CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Availability today of God's healing and regenerative power will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.
Readings from the King James Version of the Bible and correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will comprise the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?"
Christ Jesus' healing of the "man with an unclean spirit" will be read from Mark including the following (1:27): "And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him."
Among the correlative passages to be read from Science and Health is the following (494:11): "It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour divine Love supplies all good."

Pruning and feeding important for shrubs

A butcher knife has lots of uses, but pruning shrubs is not one of them, says Prof. Noble Gilbert, extension specialist in horticulture at the University of Kentucky.

In fact, a knife of any kind will not serve the purpose, he said.

Mr. Gilbert recommends instead a pair of pruning snips, and those kept sharp so they make clean, smooth cuts. The time to use them is immediately after shrubs have finished blooming.

There are several early-flowering shrubs, such as forsythia, spirea, jasmine and japonica, and others, which should be pruned in a different fashion. If this plan is followed, the shrubs will be good looking for 15 to 20 years, while those that are not pruned often have to be dug up and replaced in 10 years. The so-called trimming or chopping of shrubs removes much of the bloom and should not be done, he said.

Here is Prof. Gilbert's simple rule for pruning shrubs: With a pair of pruning snips, prune about one-fourth to one-third of the old, black or dark brown stems by cutting them 2 inches from the ground. This will reduce the size of the shrub, more ka-ra will sap pour on the lower stems, and more and better blooms will be encouraged. Furthermore, it will not be noticeable that pruning has been done because the form of the shrub has not been destroyed.

After pruning, dig the soil under the spread of the branches to a depth of about 2 inches. Then scatter three or four handfuls of high grade fertilizer on the cultivated area. Old shrubs can be renovated in this way, and be better than new ones set in their places.

Evergreens such as hemlock, juniper, taxus, fir, spruce, pine and arbor vitae should not be pruned until June or the first of July. By that time they will have made most of their new growth and may be pruned.

Heart fund drive over-subscribed

Kentuckians contributed $256,767.52 to the 1956 Heart Fund drive in February, according to a final campaign report just released by Philip P. Ardery, president of the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only a few scattered communities haven't yet acknowledged their complete drive results, Ardery stated, but "they will make little appreciable difference in the overall figure."

The state goal was $225,000, Ardery said, adding that "I wish it were possible for us to thank personally everyone who contributed so generously of their time, effort and money to put us over the top by such a sizeable margin and make the drive such an outstanding success."

The national heart agency gets 25 per cent of all funds collected in Kentucky, and the other 75 per cent remains in the state to finance what Ardery described as "a rapidly expanding program of research, lay and professional education, additional heart clinics for children, and other badly needed community service projects."

People to vote on 2 amendments

Frankfort, Ky.,—Voters on April 17 will be asked to vote on constitutional amendments at the November 1957 general election, as a result of action taken by the regular session of the 1956 General Assembly.

First of the amendments would authorize establishment of a constitutional State Board of Education, appointed by the Governor to hold terms for four years each, the first appointments to run from one to four years so that one appointment would be made annually. In turn, the Board would name the Superintendent of Public Instruction, now an elective office. He would hold office for an indefinite term.

The other amendment is designed to make the process of constitutional revision simpler. It would permit the offering of free-standing of two-amendments to the people at any given election, and many persons believe that the process would facilitate the early removal of so much that is outmoded in the present Constitution.

The new amendment also would authorize submission of constitutional amendments at special elections.

Both proposals were recommended in principle by the Constitution Revision Commission and by the governor of the Chandler administration. The education amendment also had approval of educators throughout the State as a means of removing the Board, men, so far as possible, from political manipulation.

The revision of the amendment to raise to five the number of amendments to be submitted at any given election was the outgrowth of a Constitution Revision Commission study suggesting that two amendments might be submitted at one time. Proponents of the proposal not to have too many proposals at one time; tending to confuse voters.

COMMENT
The Carlisle Mercury
Carlisle, Kentucky

Dear Friends:

Sunday, March 4 I heard a noted evangelist speaking on television. Among other things, I recall Dr. P. Scott of Fort Worth, Texas, said that the people of today are more prone to the letter of our opponent than ever before in history. Perhaps I know more about receiving a letter than most people. I remember a few years ago in the Old Parks grocery store. Two members of the Carlisle Baptist church were there. I don't know what they were talking about, but I know they were quite a bit "stirred up." Finally, one of them said to the other, "I'll bet you I can write out of the old spring that runs across your farm in the house and by the way this old spring will run water and the water is better than ever in regard to the old farm." Well, I don't know what you all remember this quite well and I think that I have seen the spring. Looking Right Back Home Sometimes I wonder when the river was out of its banks and I think that I have seen the river too high to even cross on horseback and I know that I have seen Grant Creek for about a mile or more.

I think at one time the saw mill and planing mill at Parks Ferry was among one of the largest in the State of Kentucky and how well I remember the Camp Grounds that had a two or three weeks session every Summer, some of the great evangelists came here to preach the gospel—and I remember the Wm. Jennings Bryan was a speaker, the L and N railroad would run excursions every Sunday from all over the state, when these meetings were going on, also Morgans Men used to hold their conventions there, and I have heard of some of these reunions as a young boy. Back to the old burying grounds "I know that Buffy" for many of them in Nicholas County and I think that the people who are interested in one way or other should give the information they have so your free newspaper, that you may publish it. I think that it would be interesting and making good reading matter.

