Much Cream Lost In Hand-Skimming

It is estimated that skimming milk by hand results in a loss of about 25 percent of the cream. Which fact caused Mose W. Dunning, Jr., of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics to make the following statements.

"Considering that butterfat is expensive, a more thorough method of separating is needed. The mechanical separator is by far the most effective method of separating. About one-fourth more dollar-income from cream is obtained when a mechanical separator is used. For this reason the separator will pay for itself in savings faster than any other piece of farm machinery. Cream from a well-cared-for separator is usually of higher quality if cooled immediately and marketed often.

"Thorough cleaning of the separator after each use with warm water and a soapless cleaner cannot be over-emphasized. In many cases a large variation in the cream test may result from an improperly washed separator.

"The separator should be adjusted to deliver cream testing 30 to 45 percent butterfat if full economic benefit is to be expected from it."

Land Is Improved In Breckinridge

Turning about 15,000 acres of non-productive land into good pasture in the past 10 years is one of the most impressive changes in Breckinridge county, says UK County Agent Kenneth A. Brant.

Fifteen years ago Extension leaders in program-planning set a goal of 50,000 acres for land improvement. Fourteen bulldozers have been used to clear land. Then followed liming and fertilizing according to soil tests, and finally seeding grasses and legumes.

About 3,000 ponds and reservoirs have been made in Breckinridge county in the past 10 years.
