Farm Bureau Suggests Further Cuts In '55 Acreage Allotments

Three extra steps at keeping tobacco the top cash crop in this state were recommended last Thursday by the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation.

Worried by the mounting burley tobacco surplus, federation directors suggested Congress be asked for further cuts in the 1955 acreage allotments, making reductions applicable to all growers.

In the past, growers with the lowest quotas, of 1 or an acre, were not affected by any slashes.

Directors also said acreage controls should be continued but supplemented with poundage quotas if workable and practical figures can be obtained.

In Washington, the Agriculture Department said it would arrange meetings with growers next week to discuss the surplus and means of holding it down.

The announcement was made after a joint meeting of Senate and House Agriculture Subcommittees on tobacco to find ways of solving the problem, which has pushed supplies far above demands.

Boyl S. St. Clair of Falls of Rough total federation directors said "the board is seeking a high net dollar income per farmer in the production of burley tobacco. These measures, even though they may seem somewhat drastic, were approved by this group of farmers representing 74,000 farm families in Kentucky for the primary purpose of saving the tobacco program." He is president of the organization.

Last month, the executive committee recommended that penalty paid on leaf grown in excess of quotas be raised from 50 to 75 per cent of the previous year's average selling price. Other measures approved: destroying of excess leaf in the field when possible; more intensive training for persons measuring acreage; and tighter enforcement of rules on use of marketing cards which show compliance with allotments on leaf growing on town lots.

The committee expressed fear that the large reserve stocks and the unexpected yield last year could wreck the present production-control and price supper systems.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NICHOLAS COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT FOR 1954

The Nicholas County Soil Conservation District, having completed their eleventh year of operation, we the Supervisors of Nicholas County Soil Conservation District, are proud to inform the public of the yearly activities carried out through your District Program. The Supervisors responsible for such a successful year are, namely: Charles T. Whaley, Chairman, Norwood Asher, Vice-Chairman, Frank C. Henry, Secretary-Treasurer; Lowell Hollar and E. F. Becker. Our SCS Technician responsible for the technical part of our conservation program was M. W. Belt.

With the assistance of the Soil Conservation District, one hundred two farmers came into this program, fifty seven did additional work, and sixteen reached the final stage of planning. Over half of the farmers in the district have begun to establish a conservation plan on their farms. Our Plan's main objective is to use every acre of land according to its capabilities. An example is shown on steep or rolling topography land which is most suitable for pasture or meadow. Some of the chief agricultural incomes of the county is derived from grazing, more acres of better pasture is a necessity. During the past few years many acres of pasture and meadow seedings were lost by the drought. The farmers have begun to realize the need for more, better, and longer lasting stands of deep-rooted grasses and legumes. Many more tons of higher analysis fertilizers have been used this year than in any previous year on pasture and meadow to increase and to maintain greater production.

The fact that farmers are receiving more returns from water stored during excessive rainfall by constructing larger ponds is a good trend. This has been shown by the construction of seventy six ponds for use during wet and dry periods. The average size of ponds built this year is one-third larger than the average pond in 1953. These ponds have better locations, spillways and dam slopes. Four of the farmers have constructed lakes primarily for irrigation purposes while remainder are primarily for livestock water.

In cooperation with the Division of Fish and Wildlife, approximately sixty ponds were stocked with fish during the year. They have also cooperated with the District in establishing five wildlife plantings to furnish food and cover for quail.

This year, many more farmers realized the value of contour farming, subsoiling, terracing, renovation of pastures without cultivation the first year, diverting tobacco to bottom land from ridges, constructing diversions to prevent erosion, and establish grass waterways. Three miles of diversion channels were constructed to protect the bottom land from erosion. One mile of terracing has been built in these diversions and on the ridges.

Nicholas County consists of many acres of hillside pasture that should be cleaned and seeded to be profitable. Most of this land clearing, pond building and diversion building are being done by heavy equipment. Since this has been the case the District has purchased four bulldozers to help farmers to get more conservation practices on their farms. These bulldozers were purchased by the District with loans obtained from the Division of Soil and Water Resources, Frankfort, Ky. This equipment is leased out to local contractors for conservation work in Nicholas County.

Approximately five hundred farmers received technical assistance from ACP Conservation Program during the year. These requests have been serviced by Soil Conservation technician and part-time Aids in cooperation with ACP and the District in supplying more conservation on the land. The funds made available by the Nicholas County ASC Committee for the employment of part-time local aides to service ACP requests was the means of getting this big conversation done.

