Science Explores New Ways Of Solving Water Problem

President Eisenhower's warning that water is rapidly becoming the "most critical domestic issue" of our time and suggestion that the industrial stockpiles of fresh water in parts of the United States.

Water, the lifeblood of all living things, is also the lifeblood of industry. The production of a ton of basic steel, for example, requires 65,000 gallons.

As the Nation grows, demands for water will grow at an ever-increasing quantities. The current demand for 355 billion gallons of irrigation-potable water is estimated 200 billion gallons a day or 71,000 billion gallons a year.

Falling water tables and squabbles over water rights have plagued the West and Southwest for years. Many recently congenial communities have sightened off wells, ponds and streams in the South—sometimes reasoning is becoming common in Eastern cities.

Problem Of Distribution

Nature, however, is not ration-ing. Yet the Nation's total rainfall continues to average 30 inches a year—a superabundance of 1,170,000 billion gallons. The basic problem is distribution.

The Hebrews took up replenishing water in arid zones or cisterns which demand a man-making supply is being approached in several ways. conservation measures such as pollution control and re-use of water, helping nature to increase supplies in areas of scarcity, and conversion of fresh water from the sea. Some methods are old, others new and tentative.

Interior Secretary Douglas McKay says economical conversion of sea water and reclamation of contaminated water offer two of the most promising fields for research.

Several large distillation units are actually operating at oil refineries in remote, sun-baked spots. The largest of these, on the Persian Gulf, supplies 720,000 gallons a day for the Kuwait Oil Company.

Unlimited sweet water from the salty sea in an age-old dream. But present distillation systems are still too costly for general use, the Rand Corporation reports in a recent survey. Depending on the process, the cost is $150 to $1200 per acre foot compared to $1.50 to $50 for natural fresh water in the United States.

Underground Reservoirs

Known principles of laundering sewage may eventually provide industry and agriculture with sweet water and science is looking for an economical way to treat industrial wastes, says the National Geographic Society.

Part of the Nation's supply flows at vast underground reservoirs. In some locations, ground water is being tapped much faster than nature can replace it. Artificial recharging of these reservoirs with excess runoff water may provide a cheap source of water.

On Kong Ranch in Texas, a cattle lake was built for a recharging experiment. As the lake fills, the water will be pumped down a deep well into a natural reservoir that supplies hundreds of windmills.

Hydrologists are studying other schemes, notably surface treatment of watersheds lands to stimulate greater mosaic of rain and snow. Denuded land sheds water like a tin roof, causing floods and loss of fertile topsoil. Reforesting, proper vegetative cover, contour farming and construction of small dams help the earth to absorb rainfall.

Evaporation Losses

Plant life, like man and industry, is a goody consumer of water. More than 70 percent of the Nation's rainfall is used by plants or breathed back into the atmosphere. To conserve local supplies, some experts favor the removal of profuse, undesirable plants such as the thirsty, long-rooted salt pine.

Evaporation robs open storage lakes, reservoirs and distribution canals of perhaps half their water. The rate, of course, varies with humidity. Oil layers or buoyant insulation covers might save millions of gallons.

Attends Baptist Evangelistic Meet

Rev. Gerald McNeely of the Carlisle Baptist church attended the Kentucky Baptist Evangelistic Conference which met in Louisville, January 10-12 at the Walnut Street Baptist church.

Many ministers and other religious workers attended this conference which had as its main objectives the promotion of the Southern Evangelistic Crusade, April 10-24 of this year. Also, much emphasis was given to the theme of Baptists for this year "Every Church Revived in '55." Last year's theme of "A Million More in '54" resulted in some 600,000 being added to Southern Baptist Sunday Schools, which was by far the largest gain in any year. Detailed land sheds water like a tin roof, causing floods and loss of fertile topsoil. Reforesting, proper vegetative cover, contour farming and construction of small dams help the earth to absorb rainfall.

Outstanding personalities who spoke at the conference included Dr. W. A. Criswell of Dallas, Texas, pastor of the largest Baptist church in the world, Dr. Ralph Herring of Winston-Salem, N. C. and Dr. Homer Lindsay of Jacksonville, Florida.

To Take Infantry Mortar Course

Polio Campaign Enters Third Week; Local Drive To Feature WLW Stars

Kentucky's 1055 March of Dimes campaign, which opened January 3, entered its third week Sunday in the nation-wide effort to raise $64,000,000 to carry on the battle against polio on all fronts this year.