Of course I always enjoy coming back home to Carlisle and Nicholas County as I have quite a lot in common as my Dad, my Mother, two sisters and several relatives and friends are in the county. Just recently around 8 of Leb my wife and I stopped on our way back from Florida for a visit, and one morning I ran into Dr. Neff and was delighted to know he remembered me that Lewis Cherry and Clerk of Nicholas County are all my relatives and close friends in Nicholas County.

Sincerely yours,
John T. Durham

Am enclosing some data on one of the older homes in Carlisle. This home is located on the corner of Broadway and Chestnut known as the Dr Tilton Place was built in 1821 by my great grandfather Horace Metcalfe, who was the first postmaster of Carlisle.

He was succeeded in office by his brother-in-law John G. Parks. Horace Metcalfe married Isabella Parks and to them were children James, Born 1823 and Sallie Parks born 1825.

Sallie Pickett, my grandmother, married Dr. J. J. Taylor in 1842. They had two sons born in this house, Horace M. and George B. Horace Metcalfe was buried in the Carlisle cemetery, in the first lot on the right hand side, at the top of the hill. This was formerly in the old cemetery.

Am sincerely yours,
Madge Mann Holderman

Country Doctors Are Needed

By RUSSELL BIZE
Lexington Leader Staff Writer

The country doctor is passing, is a thing of the past in Eastern Kentucky.

The trend today is for doctors to set up offices in country towns. The people come to them. This is for many many people, a great hardship.

Most of the few doctors who specialize in obstetrics are getting old. They are not being replaced. In counties where young doctors are located, vibration is needed to do a limited distance.

Hyden and Hindman, in Eastern Kentucky, are the only places where Lynn Brown's young doctor manages several calls and in the country he drives hundreds of miles. But most of their time must be spent in the office. Only in emergency cases, must he linger in the hills. Hyden and Hindman are the exceptions.

One Eastern Kentucky doctor said he sees from 30 to 40 patients a day at his office. "I don't have much time for a visit."

Nick Turner lives on Clubfoot Creek in Leslie County. His wife was ill. He took her to see a "town" doctor. The doctor prescribed a "Cadillac" for the lady's ailment. Turner a couple of days later. But the doctor didn't come.

Many Eastern Kentuckians have faced similar situations. But they don't blame the doctors. Mrs. Turner's doctor was busy with more serious cases. Dr. Ernest Lewis, Hindman, Knott, of Mason's Creek in Knott County, said, "It's hard to get a doctor. You always run a chance he's too busy."

Clubfoot Creek residents said one doctor charges $1 a mile for visits. He is a mining camp doctor who lives "just nine miles away." He mileage alone amounts to $18 a call. According to Mrs. Bessie Dehart, "You can't get a Hazard doctor where I live for less than $10." Hazard is more than 30 miles away.

Taylor Edwards inspects the cane which has been a constant companion of his father, Dewey Edwards, since the elder Edwards was stricken with a hip infection. The son previously suffered from tuberculosis. They live at Buckhorn, where there is no doctor.

Bishop Johnson of Carr Creek said good roads and more automobiles have brought about a trend for doctors to locate in the more heavily populated communities. Johnson had a leg crushed by logs when he was a boy. It took two weeks to get a doctor to him. Today Carr Creek residents can get a patient to a doctor in a short while.

"But a country doctor in this section would help," Johnson said. A doctor will locate at Carr Creek several years ago. He boarded at Johnson's home. After he had no doctor replaced him.

Minister, in sponsor of a huge exhibition of industrial progress, Scientific Progress Exposition, which will open April 21 through April 29 at the University's Field House. Mr. Langham, president of the Universal Carloan and Finance Corporation of the national sponsoring committee for the exposition, and Frederick Lewis, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will be co-chairmen with Atlanta Area Chamber of Commerce officials in charge of the exposition. Mr. Mason will be a vice president of General Motors, now a vice president of General Motors management people.

Gilvin-Crockett Wedding Sunday

Miss Carolyn Jane Gilvin of Lexington, daughter of John B. Gilvin and the late Mrs. Nellie G. Sharpsburg, and Robert Scott Crockett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott Crockett of Carlisle, were married at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Lex Methodist church, Lexington, with the Rev. Steadman Bagby officiating.

The church was decorated with Easter lilies and palms. Mrs. Eliz Abeth Tyler presented a program of organ music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of rose patterned Chantilly lace over satin. The molded strapless bodice was worn with a matching lace jacket fashioned with a round collar and long pointed sleeves. A wide cummerbund of satin circled the waistline of the flared wide-length skirt. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held by a satin quilted cap trimmed with pearls. She carried a white orchid on a prayer book.

Mrs. A. N. Thompson, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a dress of orchid with a torso bodice and waltz-length skirt of lace over taffeta and pearls will prove to be a fine addition to the Mars family.

Mrs. Sherman Wagoner and Mrs. Marion Hyatt and children were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis.

Mrs. Ruth Singleton was weekend guest of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Singleton, evangelists of the P. H. Revival