The County Agent, FHA Agent, Veterans on-the-farm instructors, and Vocational Agriculture teacher have done a very effective job of educating the farmers. Without these sources, the District program of conservation education could not be successful. Every meeting, tour, or demonstration in the county has been carried out with very successful cooperation and assistance of the above agencies and equipment dealers.

The clergymen have been very cooperative in the District program by delivering sermons to their congregations on soil stewardships to emphasize the importance of conserving our soil. They have pointed out that man is morally obligated to take care of what not misuse the soil which has been left in his care.

The school systems have cooperated with the District by encouraging students to write essays on soil and water conservation. Four four students have participated in this contest. The two best essays in the district contest were entered in state contest.

The local newspapers have assisted the District in a very effective way, by placing before the ways to promote the Soil Conservation Service program in Nicholas County.

We wish to thank the individual farmer, equipment dealers, bankers, ministers and all interested in helping protect and improve the soil in each field on every farm in Nicholas County. We feel that the most efficient job of conserving the soil will depend on the combined efforts of every citizen. We would like to suggest that every farmer request more assistance during the coming year in order to help accomplish our objective.

Respectfully submitted,
Charles T. Whaley, Chairman,
Nicholas County Soil Conservation District

CK Horse Show Association Meet

Dates for 15 horse shows in Kentucky this spring and summer will be set at a meeting when the Central Kentucky Horse Show Association holds its annual meeting at the Campbell House in Lexington.

President Curt Z. Bruce called the meeting W. E. Crutcher, Morehead, is Secretary-Treasurer of the Association.

In addition to assigning the 1955 dates Sunday's gathering will elect officers.

The dinner-business meeting is scheduled at 6 o'clock. An informal open house of managers and exhibitors starts an hour earlier.

Members of the Central Kentucky Horse Show Association, which is largest circuit of its kind, are: Carlisle, Irvine-Kavanaugh, Arlington, Georgetown, Cynthiana, Winchester, Berea, Renfro Valley, Flemingsburg, Owingsville, Versailles, Paris, Mt. Sterling, Germantown and Falmouth.

The Carlisle VFW Horse Show was held last year on Tuesday June 1 (Russell Alexander was Chairman and John Feebeck Secretary. Bruce said Carlisle will have priority on a date the first week in June if they request it at Sunday's meeting.

Income Tax Help Offered By Gray

District Director of Internal Revenue, Wm. M. Gray, announces that an Agent from his office will visit Flemingsburg, on April 6, 7 and 8 for the purpose of assisting taxpayers of this area filing their final 1954 returns and their estimated returns for the year 1955. These returns must be filed by April 15, 1955.

The District Director of Internal Revenue urges that taxpayers desiring the above service, but not yet in possession of their income and their deductions for the preparation of a return be at hand.

It is also suggested that taxpayers whose returns require business schedules or involve unusual amounts of income limit the use of this service to the extent of using only a proportionately fair charge of the limited time and personnel available for this absolutely free service.

assume his new pulpit on April 15.

Rev. Neal said the Portsmouth church has a membership of 700 and an average Sunday attendance of 400 and he feels there is great opportunity for growth now because of the many new residents who will find their employment at the Pike county Atomic energy plant.

Rev. Neal went to Portsmouth from Bowersville in 1940. During his ministry the average attendance has increased from less than 100 to a record 304 during the past quarter, and 400 members have been added to the church rolls.

He also has been instrumental in enrolling many young people from the congregation in Bible seminaries.

During his pastorate the interior of the church edifice has been remodeled, and adjoining apartment building has been rented to accommodate the growing Bible school, a building lot has been purchased and an adjoining 9-room residence acquired as a parsonage.

He has been president for two years of the Central Ohio chapter of alumni of Cincinnati Bible Seminary; recently was elected to a third term as president of the 16 Churches of Christ in Highland county, and is president of the Pike county Evangelistic Association of more than 60 Churches of Christ.

He has been a member for five years of the board of directors of the Butler Springs Christian Service Camp and its purchasing agent for four years.

He is a past president of the Greenfield Ministerial Association, and a former member of Greenfield Rotary club for which he edited "Hy-Gear," its weekly bulletin.