Local Campaign

The Nicholas County March of Dimes campaign has announced a fund raising event to aid the polio campaign here.

Mrs. Robert Coutney, chairman stated that a benefit featuring Bonnie Lou and Kenny Price, stars of WLW's Midwestern Hayride would be held at the Nicholas County gym Friday night, Jan. 28 at 7:30 o'clock.

Bonnie Lou, the young and attractive female yodeler and ballad singer on WLW and WLW-T is 28 years old, married and a mother of a five year old daughter. Bonnie Lou has spent more than half her life entertaining in radio.

A student of serious music on the violin for five years, Bonnie Lou at the age of 11 decided she wanted a guitar. Her mother purchased one a a pawn shop for a few dollars, and saw the profit from her daughter's musical training coming from the folk music field.

Ballads and western numbers could well be her specialty but what Bonnal Lou does to a Swiss yodel song would make the Alps sit up and take notice.

SCRAP TOBACCO

Farmers who have scrap tobacco which they would like to donate to the Nicholas County Polio Campaign, are asked to call the local Kentucky Utilities office phone 339 where Morris Whitely, polio chairman will make the necessary arrangements to gather the tobacco. Waste tobacco will be sold and the proceeds used to fight polio the chairman said.

Kenny Price, whose hometown is Covington, will also be on hand Friday night.

He was discovered by WLW a short time after receiving his discharge from the Armed Forces, having spent 15 months in Korea. Price is a fine country and Western singer and appeared on the Horace Heidt U.S.O. show in Korea, helping to entertain his buddies.

Known from being a Country and Western entertainer, Price loves to farm, and knows the business from "A to Z". Photography is his favorite hobby when he is not singing.

All proceeds derived from the Jan. 28 benefit will go to the polio youngsters of Nicholas County.

Second Attack

Kentucky experienced its second worst polio year in 1954, with a total of 822 cases having been reported.

Expenditures by polio chapters here were the highest on record in the past year, mainly as a result of cases from prior years which are requiring extensive rehabilitation to bring them back to their full recoveries. The National Foundation sent $286,785 in 1954 to Kentucky chapters which were unable to meet the heavy expenses with funds retained after the 1954 March of Dimes.

To be eligible to get the vaccine this year will be first and second graders all over the country plus those children who participated in the field trial last spring but who did not actually receive vaccine.

Out of the 1955 budget, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will spend $9,000,000 to provide about 9,000,000 young children of the nation with vaccine to protect against paralytic polio, if the vaccine proves to be effective and is licensed by the Government. The evaluation of the 1954 vaccine field trial will be completed in April. Expecting a successful report, however, the National Foundation is financing production of the Salk vaccine now so that it will be available in quantity this spring if the evaluation confirms the hopes that have been placed in it.

Last Mystery Farm Is Identified

Last weeks mystery farm, the last in a series of 54 aerial pictures begun in December 1953, was identified Saturday by Otis Caswell, of Paris Route 3

Caswell stated the farm was located on the Walnut Grove road 7½ Nicholas County, consisted of 65 acres and was probably better known as the Rob Collier farm. It is the property of Mrs. Hiram Toadvine, of Hooktown.

Caswell's wife, a nurse at the Bourbon County hospital, Paris, also identified the picture in the Mercury.

Mrs. Caswell asked Mrs. H. K. Veach, a patient at the hospital if she could see Mrs. Veach's copy of the Mercury, remarking at the time that she probably wouldn't know her home if pictured.

$124,705 Paid To Nicholas Needy

Residents of Nicholas County drew 5124,705 in public assistance benefits during 1954, according to a year-end report of Commissioner of Economic Security Virgo Fiser.

Expenditures by polio chapters here were the highest on record in the past year, mainly as a result of cases from prior years which are requiring extensive rehabilitation to bring them back to their full recoveries. The National Foundation sent $286,785 in 1954 to Kentucky chapters which were unable to meet the heavy expenses with funds retained after the 1954 March of Dimes.

To be eligible to get the vaccine this year will be first and second graders all over the country plus those children who participated in the field trial last spring but who did not actually receive vaccine.

Out of the 1955 budget, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will spend $9,000,000 to provide about 9,000,000 young children of the nation with vaccine to protect against paralytic polio, if the vaccine proves to be effective and is licensed by the Government. The evaluation of the 1954 vaccine field trial will be completed in April. Expecting a successful report, however, the National Foundation is financing production of the Salk vaccine now so that it will be available in quantity this spring if the evaluation confirms the hopes that have been placed in it.
