Delhi, India, has a traffic problem. Its population is so large that the production line for cars and super highways matched the production line of cows and oxen.

The average industry reports it now takes twice as much capital to work as it did 10 years ago.

Suburban Dearborn has lived in it. A force of five police dogs. In their year of duty the German shepherds, but two policemen they were treated with Chief Lawrence Schaefer said. "The dogs might be just right for all-out war, but they don't fit too well in our type of operation." It is said that lack of action made the dogs "nervous."
