CARLISLE MERCURY.

VOLUME XXIX. CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KY., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1895. NUMBER 7.

JUST TEN YEARS

Since a Remarkable Happening

An Interesting Interview With a Prominent Commercial Traveler.

The correspondence on this daily search for the truth is very interesting. Here is a letter from a leading drug journal now. It reads: "Chester, Pa., will interest some of your readers. Chester is a manufacturing city, and has a number of big factories, and is a wonderful case. Mr. Connelly is well known to the drug trade, and is a prominent commercial traveler, and his statement should be true in good, and always considered as such. Mr. Connelly is a man of family, and has a good home, and is well acquainted with nine-tenths of the people in Chester. Although the cancer had by this time eaten away the entire left cheek, and the upper jaw, he was still able to attend to business. Some people will say that he was paid to say what he did, but I know Mr. Connelly, and know that he is not that kind of a man. Some people would say anything, and a good deal more than Mr. Connelly would say, for money, but I