'Walking Bob' Struck By Car

Robert (Walking Bob) Waugh, about 50, a familiar figure in Paris and Carlisle streets is reported in good condition at Bourbon County hospital, where he was admitted about 6 p.m. for treatment of injuries suffered when he was struck by a car on Friday.

Police said the accident occurred at 5:45 p.m. on Eighth street. Driver of the car was Mrs. Bernice P. Mitchell, 26, of Paris Route 2. She said she was going east on Eighth and had just started uses from a stop light when Waugh stepped into the path of her car. She estimated she was driving about five miles an hour when the vehicle struck Waugh.

She said Waugh either was calling to a friend or someone was calling to him when he stepped into the street.

Waugh suffered multiple bruises.

Police Chief Garlan Jordan and Patrolman Tom Williams investigated.

Waugh is well known as a derbyerman in Bourbon and Nicholas counties for years he pushed a wheelbarrow between the two towns, delivering packages and handbills. His wheelbarrow wore out recently, but friends donated enough money to buy him a new two-wheeled cart to carry his wares. He was not pushing the cart when he was hit by the car, but was on a handbill-delivering mission.

Supplementary Crops For Forage And Hay

The adult farmers class at the Nicholas County High school will meet at 8 p.m. C.S.T. Thursday (tonight), May 5.

The topic for discussion "Supplementary Crops for Forage and Hay in 1955".

This is a problem of basic importance as farmers in the area have been handicapped annually by droughts and insects.

The wide selection of certain summer annuals of the grass and legume family more forage and hay can be secured in an emergency measure.

For the sake of economy and more efficient production of farm crops, it is necessary to plan ahead on the farm rather than depend on chance, said A. I. Thatcher, Agricultural Agent Nicholas County high school.

Members of homemakers clubs in Kentucky will be among the five million women in the United States who will observe National Home Demonstration Week May 1 to 7.

By exhibits, tours, window displays, teas and special programs, and through the press and radio, homemakers in 106 Kentucky counties will acquaint themselves with some of the results of the program. A total of 208 women in the state are members of 1,847 homemakers clubs.

The newest reliable information in all phases of homemaking is brought to rural and farm homemakers through home demonstration work including foods and nutrition, housing, home management, health and safety, child care, family relations, marketing and consumer information, clothing construction and home making, home furnishings and home improvement, landscaping and good business practices.

"Through this program, women acquire information for better homemaking, they master current skills and techniques, and gain an appreciation for standards of workmanship," said Mrs. Lillie Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work at the University of Kentucky.

"Assisting in carrying on the statewide program are 137 state and 22 county home economists, including specialists and 122 county home agents and their assistants. In addition, 23,841 volunteer local leaders serve as connecting links between the University and the 26,000 active homemakers clubs.

Plans for the observance of National Home Demonstration week will be developed locally, varying from county to county.

Rollin' Along . . .

By Nellie Cranno

What that man Howard K. Stitch will do up when he really gets down to old time house cleaning is a sight! Last week he brought in an old Mercury dated June 15, 1867, the year it began publication. He did not say it was the only old newspaper he had "up his sleeve" but somehow we never expected to see an older one.

However, I found on my desk 48 issues morning two old papers and old means OLD—time worn and yellow with age, almost so fragile as the modern tissue wrapped around them, of exceedingly small print, but legible (of course) and quite interesting and markable, well preserved—considering that in Both papers are four-page editions and the columns are just a trifle less than three inches wide.

The Washington National Intelligencer of Thursday, January 31, 1845, whose motto was "Union and Union, now and forever one and inseparable" was a shock to break the news gently and the price was $6 per year for the three-a-week published by Gales and Seaton. Public meetings are called to an a "Lyceum" and much space is given to politics, and the annexation of Texas.

Strange that Texas received New York by the ship "Paul Jones" on which vessel came an passenger named Moses Webster and O.Donnell, attaches of the American Lyceum to Chinai and Mr. Ward and Mr. J. S. Waldron, U. S. Consul and Navy Agent at Hong Kong, who had died on September

1,320 acre cotton plantation in Alabama was offered for sale. Orphan's Court advertised many for administrator a bill were filed in the Southwestern Insurance was amended and ordered read the third time, a bill was introduced to establish Military posts in the Territories of Oregon and Nebraska, the famous race horse "Dick" Dwell, was valued at $500 was offered for a female servant Mary Frances stolen in November

Carefully turning the pages lest they crumble between our fingers we all but collapsed at the sight of the other newspaper we have ever seen—(Attention, Sag Kash) The Cynthiana (Ky.) Advertiser of January 6, 1827, whose motto was "Not to display learning, but to excite a taste." W. F. Birch was the editor of this 4-column treasure with "the extra wide margins for the children to do their sums" and the subscription price was $2 per year. Much of its space is given to the Congress, then in session. The thing that appeals to us most is the advertisement of the Grand Masons, Hall Lottery, also a list of uncalled-for letters in the Cynthiana postoffice as of December 31, 1826, a bill to amend the charter of Augusta College authorizing them to confer degrees and also invest $3000 in the purchase of a ferry across the Ohio in the town of Augusta, passed the Senate. A lengthy advertisement in prose of new goods (there was no tea to be had) received from Philadelphia by Samuel Jouett Jr. Son who desired to trade—"barter" is the word used—for such items as Merchantable Whiskey, Beeswax, Ginseng, Goose Feathers, Jeans, Flax and Tow Linen and "a thousand and one other long-forgotten items that meant a living to Kentuckians over a hundred years ago.

John Sibert Unhurt As Bridge Falls

A 140-foot section of a bridge across the Big River at Williams ton, W. Va., collapsed while unloaded last Thursday, burying nine workmen 45 feet down the river bank in a tangle of wreckage.

All miraculously escaped injury, although one, R. M. Lucas, 38, of Cynthiana, went in the water and narrowly escaped being hit by a heavy compressor machine.

The others, all of whom received treatment at the scene, were John Sibert, 28, of Blue Licks, Sam Reynolds, 37, of Jellico, Tenn., and Oliver McKinney 38, of Harold, Ky.

Two and two others, laborers working under the span who scurried to safety, were employees of George Construction Co., of Charleston, contractor on the repair job.

All were released after treatment at the scene

Timber!

As a safety measure the older and extra large silver-poplar trees in the courthouse yard are disappearing rapidly this week under the expert hand of Leonard "Red Wing" Watkins and his crew of men. The trees have withstood both heat and cold for more years than our oldest citizens can remember, but at last succumbed to the ravages of time. "A stitch in time" can save lives.

Henry of North Middletown, and the late F. B. Henry.
