process, the cost is $150 to $1200 per acre foot compared to $1.50 to $3.00 per acre foot for water in the United States.

Underground Reservoirs

Known principles of laundering sewage may eventually provide industry and agriculture with usable water, and science is looking for ways of using it to treat underground wastes, says the National Geographic Society.

Part of the Nation's supply flows as vast underground reservoirs in some localities, ground water is being tapped much faster than nature can replace it. Artificial recharging of these reservoirs with excess rainfall water may ease a cheap source of water.

On King Ranch in Texas, a lake was built for a recharging experiment. As the lake fills, the water will be pumped down a deep well into a natural reservoir that supplies hundreds of windmills.

Hydrologists are studying other methods, notably surface treatment of watershed lands to stimulate greater mosaic of rain and snow. Denuded land sheds water like a tin roof, causing floods and a dry, hot spread. Reforesting, proper vegetative cover, contour plowing and construction of small reservoirs dams help the earth to absorb rainfall.

Evaporation Losses

Plant life, like man and industry, is a greedy consumer of water. More than 70 percent of the Nation's rainfall is used by plants or breathed back into the atmosphere. To conserve local supplies, some experts favor the removal of profuse, undesirable plants such as the thirsty, long-rooted salt pine.

Evaporation robs open storage lakes, reservoirs and distribution canals of perhaps half their water. The rate, of course, varies with humidity. Oil layers or boards in irrigation covers might save millions of gallons.

PRESENT DISTILLATION SYSTEMS are still too costly for general use, the Rand Corporation found in a recent survey. Depending on the process, the cost is $150 to $1200 per acre foot compared to $1.50 to $3.00 per acre foot for water in the United States.

Plant life, like man and industry, is a greedy consumer of water. More than 70 percent of the Nation's rainfall is used by plants or breathed back into the atmosphere. To conserve local supplies, some experts favor the removal of profuse, undesirable plants such as the thirsty, long-rooted salt pine.

Evaporation robs open storage lakes, reservoirs and distribution canals of perhaps half their water. The rate, of course, varies with humidity. Oil layers or boards in irrigation covers might save millions of gallons.

Feed Production Meeting Friday

A special Feed Production meeting will be held Friday, January 21 beginning at 10:30 a.m. at the county courthouse, it is announced by William Straw, County Agent. This meeting has been requested by the planning committees in Dairy and Beef Cattle, Sheep and Swine production.

The meeting the been scheduled so that farm people will have time to attend. The program is designed to include discussion of the latest available information in the production of hay and pasture and how to utilize this feed to the best advantage.

The program is as follows:

9:30—Trench Silos and New Features in Building and Remodeling by Earl G. Welch, Field Agent in Agricultural Engineering, University of Kentucky.

Lunch.

1:00—Effective Feeding of Hay and Grain, by Linville Bush, Field Agent in Dairying, University of Kentucky.

1:45—Effective and Economical Use of Fertilizers in Production of Hay and Pasture, by Harold Miller, Field Agent in Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

During the past three seven month years, it has become apparent that Nicholas County farmers need to do a more effective job of producing hay and pastures. The economical production of hay and pastures should be the number one objective in the livestock program. This meeting will deal with the conditions necessary for effective hay and pasture production.

The part of the meeting will deal with the storage of feed in Nicholas County, a practice that was recently installed by Howard Sidle and Owl Day.

The use of fertilizers in forage production and how soil testing can be used to the farmers advantage will be another important consideration of the meeting.

Attends Baptist Evangelistic Meet

Rev. Gerald McNeely of the Carlisle Baptist church attended the Kentucky Baptist Evangelistic conference which met in Louisville, January 10-12 at the William Street Baptist church.

Many ministers and other religious workers attended the conference which had as one of its objectives the promotion of the Southern Baptist Evangelistic Program for April 10-24 of this year. Also, much emphasis was given to the theme of Baptists for this year, "Every Church Revived in '55." Last year's theme of "A Million More in '54" resulted in some 600,000 being added to Southern Baptist Sunday Schools, which was by far the largest gain in any year of Baptist history. "This gain helps explain why Southern Baptists are the fastest growing of any major denomination in America," Rev. McNeely said.

Outstanding personalities who spoke at the conference included Dr. W. A. Criswell of Dallas, Texas, pastor of the largest Baptist church in the world, Dr. Ben Herring of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Dr. Homer Lindsay of Jacksonville, Florida.

Polio Campaign Enters Third Week; Local Drive To Feature WLW Stars

Kentucky's 1055 March of Dimes campaign, which opened January 3, entered its third week Sunday in the nation-wide effort to raise $64,000,000 to carry on the battle against polio on its fronts this year.

Local Campaign

The Nicholas County March of Dimes campaign has announced a fund raising event to aid the polio campaign here.

Mrs. Robert Coutney, chairman stated that a benefit featuring Bonnie Lou and Kenny Price, stars of WLW's Midwestern Hayride would be held at the Nicholas County gym Friday night, Jan. 28 at 7:30 o'clock.

Bonnie Lou, the young and attractive Swiss yodeler and ballad singer on WLW and WLW-T is 28 years old, married and the mother of a 3 year old daughter. Bonnie Lou has spent more than half her life entertaining in radio.

A student of serious music on the violin for five years, Bonnie Lou at the age of 11 decided she wanted a guitar. Her mother purchased one at a pawn shop for a few dollars, and saw the profit from her daughter's musical training coming from the folk music field.

Ballads and western numbers could well be her specialty but what Bonnie Lou does to a Swiss yodel song would make the Alps sit up and take notice.
