GOP candidates not on defensive

(Lexington Herald)

The two Kentucky Republican candidates for the United States Senate in the November election find themselves in a far more difficult position today than they occupied a few years ago when they sought public office. Things have changed, and the two candidates now find themselves on the defensive and also in the unenviable position of trying to explain some of the unexplainable activities of the Eisenhower administration. They both are having a hard time of it, and, if reports from the field mean anything, they're not making much headway in their campaign.

In the 1954 campaign John Sherman Cooper appealed to the voters along the line that the Eisenhower administration was young and that it should be given an opportunity to prove itself. Two years have passed since that campaign, and while the opportunity still is there, nothing much has been done toward solving some of the country's pressing problems.

Thruston Morton, when he last ran for Congress, was classed as one of the "nuts," insofar as the Republican party was concerned. It was easy then to criticize the policies of the Democratic party and to call for the defeat of all candidates under that banner. Now he finds himself as the chief defense counsel of a party that virtually has entered a plea of guilty to the indictment.

The broken promises of the Eisenhower administration in connection with the farmers can not be easily explained. As a matter of fact, they can not be explained at all.

Let's keep the team in the game

(Hancock Clarion, Hawesville, Ky.)

We do not hesitate to say that during the past few years, and especially during the last Congress when the Democratic party was in control and Senator Clements largely directing the Senate procedure, he has accomplished more for the State of Kentucky than any Senator during the same length of time in the history of the Commonwealth. He has been alive and active in every thing that would bring better conditions to Kentucky. He has stood steadfastly for the interests of the farmers and the small business men of the State. No one has done more for Kentucky than he.

In like manner Congressman Natcher has been supremely active in the interests of his district and of our State. He has been on the job at all times and has never neglected an opportunity to act in the best interests of the people.

The Democratic delegation now in the Congress and the Senate have worked as a team for the betterment of Kentucky and the Nation. It would be to the best interests of our State to return this team, and adding to it the services of Lawrence Wetherby as the other Democratic Senator of Kentucky. All of them are qualified and experienced and would continue to stand for the best interests of all the people rather than for that of the few and the big interests.

He's A Good Man

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

Princeton, New Jersey—What reasons do those who say they would vote for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket today give for doing so?

This is the way MAN ON THE STREET hears it:

1. He did a good job get top mention. That they're satisfied with what He has done; that he's handled everything well, and his record of accomplishment are variations of the He did a good job theme people mention frequently when asked why they would vote for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

2. Next to He's record is that Eisenhower is a good man. Many voters feel and say that He's the best man; that he's a good man; that He's pretty good.

3. I like He; I like Eisenhower, and I like him better than Stevenson is another theme that voters mention frequently as the reason why they would vote for the GOP team.

4. Another sizable group simply say that I'm a Republican; that I've always been a Republican; that I believe in the Republican policies.

5. A motivating factor for many people who say they would vote for the GOP team is today's prosperity. Variations of the same idea mentioned frequently are more people are working; we've had pretty good years; I've got more now; the better times now; that everything's been as good as it's ever been.

6. That Eisenhower's brought peace is another reason people frequently mention. He kept us out of war; he settled that Korean War; he's the man to keep us out of war; the Democrats bring war are ideas people express when asked why they would vote for Eisenhower.

Other reasons mentioned somewhat less frequently are

7. He's an honest man

8. He's more experienced

9 I don't care for the Democratic candidate and

10. He's entitled to another term.

Mentioned much less frequently are that Eisenhower and Nixon are a better team; that He has good judgment.

Summing up, the reasons for voting for Eisenhower at this time are primarily that He's done a good job and that He's a good man. Then come I like He; I'm a Republican; Today's prosperity, and that Eisenhower's brought peace.

EISENHOWER-NIXON TICKET HOLDS LEAD OVER STEVENSON-KEFAUVER TICKET—MARGIN LESS THAN IN 1952

This is the way MAN ON THE STREET sees it at this time:

Eisenhower-Nixon	52%
Stevenson-Kefauver	45
Undecided	3

Assuming that the undecided vote divides in about the same proportion as the "decided" it shows figures become

Eisenhower-Nixon	53.6%
Stevenson-Kefauver	46.4

In the 1952 nationwide Presidential elections, Eisenhower received 55.4 per cent; Stevenson, 44.6 per cent of the two party vote.

KENTUCKIANS

OLDEST MEMBER:

President Eisenhower this past week named a new justice of the Supreme Court—William Joseph Brennan, a 50-year old New Jersey jurist who will be the baby of the court.

The appointment leaves Kentucky's Stanley Reed of Maysville the oldest member in point of years, having been born in 1884. And he remains the second in point of service. Come

Little boys are harmful. A shrewd calculations (meaning children's heads, not the peanut variety) have proved, for example, After spending a few minutes in a nice home recently, a second grader told me the owners were "awful rich."

"What makes you think they are rich." I asked with surprise.

With the hint of a frown, the answer came with all confidence, "Cause they got soft carpet and 'nishon' all over their windows — everyone of them."

ANOTHER JUDGE:

While we are on the subject of judges, we call attention to another Kentuckian who sits on the United States Court of Appeals in Washington, the second most important judicial body in the land.

Next week Wilbur K. Miller of Owensboro will mark his eleventh anniversary as a member of that court. He is the third ranking member in point of service. The late Fred Vinson served on this court before moving up to chief justice.

CHANCE FOR STUDENTS:

We report an opportunity for Kentucky college graduates who want to travel abroad and study at no cost.

