School Bus Accidents Total 329 Last Year

Kentucky's county and independent school districts paid twice as much in insurance premiums last year to insure against accidents, as was paid by companies for claim agents, according to a study made by the State Department of Education.

Superintendent of Public Instruction H. P. Baxter disclosed that districts paid $73,000 in premiums last year for insurance against accidents and property damage and claim agents growing out of accidents.

Baxter revealed that the study was made because of John L. Vickers, director of his transport division, who pointed out that there were 329 school bus accidents during the year which resulted in 61 persons being injured, four suffered serious injuries and one fatality.

The study disclosed that the 329 of the accidents occurred on paved roads, 68 were on gravel roads and 15 were on dirt roads. Of soldiers, 1,000 were injured in good condition in 185 cases, 53 occurred on wet pavement, 26 on rough places and three on "soft" places in the road.

Tests Can Determine Weak Points; Enable Teachers To Adjust Courses

Testing is one of the important ways by which teachers get as much information as possible about each pupil. Test scores aid the teacher, in guiding the pupil emotionally, socially, psychologically, as well as in making teaching more effective.

The most common tests, given in schools are achievement tests, intelligence tests, interest tests, and tests which measure pupils attitudes and personalities.

In looking at achievement test scores, a teacher finds the pupil's strong and weak points and is able to do something constructive about what is found. In order to find why the pupil scored as he did on the achievement test, the teacher consults his intelligence test scores to see if intelligence is a determining factor. She checks the pupil's interest tests to find whether interest or lack of interest has a bearing on the score. She checks the reading test scores to see if it is discovered that the pupil is not a good reader, the teacher may find that both the achievement and intelligence test scores may be revealed since both tests do depend so much on reading ability.

Diagnostic reading tests are given readers and set up remedial reading courses for them. This is an effective method of assisting pupils to make better grades and results in more pupils being retained in school. When intelligence and reading tests are both checked, it is possible to pick out the pupils who, usually in ninth grade pupils of a watershed rainer than on a small plot. One of the most interesting research projects to be seen is the hysimeter where an area of undisturbed land, one-five-hundredth of an acre in size and eight feet deep, weighing about 65 tons, is balanced on scales so delicate that weight changes can be measured to five pound accuracy. This is the equivalent of about one-onehundredth of an inch of rainfall over the entire plot All weight changes are recorded automatically. Weight records provide data for determination of condensation-absorption of moisture from the atmosphere, evapo-transpiration of soil moisture, and changes in storage of soil moisture, as well as record of amount of precipitation and runoff.

Mr. Lloyd I. Harrold is supervisor of the Research Station and he was on the program at Farm and Home Week in Lexington in February of this year.

Headquarters Of Methodist District To Be Moved To Maysville In August

Headquarters for the Carlisle District of the Methodist Church will be moved to Maysville and the district will be renamed the Maysville District, it was announced in Louisville, June 8 by Bishop William T. Watkins.

The change will be effective Aug. 21, at the beginning of the new conference year, said Bishop Watkins, head of the Methodist church in Kentucky and Western Tennessee.

At that time, the district superintendent will move from Carlisle to Maysville. The present district superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Warren P. Davis, lives at 316 Elm street, here.

The district headquarters is being moved because a majority of the pastoral charges of the district are closer to Maysville than to Carlisle.

The Carlisle District covers several counties and there are 30 pastoral charges in the district. Several of the charges have two or more churches.

Maysville was the headquarters, or seat, of the district for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, before the unification of that church with two other branches of Methodism in 1939.

The bishop said the decision to make the change was made after consultation with the seven district superintendents of the Methodist Kentucky Conference, of which the Carlisle District is a part.

Local Chamber Of Commerce Plans; Hears Talk On Modernization

At an open meeting of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce Thursday night in the courthouse, Ed Burnett, commercial service engineer of the Kentucky Utilities Company, spoken on "Main Street Modernization." In presenting the program, Mr. Burnett was assisted by Misses Wanda Reid, Martha Sue Feeback and Mr. Billy Burton, who appeared in two short skits depicting his remarks.

After Mr. Burnett's talk, a short business session was held in order to discuss the Chamber's participation in the Blackberry Festival and Homecoming to be held July 2-4. In an effort to encourage local merchants to decorate their fronts, a suggested red, white and blue theme was presented and the cost estimated. It was decided that the Chamber would not sponsor a float for the festivities but as many local merchants as possible should be encouraged to do so.

The annual Hospital Benefit to be held at Forest Retreat Friday, June 17 was endorsed by the Chamber and members were asked to attend.

In response to a suggestion made by Mr. Burnett in his talk, it was decided to contact Dr. W. Hunter Baker of the University of Kentucky and have sales classes conducted at the local level some time in the near future. It is necessary to have at least fifteen people in attendance for Dr. Baker to set-up a class.

Plans were made to have a fish fry at the regular meeting of the Chamber in July. The fry will be held at the city reservoir.

In his talk Mr. Burnett pointed out that in "Modernizing Main Street" the local merchant keeps trade at home, helps to improve town, and increases his income. To illustrate the improvements which have been made in towns throughout Kentucky, a series of slides were shown. A time point program was suggested for a key to more sales. Mr. Burnett pointed out that the trailer must get set for sales, be courteous in selling, put up a good store front, light up merchandise, make the customer comfortable, arrange merchandise properly, present attractive displays; provide for parking, and aid the customer with good advertising.

Plans for the annual Blackberry Festival and Home-coming were announced Monday by John D. Power, commander of Nicholas Post 17, American Legion. In releasing the tentative program schedule, Power pointed out that every day, July 1-4, would be packed full of entertainment with a dance to culminate activities each night except Sunday.

The festival will open at 2 p.m. Friday, July first with the feature activities being welcomes by the commander of the American Legion, the mayor, and the county judge followed by the float parade at 8 p.m. There will be a $25.00 prize for the best decorated float and for the winners of the second and third places in the judging prizes of $20.00, $25.00 and $5.00. Power stated that the National Guard, Carlisle Variety and Jr. Dept. Street, Younger Women Club, Miranda 4-H Club, Clifton Waugh and Farm Bureau have proposed entries, and added that at least 14 floats are expected to enter the competition. The Carlisle Chamber of Commerce will enter a float on a non-competitive basis to provide transportation for the festival queen and her attendants.

Saturday July second there will be an address by A. B. Chandler, Democratic candidate for governor of Kentucky, and the crowning of the festival queen by Mr. Chandler. The queen will be chosen in the usual manner, but to date none has been selected, Powers said.

Entertainment scheduled for Sunday July third will be the operation of rides from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The festivities will culminate Monday night July fourth with a fireworks display at 9:15 p.m. and a round dance featuring Jimmy Gilpin and his orchestra from 10:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.
