HE STUDIED LINCOLN.

HENRY WATTERSON AND HIS LECTURE ON WAR PRESIDENT.

How the Great Southerner Came to Write His Lecture and What Mr. Lincoln Is Reading Up the Facts of His Subject.

That a southern man, himself a soldier in the ranks of the Confederate army, should be a favorite of national character and should be chosen as the orator of the day for a popular lecture in the metropolitan city of the north, that the orator of such an occasion should be a southern man, and that he should be invited to repeat his lecture in the north, in the south, in the west, to the people of the whole country, is a fact that is not to be found in the history of any other country in the world. Mr. Watterson had declined to lecture in the north, and he had declined to lecture in the south, but he was persuaded to do so by the committee of the Lincoln Memorial association of Chicago. He might modify they invited me to do it, but when they urged me to do it, but when they urged me to do it, but when they urged