Those Kentuckians who wish such an opportunity should get their applications in by the first of November. The Fulbright people, officially known as the Institute of International Education, will send you a form to fill out if you make a request to them at 1530 P Street NW, Washington, D. C. A college degree (or its equivalent), good health, and ability to speak the language of the country in which you wish to study, are required.

A report was given on our trip to WLW to appear on Everybody's Farm Hour. Those attending were J. T. Hammonds, Sidney Hollar, David Small, Jimmy Earlywine, John Adams, and Mr. Ball, State Supervisor. Our discussion was on leadership training.

A report was also given on the Kentucky State Fair by J. T. Hammonds and Jimmy Earlywine who attended along with Mr. Adams.

Some members are expecting to participate in the Soil Conservation Essay Contest. The subject of the theme will be "How Fish and Wildlife Conservation can benefit my Community."

The deadline on the contest is December 8, 1956.

Conservation Club holds meeting

Parks Junior Conservation Club was held October 2 with Mr. Earl Hollon in attendance. The following officers were elected: Kenneth Smith, president, A. W. Puckett, vice president; Jerry Earlywine, secretary and treasurer; Ronald Howard, reporter.

Mr. Hollon gave a talk on gun safety and gave some rules on guns.

Don't cut alfalfa till after frost

Alfalfa apparently ready to be cut actually should not be cut, says the U.K. Agricultural Extension Service. Cutting just before the first frost will reduce the root reserve needed to prevent extensive winter-killing.

After the first frost, alfalfa can be cut, agronomists say. The root reserve will have been built up and cutting the forage crop will get rid of undesirable stems that might pick up diseases and carry them over to next year.

Tobacco stripping demonstration set

Russell Hunt, U.K. Extension Service tobacco specialist, will hold a demonstration on proper stripping of tobacco Oct. 11-12 in Nicholas County.

Federal graders will conduct the sessions under direction of county agents.

National letter writing week October 7-13

National Letter Writing Week will again be celebrated nationally during the week of October 7-13, Everett Plantiel, postmaster, announced today.

As to the significance of National Letter Writing Week it is pointed out that each year since 1938 this event has been observed as a reminder of the real meaning of a personal letter.

By way of emphasizing the traditional security of the mail our residents are reminded that one of the basic American Freedoms is the uncensored transmission of their first class mail. It is one of the most valued possessions of the citizens of a free country.

People everywhere recognize the human importance of letter writing; the way in which it holds scattered families together, of giving comfort and love and news to all the people of the land. But its value is immeasurably greater than that. Its implications are almost infinite.

We in America have the privilege of uncensored and unlimited means of communication. With this in mind all citizens of Nicholas County are urged to join in this national celebration. By so doing comfort and pleasure will be brought to loved ones and friends. With that in mind let us join in making National Letter Writing Week for 1956 the greatest ever. Don't delay, write today.

Above all . . . put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. (Colossians 3:14,RSV.)

In Sweden as I was going to church one Sunday morning, two missionaries asked where the church was. I invited them to go with me, for I was going to the church they wished to attend. On our way they told their story.

They had come from the East. They had gone through much hardship, and had been forced to leave their station and work. In Sweden, on their way home, they found ease and rest.

They had arrived the night before without knowing where they were to stay. They went to the police station, and were brought to the headquarters of the Salvation Army. "Here in this place we found Christian fellowship; we feel that God is in this country," they said.

"Do we have the joy of Christian love in our hearts? Are we ready at all times to show kindness and Christian love to those we meet, especially to strangers who are in need?"

PRAYER

God, our Father, Thou art Love. Make our love to Thee pure and holy. Strengthen the love of Christ in us. Help us by love to lessen the hardship and pain in our fellow men. In the name of Christ, who loves all mankind. Amen.

Ellisville Homemakers

By Mrs. Harold McClanahan

Eighteen Ellisville Homemakers and four visitors met with Mrs. Walter Martin Wednesday, October 3, at her beautiful field stone home, near Piqua.

The 13th chapter of Corinthians was read to open our first fall meeting. Our main lesson for October is, "1956 Trends In Home Furnishings." This lesson was given by Mrs. Margie Wilson, our home agent.

Our lesson—The modern woman is busier than her grandmother was fifty years ago, so the "gingerbread" decorated furniture has been replaced with modern dateless furniture having good lines. Don't confuse the terms modern and modernistic as they apply to new furniture. Modern furniture works with ease for which it was intended, it is easily cared for and it is durable. It combines well with old furnishings. Modernistic furniture is insulting to design and is just a passing fad.

In modern furnishings, you must have these combined features—good construction, wood and design. Doweling, dovetailing, use of screws and good corner blocks are signs of good construction. The use of nails is a sign of poor construction. Outstanding in todays furniture a simplicity. The trend is away from suites of furniture. Buy good pieces over a period of years.

Coffee tables are long, narrow and substantial. They have been named "Long Johns" and are often used with cushions when additional seating space is needed. Tables have a new top, "Mica" a form of plastic, closely resembling walnut wood and is heat, water and burn resistant. Chests are so designed that they fit together in a variety of groupings. Drawers have nylon rollers and doors are of cane or louvres, rather than being solid. With the simpler lines in furniture the fabric coverings are less elaborate.

Fine fibers are now used in rugs. The natural fibers cotton and wool and man made fibers of rayon, nylon, and saran. Wool fibers leads the list because of warmth, resilience, resistance to soil and color fastness. The lightweight rugs make a nice background for all types of furniture.

November 7 we meet with a former Nicholas Countian, Mrs. Vard Shepherd, who will study arrangements of winter bouquets.
